BELIEVED HOKE SMITH BILL WILL CLEAR WAY TO SAVE THE FARMER

President and Cabinet Members Join Wholeheartedly in Move to Prevent Loss to Planter on Cotton

GREAT INTEREST IN MEET TO BE HELD MONDAY WEEK

Farmers, Bankers, Spinners and Business Men Will Meet to Discuss Georgia Senator's Warehouse Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Representatives of cotton farmers, spinners, bankers and business men from every state in the south will meet Monday week with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo to discuss the plans that have been inaugurated already to relieve the situation precipitated by the European wars with reference to the cotton crop. Secretary McAdoo told The Journal today that he had invited two representatives from each of the classes mentioned to meet him, and he expressed confidence that the conference will be productive of results that will be gratifying alike to all the interests affected.

The secretary of the treasury, and, in fact, every officer of the administration, including the president himself, has entered whole-heartedly into the movement to give relief to the southern farmers. The steps taken already in congress to facilitate the financing and movement of the crop has received speedy encouragement from every officer of the administration as a result of which the situation today seems brighter than it has at any time since the crisis was precipitated.

SMITH BILL CLEARS WAY.

It is believed that Senator Hoke Smith's bill authorizing the secretary of agriculture to license cotton warehouses will clear the way for co-operation between the United States treasury and the cotton farmers. The passage of this bill will give a stability to bale cotton that otherwise the farmers would not enjoy, thereby giving an added value to warehouse receipts.

Known as the United States cotton warehouse act, the bill includes within its provisions every building, compress, gin house and other structures in which any cotton is stored or held. It authorizes the secretary of agriculture to investigate the warehouses and certification of cotton and to have inspected all warehouses licensed by the federal government. It also authorizes to determine whether houseware, for which applications for licenses have been made, are suitable for the storage of cotton and classify the warehouses with reference to locations, surroundings, capacity, conditions, etc. The owner of any warehouse may apply to the secretary of agriculture for an inspection and license of his property, but no warehouse shall be designated as bonded until a bond of such amount as the secretary of agriculture shall have required has been given and approved.

FARMERS PROTECTED.

It is provided that any person owning cotton stored in warehouse or holding receipts for cotton stored therein shall be entitled to recover all damages he may have sustained in respect to such cotton by reason of either negligence or misconduct of the owner of the warehouse or any of his agents. All cotton stored in a licensed warehouse shall be recognized by the issuance of a duly signed certificate of deposit, but no receipt shall be

GERMANY ATTEMPTS TO SWING RIGHT WING PAST LIEGE AND ONWARD TO BELGIUM'S CAPITAL

France Gives Warning of Approaching Armageddon but No Word Comes From Kaiser---Reported German Commander Committed Suicide In Despair---Czar, His Mobilization Nearly Complete, Begins Invasion

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Definite information has been received of a strong offensive movement by the French troops on the Franco-German frontier, extending from Luneville to Sarrsbourg. Official announcement is made that Blamont, Cirey and Avricourt were re-occupied, after a Bavarian army corps, was driven out.

The re-taking by the French of Thann, in Alsace, is officially announced, and the wounding of General von Deinting, commander of the Fifteenth German army corps.

The French war minister prepares the public for a great battle, which will extend over a line more than 250 miles in length, and in which several millions of men on either side will be engaged.

This battle line will extend from Basle to Maastricht, and the people are warned that at some points the Germans may be successful, while, it is added, at other points the French will have an advantage. It also is announced that no definite details of the battle need be expected for at least eight days.

Communication with the armies virtually has come to an end, while commanders in Belgium and along the Franco-German frontier are preparing for a trial of strength which promises to develop the greatest battle in history.

GERMAN ATTEMPT TO SWING RIGHT

It is known the Germans are attempting to swing their right around toward Brussels and Antwerp, but with what success nobody outside the field of operations knows. The same applies to the attack on the Liege forts, one of which, Pontisse, is essential to German success, as it is nearest to the bridge over the Meuse which the invaders are using to bring troops into Belgium.

Silence envelopes the operations in other parts of the little country which is playing such a big and unexpected part in the war. On the Alsation frontier, the French claim another victory in the capture of Saales Pass in the Verges mountains. Here, French official reports say, the Germans again lost heavily by their tactics of close formation, to which, from all accounts, they are adhering.

Two other small countries, Servia and Montenegro, are playing important roles, for, if accounts can be believed, they not only are offering strong resistance to Austria, but actually have invaded Herzegevina, where they are certain to be assisted by the friendly population. This will divert rome of the Austrian forces from the French ahd Russian borders.

Russians are appearing in greater strength in eastern Prussia and Austria Galicia and are busy destroying railways and otherwise hampering the movements of Germans and Austrians.

Germany and Austria are silent regarding the movements of their troops, so there is really only one side of the picture given.

AEROPLANES ARE MAKING GOOD SPIES

Aeroplanes are being used everywhere to ascertain the positions of the opposing forces and, according to the feeble attempts of their predecessors, captive balloons.

No definite statement has been issued with regard to Japan, but is maintaining strict neutrality.

Nothing is known definitely of recent operations around the Liege forts.

It is reported Germany has sent a note to France and Belgium through a neutral power, accusing these two countries of having organized a popular war against Germany, and declaring that any Belgian or French private citizen, not in uniform, who interferes with the German troops, will be shot.

The Austrian warships are at Pela, the great Austrian fortress, and the entire coast has been mined.

The United States Armored cruiser Tennessee, with millions of dollars in gold aboard for the relief of Americans in Europe, is due to arrive at Falmouth Sunday.

15,000 GERMANS KILLED IN BELGIUM.

The Central News correspondent at Brussels who has returned from the front estimates that the German losses in killed throughout the fighting against the Belgians so far amounts to 15,000.

A Belgian sergeant who escaped from Liege asserts that there is much demoralization among the German troops there. A German officer and eight soldiers committed suicide by throwing themselves into the River Meuse.

News from official sources continues to indicate that the French and Belgian artillery is proving superior to the German and also that the Germany infantrymen do not determinedly face bayonets.

The official press bureau of the British admiralty and war department this evening issued the following:

"There is no reason to doubt that the Turkish government is about to replace the German officers and crews of the Goeben and Breslau by Turkish officers and crews."

DECLARES GERMAN LEADER KILLED SELF.

The Brussels correspondent of the Star says a Belgian officer who escaped from Liege brought details of the death of General Von Emmich. The officer declared Von Emmich committed suicide. The correspondent says it is stated that General von Emmich's unbridled confidence in the German army and its style of fighting was shattered by the events around Liege.

A dispatch from Paris says General Deinding, commander of the German Fifteenth army corps, is in a hospital

ORGANIZED LABOR TO BUY COTTON GOODS AND AID FARMERS

Movement Started in Atlanta in Interest of Cotton Farmers Expected to Spread Over South

No news, since the commencement of hostilities in Europe, has been more favorably received or more generally welcomed, than the action of organized labor in rallying to the assistance of the farmers, not only of Georgia but the entire south.

When it was learned through The Journal Saturday afternoon that several of the thirty chapels of the Atlanta Typographical union had passed resolutions at noon of that day, pledging themselves to use cotton goods, in lieu of any other, wherever possible in order to prevent the depression in the price of cotton, there was a general rally to join in the movement and help carry it through to a successful consummation.

But this is merely the start of the project. Promoters of the movement will not be content to confine activities to Georgia, but will insist that labor throughout the south join with them. The matter will first be taken up with the local federation of trades and then to the Georgia Federation of Labor. Once the state is in line, plans will be laid to take the movement before the Southern Labor congress, even if it is necessary to call a special meeting of that organization.

STAND BY FARMERS.

In their determination to stick by their farmer brother, the labor organizations wish it distinctly understood that their action cannot, in any manner, be construed as antagonistic to any other commodity from which goods and wearing apparel are made. Leaders in the movement declare that the southern

MADMAN FIRES HOUSE AND BRAINS INMATES

Crazed Negro With Ax Slays Architect's Soul-Mate and Five Others Who Lived in Famous "Love's Cottage"

(By Associated Press.)

SPRING GREEN, Wis., Aug. 15.—A mad negro, armed with a hand axe, today ended the romance of Mamah Bouton Borthwick, formerly Mrs. Edwin H. Cheney, of Oak Park, Ill., and Frank Lloyd Wright, wealthy Chicago architect, with whom she had lived as a wife since 1911.

Setting fire to the elaborate bungalow built by Wright for Mrs. Borthwick here after his estrangement from his wife, the negro stood outside and attempted to brain Mrs. Borthwick, and eight other occupants of the building, members of the family and employes, as they fled from the flames. He ended Mrs. Borthwick's life and the lives of six others, probably fatally injuring one and seriously wounding the remainder.

Mrs. Bothwick is said to have reprimanded the man, Julian Carlton, chef in her kitchen. He brooded over this, it is thought, and became insane.

Carlton disappeared after the killing, but after a search of several hours had been made for him reappeared and surrendered. He was hurried into an automobile and rushed to the Iowa county jail, 18 miles away.

The dead are: Mrs. Mamah Bouton Borthwick; John Borthwick Cheney, her 12-year-old son; Emil Burdell, 30, draughtsman; Martha Borthwick Cheney, Mrs. Borthwick's 10-year-old daughter; Tom Brunker, laborer; Ernest Weston, 15, farm hand.

The fatally injured is David Lindblam, a gardener.

The seriously injured are: William Weston, carpenter, and Herbert Fritz.

Sheriff Bauer organized a search for Carlton as soon as he learned of the murder. Posses of farmers joined with the sheriff's deputies and bloodhounds were obtained. It was believed the negro has escaped down the Wisconsin river in a canoe. While neighbors guarded the grounds and the men with the hounds were searching the country-side, Carlton crawled out of a boiler. He was nearly suffocated with the heat and appeared thoroughly exhausted.

He said he had taken poison, but would give no reason for the crime.

Carlton, with his wife, had been in Wright's employ about four months, coming here from Chicago. Carlton's wife was found dazed after the tragedy.

LANDSLIDE FOR HOKE SMITH HAS DEVELOPED INTO A ROUT

H. Y. McCord, Campaign Manager for Senator Smith, Concedes Only Four Counties to Mr. Joseph M. Brown, "We Consider 125 Counties Certain for Mr. Smith, and 19 More Are Probable," Says He

In a statement given out Saturday afternoon, H. Y. McCord, manager of Senator Hoke Smith's campaign, says that the election has changed from a contest to a landslide and that since Senator Smith's associates in congress put him at the head of the movement to have the present cotton crop from sacrifice it has developed into a rout.

Mr. McCord concedes but four counties to Former Governor Brown and says that only nineteen are doubtful. His statement follows:

"The present election has changed from a contest into a landslide. There never has been any real doubt as to the result since it was announced that Senator Smith would have opposition. He would have carried the state with hands down if he had made no fight. SINCE HE HAS BEEN MADE THE UNANIMOUS CHOICE OF HIS ASSOCIATES IN CONGRESS AND PUT AT THE HEAD OF THE MOVEMENT TO SAVE THE PRESENT CROP OF COTTON FROM SACRIFICE AND TO FURNISH GOVERNMENT AID IN FINANCING AND EXPORTING IT, IT HAS DEVELOPED INTO A ROUT.

"I want to make this statement as to how the campaign looks to me. In the first place we concede to Mr. Brown four counties out of the 148 in Georgia. I think there are nineteen doubtful counties. I believe that Senator Smith will carry 125 counties without question. We consider the 125 counties certain, and furthermore, I believe that the number will be increased, as he will certainly carry a number of the doubtful counties, probably more than half.

"Our campaign is improving every day and if it lasted a month longer we would carry every county in the state except the four we concede to Mr. Brown, and by that time they would probably become doubtful.

"H. Y. M'CORD, Manager."

Southern Cotton Congress Gives Senator Smith Unanimous Vote of Thanks

That the southern farmers and their representatives assembled last week in Washington recognize and appreciate the leading part which Senator Hoke Smith is taking in the movement to protect the cotton crop from the depression growing out of the European war is made plain by the following telegram received by The Journal Saturday afternoon from H. E. Stockbridge, editor of the Southern Ruralist:

"WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 15, '14.

"Editor Journal, Atlanta, Ga.:

"Southern cotton congress, with large representation from every cotton state, largely Farmers' union men, gives unanimous vote of thanks to Hoke Smith for efforts to protect growers against effects of European war.

Unfought Battles Loom Bigger Than Any Yet Seen

MORE NATIONS YET MAY JOIN CONFLICT; FIRST SHOCK IS OVER

Rigid News Censorship Keeps World Guessing Over Possibility of What May Have Happened

Like a great wall, the censorship has shut Europe's war in for the past week, and only echoes and rumors and occasional glimpses of hurrying herds of prisoners and trainloads of wounded have been permitted to the outside world. The great conflict of the ages is rumbling with increasing force behind that wall. History alone will tell all the details of what has happened and what is yet to happen. Modern newspaperdom is confronted by modern warfare, which is secret.

Disorganization in sympathy with war's ravages have been noticeable less in the United States and Central and South America than in all other parts of the globe. All the rest of the world is at war or on the verge of war or in state of armed neutrality.

Recovering from the first shock of the colossal outbreak in Europe, the United States has begun to settle back to normal, as a disinterested spectator immune against trouble. President Wilson has discouraged war loans here. The sharp advance in food prices has come under the stern eye of the government at Washington, and emphatic steps have been taken to check it and reverse it and punish those who have sought selfish profit at the nation's epense, under excuse of war elsewhere.

In a measure, trans-atlantic commerce has been resumed. Pacific commerce has suffered slightly less interruption. Commerce between the Americas has felt the stimulus of the new relation and is entering apparently upon an era of lasting benefit. Cotton growers and dealers are calmer, the government is taking steps to protect them, and the skies are clearing appreciably above the south's great money crop.

TITANIC STRUGGLE HAS JUST BEGUN.

Of actual war there has been much, but the impression is so strong that huge conflict is ahead that these engagements have attracted no passing attention in the news day by day. There have been sea fights, in the Atlantic, the Pacific, the North sea, and elsewhere. There have been raids on commerce. Merchant ships have been blown up and many passengers killed or drowned by mines in the North sea. There have been land engagements of large bodies of troops, notably at Liege, where the city has fallen before the Germans though the forts remain intact and continue covering the roads with the Belgians behind the guns, also at Haelen.

There have been engagements in the air above the earth and the waters under the earth, but of these and all else the cables tell little and impartial news is not to be had. The war censors are stingy and partisan. Little has been heard from the German viewpoint, the first direct communication with Germany having been established only the other day, between the great wireless station at Tuckerton, N. J., and stations in Germany. This brought the information Friday that war news was unobtainable in Berlin and that all newspapers there had been suppressed.

The big news of the week attracted scant attention. England and France declared war on Austria, alleging Austria had reinforced the attacking Germans. Portugal joined England. Greece and Turkey are on the verge of war with each other over the report that Turkey has purchased the two German warships, the Goeben and the Breslau, that were driven out of the Mediterranean and into the Dardanelles by the British and French, and Turkey is under the eye of the triple entente (Great Britain, France and Russia) because of that same report. Turkey has hastened to reassert her neutrality, but the situation may lead to more later.

MONTENEGRO TRAINS GUNS ON AUSTRIA.

Plucky little Montenegro has declared war on Austria, and Austria has noticed her impudence by blockading here coast. The Servian and Montenegrin invasion of Bosnia (in Austria) has commenced however, and the blockade is reported to have been lessened. Austrians have been driven from Servia, it is reported, and Servia has taken the aggressive while Austria is busy elsewhere against the allies.

Italy has refused entreaties and defied threats of Germany and Austria to force her into their war, and the indications are strong that she will join forces with the triple entente against her truculent former allies.

Japan is on the verge of entering the great conflict. Report has it that one of her fleets has taken to sea, to join Great Britain's sea fighters in the waters of the east against the foe of the English.

Certain indication that there has been, at least one battle in the Pacific waters is contained in a censored dispatch that two crippled war vessels have put in at Hong Kong, a British possession. The assumption is, of course, that they are British, or perhaps French. The Australian fleet has joined the British in those waters. German war vessels have been there for some time.

Russia's mobilization of her millions is proceeding slowly, as was expected; but the probability seems to be that it will be completed before Germany is ready. Germany's plan seems to have been to crush France quickly, then turn on Russia. But the doughty Belgians have put a nail in Germany's tire by blocking the advance across Belgian territory at Liege.

BELGIAN BLOCKADE COSTLY TO GERMANY.

The delay has been costly to Germany, no doubt. To what extent it has disrupted the kaiser's plans, no one outside the immediate circle of his war staff knows. While Germany and Austria press on to meet the allies, and skirmishes on both sides engage in more or less desperate encounters, the great hordes of Russia are forming. Two million Russians are reported now to be near the German and Austrian eastern borders. Half a million more are threatening Turkey and Rumania. Three million more, it is said, are being held in reserve.

With the landing of English troops on the continent, to aid Belgium and France, Great Britain definitely entered the land war. Many wounded men received at Southampton the other day (and the censor would not let it be said they were British) indicates the flag of England has been sprayed again with blood. Where the British went into action, when, and with what fortune, is not known.

The first battle near American shores was fought last Thursday night. The German warship Karlsruhe had been interrupted earlier in the day, by the British cruiser Suffolk, while she was coaling in the open sea from the merchant ship Kronprinz Wilhelm. The Karlsruhe and the Kronprz Wilhelm fled in opposite directions. The Suffolk gave chase, was outdistanced, and sent up the alarm to her companion fighters to catch the Karlsruhe. Some time that night the British engages the Karlsruhe at long range, but rough sea, darkness and the superior speed of the German, precluded any decisive result. The Karlsruhe coaled a few hours later in San Juan, P. R., and was reported yesterday as having put in at the Dutch island, Curacao.

In the North sea, much may have happened, but little has got past the censors. The captain of a Danish merchant ship reported at West Hartlepool, England east coast, that he had counted the war masts of seven sunken fighting vessels off Spurn head, which is one side of the mouth of the Humber river, whereon Hull is located. The ship's captain said the vessels were Germans.

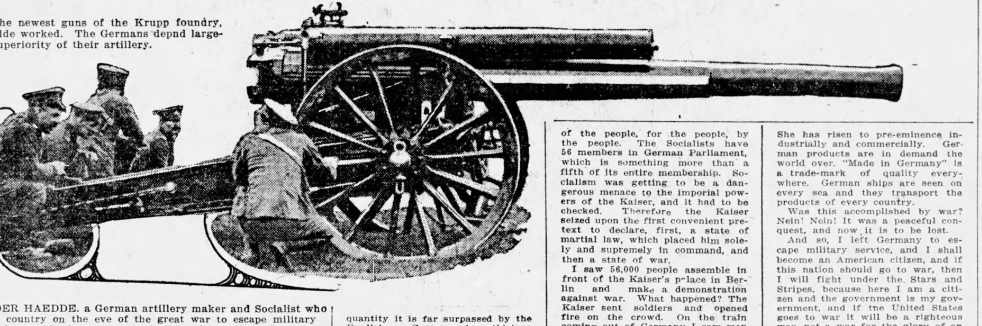
UNUSUAL BATTLE AT SEA REPORTED.

Reports of a unique engagement at sea came during the week from London. It said that a British cruiser squadron had been attacked by a school of German submarines, submerged, with only their periscopes (mechanical eyes) showing above water. The British gunners shot out the "eye" of one of them, and when it floundered to the surface they killed it and sent it to the bottom with its crew. Thereupon, says the dispatch, the rest of the school fled. The fearful menace of the submarine, supposed to strike more terror aboard a battleship than a mouse can strike an elephant, was faced without panic, says the dispatch by the British.

Encagements in the air are told vaguely, without detail, in the dispatches. Aeroplanes against aeroplanes, dirigibles against aeroplanes, these are the antagonists these have been meting high in the blue above the frontier mountains and plains and sending each other to destruction. Again, the dispatches tell of gunners on the ground bringing down these weird new birds of war. Always it is death for the airman, death more certain than that awaiting the submarine fighter.

Thus these air scouts, by spies below, and by contact with each other's armed forces, the great array of soldiery now trampling the peace and prosperity of Europe under foot have succeeded in locating each other with marvelous precision. The war is blind no longer. It sees now, and it is proceeding warily, cautiously, silently, to the meeting of irresistible force against irresistible force.

Karl Haedde, German Gunmaker, Now Loyal American, Says English Redcoats Are Kaiser's Greatest Menace



One of the newest guns of the Krupp foundry, where Haedde worked. The Germans depnd largely on the superiority of their artillery.

KARL WADER HAEDDE, a German artillery maker and Socialist who left his country on the eve of the great war to escape military service, because he is opposed to the imperial party in Germany and has no sympathy with the Kaiser's military ambitions, has been in Atlanta a few days visiting his aunt, and gives The Journal a highly interesting interview concerning Germany's war strength and concerning the feeling of the German people toward the struggle into which they have been plunged by their emperor.

As a scientific man he praises Germany's war machine, because he can appreciate its superiority. As a Socialist he is against the Kaiser, against the Imperial party which backs the Kaiser, and against a German offensive war. As a native of the Fatherland he is intensely proud of the achievements of his people in industry, in commerce, in science, in art and in literature.

But these achievements, as he says, have been made possible by peace, and war will set his people back for half a century.

He pities the German people and abhors the German government.

His story follows:

KARL HAEDDE'S VIEW OF WAR

I was born in Germany and came to Chicago, Ill., when I was a child, to live with an uncle. I got an appointment to West Point from an Illinois congressman and graduated there in the artillery department, in the class of 1902. For two years I was manager of the artillery department of the Carnegie Steel company in Pittsburg, making big guns for the United States navy. Cramp, of Philadelphia, builds most of the battleships of this government, and Carnegie builds most of the guns with which they are equipped.

In 1904 I went back to Germany and took a position with Krupp & Son, of Berlin and Potsdam, the world's greatest gunmakers.

On July 26, this year, I left Berlin to escape military service. Being able to speak English, I got out disguised as an Englishman, going to Copenhagen, from there to Liverpool, and from Liverpool to New York.

All the news of the war being published in America comes through the English and French censors, as communication direct with Germany has been cut off. Therefore it is natural that Germany should get the worst of it in the war dispatches.

The impression has been conveyed by these dispatches that the German attack on Liege has failed because the German guns and the German maneuvers were inferior.

GERMANS SURPRISED AT BELGIAN RESISTANCE

There could be no greater error. The guns used against Liege, up to this time, are only light machine guns. The Germans expected no resistance in Belgium. They expected to be given free passage across the country and their plan was to have been in Paris by this time. In fact, the Kaiser before I left home invited his general staff to dine with him in Paris on the evening of August 11.

Hence, expecting no resistance in Belgium, the Germans were not prepared for a siege. The force which attacked Liege was a small force sent ahead to clear the way for the main advance. The artillery they carried was only light artillery.

Watt until the Germans get into action with their heavy artillery. The Germans build the biggest siege guns in the world. They shoot a projectile 13 inches in diameter weighing 1800 lbs. These guns can batter down any fortifications in the world. With one of them I could take a position 12 miles from Atlanta and level this city to the ground in 24 hours. With one shot I could reduce everyone of your skyscrapers to scrap iron, if they were all in a row.

No other nation in the world has siege guns half so large as the Germans. The largest siege gun used by the United States is a 6-inch gun. Of course this country, and other countries, have big guns, 16 inches in diameter, on their battleships and in their fortifications. But no other nation but Germany can build a really big gun for a siege, to be used on the field. A big gun on a battleship or in a fort is easy to anchor. But a big gun standing on top of the ground in an open field would "kick back," as you Americans say, about as far as the projectile would be thrown, and would kill as many men as the projectile. In Germany we have discovered the secret of building a gun carriage, or trunnion, that absorbs this kick, or recoil. Krupp is the only maker in the world that knows how to make this gun.

So I say, wait until Germany's heavy siege guns go into action. No fortification can resist them. Nothing can stop them except a mountain of earth or a mountain of rock.

BUT ENGLISH INFANTRY CAN STOP ANYTHING

But it is not the Belgian fortifications or the French fortifications that will check, and perhaps stop, the German advance into France. It is the English infantry. No opposing force in history, except the American Revolutionists, have ever seen the backs of English infantry. Napoleon swept everything before him until he went against the English infantry. And then he met his Waterloo.

The Kaiser's plan was to be in Paris by this time, dictating his terms of surrender, and then to march to St. Petersburg before the Russian winter set in.

What stopped him? The Belgian resistance. It was unexpected. It was unprepared for. It has checked the German advance and demoralized the German plans. It has given England time to land her infantry. And with the English infantry interposing, Germany has her hands full.

Germany's heavy siege guns are no good in an infantry battle. They are made only for battering down fortifications. The rapid fire machine gun is the one used against infantry.

The Germans know France as well as you know the way from your office to your home. They know the location, the plan, the strength, of every fortification in France. I have been to France to map their fortifications and have been arrested as a spy. I managed to get released because I speak English well enough to convince them I was an Englishman. But where I failed others have succeeded. France would have been easy for Germany, if Belgium had not held the Germans until the English infantry arrived.

The talk of Russians penetrating Germany is silly. Germany has built a line of fortifications around her frontiers that is the finest in the world. It is virtually impregnable. Germany, when she is forced back inside her fortifications, can hold out against the balance of the world until she is starved into surrender.

WAR WILL GO ON TO THE BITTER FINISH

My opinion is that the war will go to the finish. The Kaiser has staked his all. He cannot turn back now. He will eventually be crushed, because of the overwhelming odds against him. And his defeat will mean the victory of the German people. When he is beaten, the German people will proclaim a republic and will establish it and make it a fact, for the Kaiser will hev lost his power to enforce military service and he cannot stop them. A victory for the Kaiser would mean the end of democratic hopes in Germany. It might mean the end of democratic institutions in the whole of Europe.

The German navy in quality is the finest in the world. But in quantity it is far surpassed by the English. Germany has thirteen dreadnaughts. England has thirty-nine. One German dreadnaught is more than a match for one English dreadnaught, because of its superior guns, its superior armor plate and its superior marksmanship. But one German dreadnaught is not a match for three English dreadnaughts. England's navy is the mistress of the seas. No power can invade the British Isles without first destroying the English navy, and no nation on earth has a navy big enough to accomplish such a performance.

AMERICAN GUNNERS BEST IN THE WORLD

The American gunners are the best in the world. Not many months ago an American fleet was in the North sea; giving exhibition target practice. I saw their gunners shoot the bottom out of hogsheads floating on the water at 1,800, 3,400 and 5,000 yards. Such marksmanship is marvelous. It is uncanny. I said to the captain of the German ship I was on: "Captain, we have no gunners in Germany who can shoot like that." He said: "Even so, Karl. Say no more of it."

Although I am not a naval marksman, I do some marksmanship when I see it. I hold sixteen medals for marksmanship. I was the best long distance land artillery marksman in Germany.

I called on the German consul in Atlanta, Dr. Quellenstein. I showed him my medals. He said: "Man, why did you leave? Why did not you stay and shoot for the Kaiser. I told him: "To hell with the Kaiser. I am going to do my shooting for the United States, if I ever go to war!"

THE GUNMAKER A SOCIALIST NOW!

Haedde's eyes burned, and he ran his hand through his yellow hair, and from a scientific gunmaker he changed to a Socialist.

The mass of the German people don't want war. They would fight a defensive if the Fatherland should be invaded, and would be willing to fight and glad to fight, but they are not willing to furnish food for cannon to satisfy the Kaiser's insatiable military ambition. And why should they? They are not citizens, in the real sense of the word. They have no real voice in the affairs of their government. Their emperor does not govern by their consent, but by divine right, as he says. Think of it. Divine right of rulership in this day of enlightened civilization and democratic institutions.

The Kaiser has more power than the Czar of Russia. You Americans may be accustomed to think to the contrary, but that is a fact what I say. The Kaiser plunged his people into war without even consulting the German Parliament. He did it by a scratch of his pen. Think how monstrous a thing it is for one man to have such power. And observe how slowly and cautiously England proceeded to war. The English parliament did not dare to declare war until it knew public sentiment justified war. Your president of the United States has power to declare war in certain circumstances, but he acts by the word from the people. As a citizen of the United States, which I shall become, I have a powerful voice in the selection of the president as any other man, no matter how rich he may be. The German Kaiser, now that war is declared, has the power to confiscate the savings of the people for a war loan, and already is exercising this power. He has the power to confiscate even the earnings of the people.

The Kaiser has been making active preparations for war for five years. He was only waiting for a pretext. And when War came he did not come because he had so much as a good pretext, but came because he saw the time was ripe. He saw it was time to check the advance of democracy in German politics.

SOCIALISM THERE MEANS DEMOCRACY.

I am a Socialist in Germany. But socialism in that country means something different from socialism in America. It doesn't mean a Carl Morris propaganda. It is simply a name the party has taken for the lack of a better word. Socialism in Germany means Democracy. It means less power for the Kaiser and more power for the people. It means, in short, that the government shall be a government of the people, for the people, by the people. The Socialists have 56 members in German Parliament, which is something more than a fifth of its entire membership. Socialism was getting to be a dangerous menace to the imporial powers of the Kaiser, and it had to be checked. Therefore the Kaiser seized upon the first convenient pretext to declare, first, a state of martial law, which placed him solely and supremely in command, and then a state of war.

I saw 56,000 people assemble in front of the Kaiser's p'lace in Berlin and make a demonstration against war. What happened? The Kaiser sent soldiers and opened fire on the crowd. On the train coming out of Germany I saw men shot because they demurred when called into active service in the army.

My father led a regiment into France in the Franco-Prussian war. I have a brother who is an officer in the German army, and he is now before Liege. I love the Fatherland, but I love peace more.

Germany in the last fifty years has furnished the world its science, its art, its literature, its music. She has risen to pre-eminence industrially and commercially. German products are in demand the world over. "Made in Germany" is a trade-mark of quality everywhere. German ships are seen on every sea and they transport the products of every country.

Was this accomplished by war? Nein! Nein! It was a peaceful conquest, and now it is to be lost.

And so, I left Germany to escape military service, and I shall become an American citizen, and if this nation should go to war, then I will fight under the Stars and Stripes, because here I am a citizen and the government is my government, and if the United States goes to war it will be a righteous war, not a war for the glory of an emperor.

I pity the German people. I abhor the German government. If the kaiser is crushed, which I believe and hope he will be, then the German people will triumph. But if the kaiser should be victorious, then the yoke upon his people will be made harder than they can bear, you will see the best brains of Germany come to America, the land of freedom and opportunity.

AMERICAN BANKERS MAY MAKE LOANS TO NEUTRAL NATIONS

Bryan Says There's No Reason Why Countries Not at War Shouldn't Borrow in the United States

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Secretary Bryan has announced that Switzerland has made formal inquiry as to the attitude of the United States toward the floating off a loan for her in this country and that the statement with reference to neutral countries was intended to cover the inquiry today by the Swiss charge d'affaires.

Later Secretary Bryan gave out this statement:

"Inquiry having been made as to the attitude of this government in case American bankers are asked to make loans to foreign governments during the war in Europe, the following announcement is made:

"There is no reason why loans should not be made to the government of neutral nations, but in the judgment of this government loans by American bankers to any foreign nation which is at war are inconsistent with the true spirit of neutrality."

Refuge Ships to be Neutral?

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The United States government has notified the powers of Europe that it will regard as neutral "ships chartered for the sole purpose of repatriating American citizens stranded in Europe," and has asked the belligerent governments for a declaration on the subject.

The announcement follows:

"The state department has issued instructions to its diplomatic representatives in Europe to notify the different governments to which they are accredited that this government will regard ships chartered for the sole purpose of repatriating its citizens who are now stranded in Europe, due to the lack of transportation facilities resulting from the war, as neutral lines under the principles of international law and as coming within the meaning of Article 4 of The Hauge convention in 1907, having to do with the rights of capture in naval warfare of neutralized vessels that are charged with a philanthropic mission. The different European governments have been asked for declarations to this effect."

WARREN GRICE, Georgia's Attorney General
THE HARDEST WORKED MAN IN THE CAPITOL.

His friends are confident that his record for four months in this office is such as to insure a vote of confidence by the people on August the 19th.

Numerous editorial expressions from the papers in all sections of the state and the many letters from his friends indicate his election overwhelmingly.

Running on his record as a lawyer of twenty years' practice, and his record as Attorney General.

The only candidate for this office who will carry his own section solidly and who is indorsed unanimously by the lawyers, judges and ex-judges of his own judicial circuit.

He has appeared for the state in 22 murder cases in the Supreme Court during his 4 months in office, and not one of these has been reversed.

This however, is only a small part of his work for the state.

GET RID OF HUMORS AND AVOID DISEASE

Humors in the blood cause internal derangements that affect the whole system, as well as pimples, boils and other eruptions. They affect all the organs and functions, membranes and tissues, and are directly responsible for the readiness with which people contract disease.

For forty years Hood's Sarsaparilla has been more successful than any other medicine in expelling humors and removing their inward and outward effects. It is distinguished for its thoroughness in purifying the blood, which it enriches and invigorates. No other medicine acts like it, for no other medicine is like it.

CONTRABAND OF WAR PLACES GREAT RISK ON ALL SHIPMENTS

Only Goods Entirely Safe Are Those of a Neutral, Not Contraband, and Shipped on Neutral Vessel

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The state department today made public the German proclamation as to contraband of war. The list corresponds as regards absolute contraband to the commodities set forth in the British declaration.

As regards both absolute and conditional contraband, Germany gives notice that she will apply the provisions of the declaration of London provided all belligerents do not disregard them.

In making public the lists, Solicitor Lansing, of the state department, said: "The advices were "based on the most generally accepted principles of international law and usage and are general and advisory only. The department has no means of forecast the precise course in position of the belligerent governments in particular instances."

The declaration of other belligerents regarding contraband have not been received but it is assumed they will, in the main, follow those of England and Germany.

Regarding the seizure of vessels and cargoes, Solicitor Johnson's statement says:

"Vessels flying the flag of one of the belligerents are subject to seizure and confiscation by the opposing belligerents. Contraband of war on board of such vessel is, of course, subject to confiscation, though the property of a neutral.

"Goods not contraband, belonging to a neutral aboard a captured vessel is subject to delay and interruption consequent upon the seizure of the vessel, but not to confiscation upon manifestation of neutral ownership and the non-contraband character of the goods.

"When a vessel containing a carco of a citizen of the United States is captured and is carried before a prize court, as it will be presumably, he should give notice of his claim of property to the prize court authorities and be prepared to furnish proof of his ownership and the non-contraband character of his goods.

"Goods of a neutral, not contraband of war, shipped on a neutral vessel, are not rightfully subject to seizure or interference by any of the belligerents, and it is not presumed that the vessels of neutrals carrying only non-contraband cargoes will be interfered with."

The success from the German government, owing to errors in transmission, is somewhat obscure, but it is assumed to coincide with the English declaration and to define contraband as follows:

Absolute contraband:

Arms of all kinds and their distinctive component parts.

Projectiles, charges and cartridges of all kinds and component parts.

Powder and explosives specially prepared for use in war.

Gun mountings, limber boxes, military wagons, field forges and component parts.

Clothing and equipment of a distinctively military character.

All kinds of harness of a distinctive military character, saddle, draught and pack animals suitable for use in war.

Articles of camp equipment and their distinctive component parts.

Armor plates.

Warships, including boats and component parts of such a nature that they can only be used on a vessel of war.

Aeroplanes, airships, balloons and aircraft of all kinds and component parts, together with accessories and articles recognizable as intended for use in connection with balloons and air craft.

Implements and apparatus designed exclusively for the manufacture of munitions of war or for the manufacture or repair of arms or war material for use on land or sea.

CONDITIONAL CONTRABAND.

The following articles will be treated as conditional contraband:

Foodstuffs.

Forage and grain suitable for feeding animals.

Clothing, fabrics for clothing and boots and shoes suitable for use in war.

Gold and silver in coin or bullion paper money.

Vehicles of all kinds available for use in war and component parts.

Vessels, craft and boats of all kinds, floating docks, parts of docks and their component parts.

Railway material, both fixed and rolling stock and materials for telegraphs, wireless telegraphs and telephones.

Fuel lubricants.

Powder and explosives, not specially prepared for use in war.

Barbed wire and implements for fixing and cutting the same.

Horse shoes and shoeing materials.

Harness and saddlery.

Field glasses, telescopes, chronometers and all kinds of nautical instruments.

German Emperor Will Travel With Staff in Special Train

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The German emperor's train is described by a refugee, just escaped from Germany, as one that is intended for the use of the emperor and his staff, and consists of dining, council and sleeping cars, added to which are well fitted boxes for his majesty's chauffeurs and his motor cars.

The train carries armed telegraphers and is preceded and followed by armored trains.

Among the equipment is a small, simple tent which is to be pitched on the field wherever the emperor deems it expedient to share the life of his troops.

GERMANY ATTEMPTS TO SWING HER RIGHT PAST FORTS OF LIEGE

at the front. A bullet crashed through his neck, it is said.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says two German cruisers, Thursday, fired a score of shells at the light house on Cape Dagar Ort, the western extremity of Dago Island, between the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic sea.

Russian soldiers and peasants have been informed that the solar eclipse, which would be visible in a few days, is a natural occurrence for fear they will imagine it an evil omen.

BELGIAN ENGINEERS DESTROYING BRIDGES.

According to a Brussels dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company, timed 9:30 p. m., Saturday, an official statement has been issued saying:

"The situation of our army continues excellent. Victorious engagements against the Germans have strengthened its morale and the strateic dispositions remain advantageous for us. Explosions in different directions indicate that our engineers are destroying bridges.

"Contact was made today between the French and Germans, with advantage to the French. The forts continue to hold out.

"On all the main roads around Brussels entrenchments have been thrown up for the reception of any of the German detachments which may approach the capital. This step has been taken as a police measure, not as part of the military operations."

The correspondent says he has no means of verifying the report of the death of General Von Emmich.

RUSSIAN EMPEROR APPEALS TO JEWS

A Copenhagen dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company says:

"Copies of several German newspapers have reached here. The Berlin Morgen Post for Thursday reproduces that Austrian commander in chief's proclamation to the Poles calling on them to join the Austro Germanic army, as Austria brings them freedom from Muscovite rule.

"The Frankfurter Zeitung says the Russian Emperor has issued a manifesto addressed 'to my beloved Jews' in Russian and Yiddish, reminding the Jews of the benefits they have received from Russia and from the house of Romanof in particular and calling on them to reinforce the Russian army, as Jewish and Russian interests are identical.

"In return the Jews are promised permission to live in districts hitherto forbidden them. The newspaper comments:

"The Jews are somewhat backward in responding to this invitation."

Germany Declares Belgian Citizens Fire on Troops

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company in Rome says a message from Berlin asserts that Germany has sent to France and Belgium, through neutral powers, a note stating that reports received from the German army leave no doubt that France and Belgium have organized a popular war against Germany in which private citizens, not wearing uniforms, are firing on German troops.

Germany gives notice that from today every Belgian or French private citizen who fires on German troops, or tries to interfere with communications between the army of the invasion and the rear guard, or to interfere in any way with the advance of the German army, will be shot. The note adds that if the war thus assumes a brutal character it will be the fault of France and Felgium and not Germany.

London Officially Reports French Victories in Alsace

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The British official press bureau in its communication today says:

"The German offensive is for the moment arrested in Upper Alsace and there are indications that the French have made progress on that side."

The communication continues:

"The French troops are advancing into the high Alsian valleys of the Vosges mountains. Since their occupation of the Saales region in German territory on the frontier of Alsace which was announced yesterday, the French troops have entered the town of Saales itself, driving out the German troops. Today they collected the kits abandoned by the German fugitives.

"In the Woevre district in the department of the Meuse, the French troops today fired at and brought down a hostile aeroplane which was flying at a height of over 1,000 yards. The two German officers occupying the flying machine were taken prisoners.

"In the same district a battalion of French light infantry put to flight a battalion of German Landwehr, taking forty prisoners.

MILLIONS OF TROOPS READY FOR GREATEST BATTLE IN HISTORY

Allies Face Germans Along Battle Line 266 Miles Long, Colossal Conflict May Last Days

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Conditions under which the great battle between the Germans and the allied forces probably will be fought are made the subject of an official communication issued by the French minister of war today. By its development and the nature of the ground over which the battle will be waged, the communication says, this vast engagement will differ profoundly from battles of other times.

"By reason of the abandonment of the attack which the Germans planned against Nancy," says the communication, "our concentration has been carried out with regularity and in its entirety, and thus the whole of the French army will battle with the whole of the German forces with the exception of those German troops concentrated on the eastern frontier of the empire.

"The violation of the neutrality of Belgium has extended the Belgian and French lines to the frontier of Holland.

"The next battle therefore will be from Basle to Maestricht with several millions of men on each side.

"It is this enormous extension of the effectives and of front which will characterize the battle and it will be profoundly different from all other battles.

"When two adversaries engage in a battle along a front of from twenty to thirty kilometers (13 to 20 miles) the engagement is characterized by two features—it is rapid and immediately decisive. With a front extending over 400 kilometers (266 miles) it is not likely to be the same.

"It would appear impossible from all the evidence that one of the adversaries would be able to gain decisive advantage upon this front of 400 kilometers.

"The operations along so great a line would have varying fortunes.

"We will have an advantage at one or several points; the Germans will have an advantage at other points and the line of battle will continue to be modified until one of the adversaries succeeds by co-ordination of movements and mass of effort in gaining some point, the superiority of which will dislodge the adversary's front and mark the end of the first battle.

"These observations have for their object the preparation of the public for a battle in new form and without precedent in history."

The communication adds that news of definite results need not be expected for at least eight days or longer, and says:

"We know also that the failure of a quick attack through Belgium because of the resistance of the forts at Liege, the valor of the Belgian army and the intervention of our cavalry, has kept the German forces eight days upon the Meuse. The first results are these checks to the German plan."

The war office alludes to the regularity of the French mobilization, the concentration and co-ordination of the French movement with the English and Belgian allies.

CABLE CENSORSHIP NOT NECESSARY, SAYS ENTENTE

Great Britain, France and Russia Ask U. S. to Refrain From It

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—England, France and Russia have intimated to the United States, it was understood today, that they do not regard the recent application of censorship to the wireless stations as necessarily requiring similar restrictions of cable messages.

The Russian ambassador George Bakmeteff, who came from Newport, R. I., for a conference with Secretary Bryan today, it was believed, discussed the proposed censorship.

Colville Barclay, British charge d'affaires, who was at the state department, said that censoring wireless was required under general principles of international law, for by sending messages direct from American shores to belligerent ships neutral territory would be used as a basis for hostile operations. Mr. Barclay held that the Tuckerton, N. J., station would not be allowed to operate at all, as it was established since the war began.

"Cables are different from wireless," he said. "It takes several hours to communicate the movments of a ship, for instance, by cable to the home government. The message must be relayed back by wireless, all of which takes more time. The actual order is given on the territory of a belligerent to its vessels."

If a censorship were established at cable offices, it might seriously interfere with the sending of code messages to various European governments from their embassies and consulates. It is believed the Russian ambassador discussed this phase of the subject today.

Final decision on the wireless-cable controversy is not expected before Monday.

Three Atlanta Women Are Reported Safe in Lucerne, Switzerland

A cablegram has been received stating that Mrs. Cola Spears, principal of the Highland avenue school and sister of Dr. Claude Smith, city bacteriologist. Miss Mary Anderson, teacher in the Girls' High school, and Miss Annie Barnwell, teacher in the Commercial High school, are all safe in Lucerne, Switzerland.

"Friends and relatives of these ladies will be relieved to hear that they are in Lucerne, as Switzerland is a neutral nation in the European war, and, in addition, is so mountainous that armies are not at all likely to attempt to pass through it under any circumstances. Lucerne is located in the heart of the Alps.

Mrs. Spears and Miss Anderson had planned to complete a tour of Europe; Miss Barnwell was going to Paris from Lucerne to study for five or six weeks. Their plans were abandoned when the war started; it is not known when the three teachers are coming back to Atlanta, but their friends think they will be able to get a boat soon.

FUNDS TO ASSIST GERMAN SOLDIERS RECEIVED HERE

Money Will Be Forwarded to German Red Cross Society

Contributions to aid the German Red Cross society and needy families of German soldiers now in the field are being received by representatives of the German-American association of Atlanta, who have answered a call from the German-American Alliance of America to help in this work.

The national organization issued a call for help soon after the breaking out of the European war and since that time, the local body has been making preliminary arrangements for systematic work along this line. It is now announced that these plans have been completed and that the German Cafe, at 29 South Pryor street, Henry Muench, at 65 Peachtree street, and Koppe & Steinlechen, at 159 Houston street, have been authorized to receive contributions.

President Herman Steininchen, of the local organization, has sent out a special appeal to all Germans and German-Americans to assist in the work. He announces that contributions are already beginning to come in with encouraging frequency.

French Advance Begins With Great Numbers

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Official dispatches announce that the French offensive movement began in great force along the line from Sarrebourg, on the Franco-German frontier, to Luneville, in the department of Muerthe-Et-Moscelle, last evening.

NEW HORROR MAY PLAY PART SOON IN EUROPEAN CONFLICT

Inventor of "F-Rays," Said to Explode Mines at Long Distances, Disappears — France May Control Apparatus

ROME, Aug. 15.—Consternation in military circles has followed the mysterious disappearance from Florence of Signor Ulivi, who claims perfection of an apparatus by which "F-rays" will produce explosions at great distance. The disappearance of the inventor was followed with the publication here of an interview with Signor Gino Galli, the widely known engineer, who declared that Ulivi has sold the right of the apparatus to the French government.

The import of this, carrying the possibility of a hitherto unknon invention being employed in the present war, has set all Europe talking.

A Russian concern, it is declared, had offered a fabulous sum for the invention.

The disappearance of the inventor occurred on the eve of the official demonstration here of his apparatus.

Positive Diamond Security

Our large business, purchasing as much or more than jobbers, enables us to buy diamonds direct from the larger cutters of the world in original lots, and we therefore save you all of the middle-men's profits that the average jewelers must charge.

When these large lots are received from the cutters, each stone is graded and classed with exacting care, and marked in plain figures with weight and grade and price at once the lowest.

A child, therefore, can buy a diamond from us as securely as an expert might.

Every solitaire diamond we sell has our guarantee of a full price exchange value on any larger diamond at any time, that we will buy back at any time within a year at just what you pay for it, less 10 per cent, and a loan value of 60 per cent at bankers' rate of interest.

For those who do not care to pay for a diamond all at once we offer a most attractive partial payment plan which is carefully explained in Our Diamond Book.

There is nothing to be done to reduce the cost of diamonds or to assure their value that we do not offer.

BRAVE LITTLE BELGIUM BLOCKS KAISER'S PATH; HARVEY JOHNSON DESCRIBES HER LOYAL PEOPLE

Former Consul at Antwerp Writes for The Journal of the Land Where Germans Met Stubborn Resistance

Mr. Johnson spent four years in Belgium as United States consul at Antwerp in the second administration of President Cleveland. He is very familiar with the entire country, and particularly that part of it where the opposing armies are now concentrating, as he and Mrs. Johnson spent one summer at Spa and another at Namur, from which points they traversed all of the surrounding country on bicycles.

BY HARVEY JOHNSON.

Belgium has furnished the ground upon which have been fought some of the greatest battles of the world. Going back but little over two centuries, Marlborough defeated the French Marshal Villeroi in the bloody battle of Ramillies in 1706. The same doughty Englishman whipped the French Duke of Vendome at Oudenarde in 1708. Passing on to the time of the French revolution, General Dumouriez administered a severe thrashing to the allied armies under Duke Albert of Austria at Jemappes in 1792. Two years later General (afterward Marshal) Jourdan won the decisive battle of Fleurus over the allies commanded by the Prince of Cobourg. On June 16, 1815, Napoleon overcame Blucher and Wellington at Ligny, while on the sameday Marshal Ney was held in check by the English in the murderous fight at Quatre Bras. Two days later, Wellington overwhelmed the great Frenchman at Waterloo. It seems that history is about to repeat itself. It may be repeating itself today. Sunday has been a favorite day for great battles.

A WORD ABOUT BELGIUM AND HER PEOPLE.

Belgium has an area of a little more than eleven thousand square miles. It has a population of more than seven million souls. It is less than one-fifth the size of Georgia, and to give an idea of the density of its population, it may be said that if Georgia were as thickly populated as Belgium, Georgia would have within its borders more than thirty-five millions of people.

King Albert of Belgium is forty years of age, and succeeded his licentious uncle, Leopold the Second, five years ago. During my service as minister to Belgium I had the pleasure to meet him and talk with him more than once. He is tall, fair, handsome, democratic in repute. He is married and has three children. He has traveled widely and observed much.

THE FIGHTING CITY OF LIEGE.

The capital city of the province of the same name, Liege, (pronounced Leezh) with suburbs, has a population of about 140,000. It is situated on the left bank of the Meuse river 56 miles east of Brussels, and 25 miles west of the German city of Aix-la-Chapelle (Aachen in German). It possesses many points of interest to the tourist, chief among which should be mentioned the church of St. Jacques and the buildings of the famous old university. (From the University of Seraing, are the factories of the Cockerill company, founded nearly 100 years ago by an Englishman, John Cockerill, and in which are manufactured the finest of cannon, howitzers, rifles, guns and all kinds of firearms. When I visited the plant, about eighteen years ago, the payroll contained more than 20,000 names. Liege ranks high in the commercial world for its steel works, and its manufactures of hardware, glass, leather and straw goods. It is one of the most prosperous manufacturing cities of Europe. Its people, as those of the surrounding territory, are frugal, polite and intensely patriotic.

About thirty miles southeast of Liege is Spa, one of the show resorts of Europe, and a little further on in the same direction is the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. Southwest of Liege about thirty-five miles and also on the Meuse river, is Namur, a city of about 40,000 inhabitants, and important for its fortifications and its manufacture of cutlery. Going up the Meuse from Namur about twenty miles (that is to say going south as it must be remembered that the Meuse flows in a northerly direction) one passes the towns of Wepion, Profondeville, Dinant and Hastieres, which is at the Belgian-French frontier, and a little further on Givet is reached. About 20 miles to the west of Namur is Charleroi, a town of 20,000 people, and famous for its collieries, glass works and neighboring battlefields of years gone by. Some of the towns east of Liege are Chaudfontaine, Pepinster and Verviers, the last named being very near the German frontier. North and northwest of Liege are Tongres, Herstal, Haelen and Diest, while west and toward Brussels are St. Trond, Tirlemont and Louvain. All of the places above named have figured in recent dispatches, and to them should be added the rivers Meuse, Ourthe and Sambre. The Meuse flows north through eastern France and eastern Belgium. The Ourthe flows north and empties into the Meuse at Liege, while the Sambre, rising in France and taking a northeasterly course, joins the Meuse inside the city of Namur.

INVASION OF BELGIUM THOUGHT EASIEST WON

Why did Germany violate the treaty of which it was a solemn signatory, and disregard Belgium and which it had promised to defend? The answer is easy, and in giving it, it will not be necessary to discuss the rights and the wrong of the conduct of each or any of the belligerents in taking part in the senseless and goulless Armageddon which is about to engulf Europe.

The Franco-German war began on August 2, 1870, with the battle of Saarbrucken. The German army bounded over the French frontiers all along the line from Switzerland to Luxemburg, and went straight at the heart of France. Saarbrucken was quickly followed by Weissenburg, Worth, Froschweiler, Spicheren, Colombey-Nouilly, Vionville, Gravelotte, and then Sedan. In exactly one month after Saarbrucken, on September 2, 1870, came Sedan and the French emperor was a prisoner of the Prussian king.

Exactly forty-four years later, on August 2, 1914, the German army started again for Paris. But it did not start by way of France as in 1870. It invaded Belgium. Why? During these forty-four years the most distinguished French engineers and the most skilled French workmen have been engaged in the construction of fortifications along the entire France-German frontier.

Beginning at Besancon opposite the Swiss border and going north, most modern and most powerful fortifications have been built at Belfort, Dijon, Langres, Epinal, Nancy, Toul, Chalons and Verdun. To take these forts or any one of them, or the passes between them, would necessitate long delay and frightful loss of life. This is what the German kaiser desired to avoid, thinking it would be much easier, by reason of the absence of such formidable fortifications along the France-Belgian frontier, to enter France across Belgian territory. The Belgians indignantly refused the kaiser's request to permit a benevolent violation of their soil and their neutrality, that he might the more easily get at France, and the kaiser at once proceeded to cross the forbidden strip in spite of their protest. What has happened the reader knows as well as the writer. No one knows with any degree of accuracy.

THE KAISER'S PLAN OF CAMPAIGN

A few deductions can, however, be fairly drawn from such news as has been given out. Having decided to enter France through Belgium, the kaiser divided his northern army, which we may call the army of the Meuse, into two main parts. The left wing he threw into the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg and the northwestern corner of Germany in the neighborhood of Metz. The right wing entered Belgium just east of Verviers, and taking Pepinster and other small intervening points, arrived in front of Liege. The left wing was to maintain an attitude of watchful waiting, until the right wing, marching along the beautiful valley of the Meuse and having easily taken Liege, Huy, Namur and Charleroi, should show itself upon the French frontier, at and around Givet. If the plan had worked out, the French left around Longwy and Verdun was to have been enveloped and destroyed by simultaneous onslaughts from Belgium, Luxembourg and Metz, and the army of the Meuse, victorious and united was to have moved immediately on toward Paris.

But the original plan did not materialize. The Belgian resistance at Liege was totally unexpected. The German emperor never for a moment harbored the thought that his Uhlans would be mercilessly cut down by the quiet, peace loving Belgians and that his plans would be so completely upset. He had to stop. Additional re-enforcements and food were found to be necessary. His advance toward Tongres and Diest to the north of Liege have been nothing but diversions to give his men something to do and to mislead the opposing allies. His sallies toward Tirlemont and St. Trond have been nothing but feints. He has lost ten days. He has doubtless been strongly re-enforced, but in the meantime, the French have joined the Belgians from the south, and the English have debauched upon the scene from their island home in the west. We may be sure that the French, English and Belgians have effected a junction, or at least they knew accurately the whereabouts each of the other. All we can do is to wait for the big battle. We will not have to wait long.

There is one thing everybody, including the German emperor, will agree to, and that is that the Belgians have made a most stubborn, heroic and historic resistance to the invasion of their country. Their intense patriotism and prodigies of valor in what will be known as the Battle of Liege, will live in song and story to the uttermost end of written history.

Francis Joseph's List Of Titles Is Longest Of All Great Rulers

VIENNA, Aug. 11.—Francis Joseph can boast of the longest list of titles belonging to any European monarch. He is "By the grace of God," emperor of Austria, Apostolic king of Hungary, king of Bohemia, Dalmatia, Croatia, Esclavonia, Gallica, Lodomeria, Illyria, Jerusalem, etc., archduke of Austria, grand duke of Tuscany, of Cracovia, duke of Lorraine, Salzburg, Styria, Corinthia, Carnolia, Bukovina, grand prince of Transylvania, margrave of Moravia, duke of Silesia, Modena, Parma, Plaisance and Guastalli, Aschwitz and Zabor, Teschen, Friul Ragusa and Lara, reigning count of Hasburg and Tyrol, Kyburg, Goritz and Gradisca, prince of Trente and Brixen, margrave of Lusacia, Istria, count of Hohenembs, Feldkirk, Brigansa, Somenberg, etc., lord of Trieste, Cattaro and the Wendian Marches, grand vlovde of Servia, lord protector of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and many more among the minor titles.

Whether Archduke Charles Francis will be let to succeed to all of these when nephew Francis Joseph on the throne of the Hapsburgs, the outcome of the present war will decide.

SITUATION IS REVIEWED BY FRENCH MINISTRY

War Department Makes Official Statement of French Side

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 15.—4:15 p. m.—An official communication issued late today by the French ministry of war reviews the situation to date. It says:

"In order that opinion in France and elsewhere can have a just view and not be lost in the details of news it is of advantage to lay down in broad lines all without seeking to judge in advance, the development of events and to classify the results required.

"We know from the declaration of German strategists such as Bernhardi, Falkenhayne and Von Der Goltz that the German plan provided for a quick attack on the first line upon our covering troops to the north of Nancy.

"We know equally well that a second sharp and quick attack was to have been made by passing through Belgium and then immediately striking at the French frontier. A positive proof of the verity of this double plan is found in the individual cards of mobilization directing the German reservists from the Fifth to the Fifteenth day of mobilization to join their regiments in French cities such as Verdun, Rheims and Chalons-sur-Marne.

"The double-quick attack failed. That directed against Nancy was not attempted in its entirety, the Germans, finding our forces too strong, renounced the plan.

"The Russian army, having accelerated its mobilization, will be able to operate at the same time with the French, English and Belgian armies. The German army now controls Herzegovina and this will cause Austria-Hungary to hesitate to continue to send her troops which, during the last eight days have been on their way toward Alsace.

"Finally the English and the French squadrons control the seas."

Former President of Brazilian State Held Up by Germans

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The correspondent of the Havas Agency at Geneva sends an interview with Bernardino DeCampos, former president of the Brazilian state of Sao Paulo, in which he confirms an earlier report that his automobile was held up by German soldiers while he was going from Mannheim to Ludwigshafen.

"The lieutenant in command," said the Brazilian, "flung us out violently and insulted us, notwithstanding that we had passports for safe conduct, issued by the German ambassador at Paris. We stood for a long time exposed to the jeers of a crowd before we were allowed to continue our journey. Finally we reached St. Udwig, near Muelhausen, where we were made to leave the train and walk three miles before we were conducted to Basel. Our baggage was confiscated. My wife is seriously ill."

Red Cross Will Take Only Native American Nurses

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The first call for additional Red Cross nurses for the European expedition has been sent to the Red Cross committees in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Rochester, Albany, Buffalo and the states of Connecticut and New Jersey. It is probable additional nurses from other sections will be enrolled.

When asked why this call was issued, Miss Boardman said: "It is to take physicians and nurses who are native born Americans to make sure of absolute neutrality.

Germany is Ready to Aid Americans to Reach Home

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—Via Copenhagen and London, Aug. 15.—It is hoped that the United States will be able to obtain the consent of the European powers now at war to the charter of a German steamer to return American citizens to the United States. The German government is ready to negotiate in order to guarantee safe passage of such a steamer.

August 12, 1914.

Mr. Alfred C. Newell,
Chairman Slaton Campaign Committee,
Atlanta, Ga.,

Dear Sir: I have your personal letter of August 11, in which you beg of me to take up immediately and vigorously, the attack of Judge Newt Morris upon the wife of Governor Slaton, which you denounce as baseless.

In the first place, you have made a mistake in sending your letter to one who has, after deliberate consideration of the issue, declined to enter the United States Senatorial race. I, therefore, decided that Hardwick, on account of his experience and ability, was better fitted for the office than your time-serving and side-stepping candidate; and in the second place I fail to see, after reading Judge Morris's letter to the governor, where he has attacked a daughter of the south, or in any way made an issue on Mrs. Slaton; but, in case he has, I consider this a matter between the husband of Mrs. Slaton and Judge Morris, and I think the man who drags out skirts as a shield for his shortcomings, in time of battle, as your candidate, through you, is seemingly doing, is not more worthy of the support of the people than a man who would make an attack on a daughter of Georgia.

You charge Mr. Hardwick, through Judge Morris, with making an attack on Mrs. Slaton, which attack, YOU YOURSELF manufactured, and in the same letter you make an appeal to every editor your letter was addressed to, had passports for safe conduct, issued by the German ambassador at Paris. We stood for a long time exposed to the jeers of a crowd before we were allowed to continue our journey. Finally we reached St. Udwig, near Muelhausen, where we were made to leave the train and walk three miles before we were conducted to Basel. Our baggage was confiscated. My wife is seriously ill."

August 12, 1914.

Mr. Alfred C. Newell,
Chairman Slaton Campaign Committee,
Atlanta, Ga.,

Dear Sir: I have your personal letter of August 11, in which you beg of me to take up immediately and vigorously, the attack of Judge Newt Morris upon the wife of Governor Slaton, which you denounce as baseless.

In the first place, you have made a mistake in sending your letter to one who has, after deliberate consideration of the issue, declined to enter the United States Senatorial race. I, therefore, decided that Hardwick, on account of his experience and ability, was better fitted for the office than your time-serving and side-stepping candidate; and in the second place I fail to see, after reading Judge Morris's letter to the governor, where he has attacked a daughter of the south, or in any way made an issue on Mrs. Slaton; but, in case he has, I consider this a matter between the husband of Mrs. Slaton and Judge Morris, and I think the man who drags out skirts as a shield for his shortcomings, in time of battle, as your candidate, through you, is seemingly doing, is not more worthy of the support of the people than a man who would make an attack on a daughter of Georgia.

You charge Mr. Hardwick, through Judge Morris, with making an attack on Mrs. Slaton, which attack, YOU YOURSELF manufactured, and in the same letter you make an appeal to every editor your letter was addressed to, to ignore qualifications for office and endorse and support the issue which you inject, which I think is untrue, being one of prejudice, malliciously founded, with a hope of "pulling off something" on Tom Hardwick. You cannot get away with that in South Georgia; and there are as many men to the square mile in this section who will protect women, rich or poor, when they need protection, as reside in your vicinity.

YOU YOURSELF are sacrificing the good name of the Governor's wife in a desperate effort to turn the Hardwick tide in the fast ebbing Slaton following. I despise such a cowardly, unprincipled trick, EVEN UNDER THE MOST STRINGENT CIRCUMSTANCES, such as I realize you face now, in getting things hope into your system, to make YOURSELF believe that you are going to "SEND SLATON TO THE SENATE." Like the cuttlefish, you are endeavoring to squirt printers' ink all over the state of Georgia so as to muddy the waters and CONCEAL THE FATAL SHORTCOMINGS OF YOUR CANDIDATE IT IS A SHAM ISSUE TO BOLSTER A SHAM CANDIDATE. Furthermore, in spite of the words, foolish and bombastic with which your turgid letter abounds, you fail to make a dent in the charge of Judge Morris, because it is apparent that Mr. Slaton's tax returns were utterly untrue and he stands convicted, even in your letter, not only as a dodger of taxes, but as being THE CHAMPION ARTFUL DODGER OF THE STATE. Your case is the same as the Irishman who, upon finding he had no following started a rough house to attract some attention.

I unhesitatingly decline your good offices, to excite me to fight for a fictitious cause. I APPEAL TO YOU to allow Governor Slaton to handle his own matter as I would handle such a situation where one so dear to me was concerned.

Very truly yours,
T. JEFF BAILEY,
Editor Waycross Evening Herald.

Reliability and Advertising

When a newspaper has built up an enviable reputation for care and accuracy in its editorial columns throughout a period of thirty-one years, that reputation re-acts powerfully to the benefit of the advertiser. Readers unconsciously assume that the advertising columns are to be depended on just as are the news and editorial columns.

For thirty-one years The Atlanta Journal has been one of the most carefully edited papers in America. In spite of the hurry and hustle of getting out an afternoon paper, it is rare that a serious misstatement of facts gets into The Journal news columns.

This character of accuracy and reliability has been won only by constant and painstaking watchfulness. But it has paid for itself many-fold in the respect and confidence of Journal readers, in increased returns to Journal advertisers, and in increased advertising for The Journal.

31 COUNTIES CLAIMED BY HARDWICK HEADQUARTERS

Gus Howard Says His Candidate Will Have 218 Votes at Macon Convention

That Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick will be nominated on the first ballot at the Macon convention for the short senatorial term; that he will carry eighty-one counties on August 19, and that he will have 218 votes in the convention, is the claim made by Gus Howard, in charge of Congressman Hardwick's headquarters.

Mr. Howard's statement follows:

"August 15th, 1914.

"In our final statement, we wish to say to Mr. Hardwick's friends throughout the state that there has been absolutely no doubt in our minds but that he has been leading in the race for the senate for the past four weeks. Friends and opponents alike agree that he has gained every day.

HIS OPPONENTS.

"While Mr. Hutchens will get a fair vote throughout the state, and some votes in nearly every county, it may be safely stated that he can hope for very few counties. Mr. Felder is running well in a limited territory, but his support is confined principally to the Second, Third, Eweifth and Sixth districts, with probably a chance to carry two counties in the Fourth, and a few counties in other sections of the state. Governor Slaton has lost heavily in the past three weeks and has had no chance during that time to win the primary. We believe all those who are at all familiar with political conditions in the state realize he has been defeated for several weeks past. Mr. Hardwick will be easily nominated on the first ballot, and has won the most brilliant victory in the history of Georgia politics in a speech-making campaign that has fully sustained his reputation as one of the finest wires and most brilliant and persuasive orators in the Democratic party. He has met a campaign of villificatio, misrepresentation and abuse, calmly, and his friends have been able to correct the stories circulated with facts which have convinced the Democrats of Georgia.

"When assailed on a charge that he had not been loyal to the administration and President Wilson, and had no influence in Washington, he presented as witnesses to testify in his behalf "Saxpard," the great American writer and student of affairs, and President Wilson himself, who testified to his loyalty and his ability.

"We have carefully gone over the correspondence of the campaign, county by county, and have had reports from hundreds of friends from the different counties who have called in person here, and we believe it is a very conservative estimate that Mr. Hardwick will carry at least eighty-one (81) counties, with two hundred eighteen (218) conention votes.

THE ESTIMATE.

Seventh district, 10 counties, 28 votes.
Ninth district, 9 counties, 24 votes.
Fifth district, 4 counties 14 votes.
(Including Fulton.)
Fourth district, 3 counties, 16 votes.
Eighth district, 8 counties, 18 votes.
Sixth district, 4 counties, 8 votes.
Tenth district, 11 counties, 28 votes.
Third district, 2 counties, 4 votes.
Twelfth district, 5 counties, 12 votes.
First district, 8 counties, 23 votes.
Eleventh district, 9 counties, 22 votes.
Second district, 6 counties, 20 votes.
Total: 81 counties, 218 votes.

"In a few counties not included in the above, particularly in the Third district, Mr. Hardwick's friends are now making a hard fight for him and write us that Mr. Hardwick's chances are good."

CANDIDATES FOR COUNCIL COMING ELECTION MANY

Out of Recent Published List, Two Names Were Omitted

Through a typographical error in The Journal yesterday afternoon the names of approximate candidates in the eighth and ninth wards were somewhat confused and one or two names were omitted.

In the eighth ward Edward H. Inman is a candidate for councilman unopposed to succeed Councilman W. G. Humphries, who has served the full time allowed by the charter and therefore is ineligible.

In the ninth ward Councilman W. D. White is a candidate for re-election and is opposed by J. L. Carpenter.

For alderman in the ninth ward, to succeed John S. Candler, there are three candidates—S. E. Davidson, Edgar Bishop and W. S. Lofts.

Alderman Candler is ineligible for re-election on account of having served the full time allowed by the charter.

Diamonds Sent On Approval

We gladly ship diamond jewelry to any one furnishing suitable references. No obligation to buy is incurred in sending for a selection of diamonds in this way, and if for any reason a purchase is not made, we pay all the express charges each way.

We can afford to do this, for our grades, weights, and prices are such that practically all shipments result in sales.

This method of submitting diamonds of course involves some trouble and expense, but we are repaid in the increased business that results. No more obligation to buy is incurred than when a customer comes to our diamond department in our store and asks to see our diamonds.

Write for booklet, "Facts About Diamonds." It contains full particulars about our plans and quotes net prices.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR BIG ANDERSON RALLY

Candidate for Governor Will Meet Friends at Forsyth Monday

The Fulton county friends and supporters of J. Randolph Anderson, candidate for governor, have completed arrangements for the big rally which they will hold at the Forsyth theater on Monday evening.

Although Mr. Anderson had canceled all his speaking engagements following the recent bereavement in his family, his friends here have prevailed upon him to make a short talk. He will not, however, deliver a set speech. Mr. Anderson, it is said, will briefly discuss the issues in the gubernatorial campaign, touch on his qualifications for the office and comment on the records of his opponents.

Martin F. Amorous, Albert Howell, Jr., and others will make short speeches. Wedemeyer's band will furnish the music. Ladies are cordially invited to attend.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15.—The death of Ching Sam, an aged Chinese, officially was reported as caused by bubonic plague today. This is the sixth death from the disease since the first case was discovered, June 27. Ching was affected with the septicaemic type and his was the second case of that type discovered. Several plague infected rats have been captured near where he resided, 911 Toulouse street.

COFFEE COUNTY CITIZENS INDORSE SENATOR SMITH

His Efforts to Finance Cotton by Federal Aid Are Praised

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DOUGLAS, Ga., Aug. 15.—The citizens of Coffee county, like those in all other sections of Georgia, duly appreciate the good work Senator Hoke Smith is doing to provide for federal aid for the financing of the cotton crop.

The following telegram has been sent from here to Senator Smith:

Douglas, Ga., Aug. 15, 1914.

"The good citizens of Coffee heartily endorse your efforts to relieve distressed conditions of the south. No organized fight against you here. County will give you large majority.

"W. C. Bryan, Lawson Kelly, R. C. Relihan, W. F. Sibbett, Moses Griffin, A. J. Meeks, H. L. Adams, F. N. Newson, F. M. Appleby, Geo. L. Touchstone, T. A. Wallace, T. J. Douglas, Melvin Tanner, R. B. Chastain, J. R. Overman, H. F. Brown, W. H. Mills.

MOTORCYCLIST INJURED IN CRASH WITH AUTO

A collision between an automobile and a motorcycle, in which the rider of the motorcycle was thought at first to be very badly hurt, occurred at 1:30 o'clock at Georgia and Capitol avenues.

The Grady ambulance was called, but when it arrived the cyclist was found to be only stunned. His machine was wrecked. He and the motorcycle were taken away in the automobile.

DORSEY DISAPPOINTS HIS CARTERSVILLE AUDIENCE

Hearers Plainly Resent Misrepresentation of Senator Hoke Smith

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—Hugh Dorsey, of Atlanta, addressed a large audience at the Grand Opera house Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the interests of the candidacy of Joseph M. Brown for the United States senate. The audience was composed largely of the same crowd that had listened to Bob Broyles at the courthouse at 12:30.

The address of Mr. Dorsey was plainly a disappointment to the majority who heard him. Most of the crowd went out of curiosity.

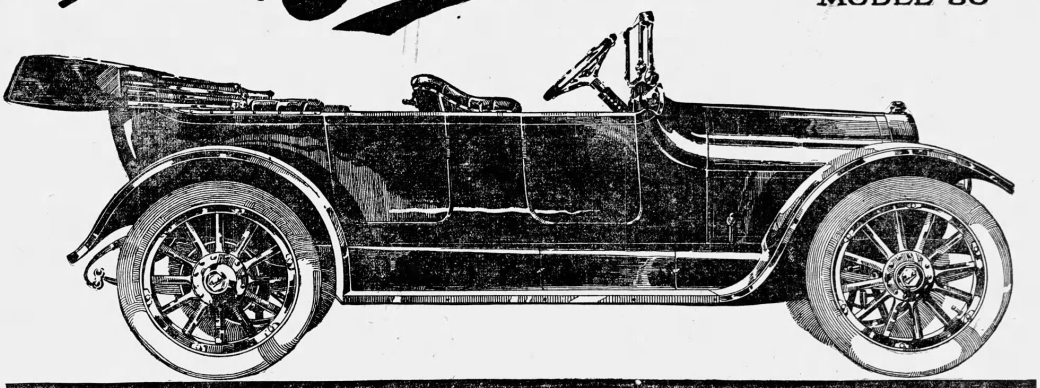
Mr. Dorsey's speech was altogether a bitter villification of Hon. Hoke Smith, and he never produced any evidence conclusive to back up his insinuations, but dealt in evasive language, vague insinuations and always gave it as his "opinion." Whenever records were referred to he would only refer to that part of same that would suit his argument.

He never in all his speech gave any reason why Mr. Brown should be elected, and had it not been known that he was here in the interest of Governor Brown his speech would not have disclosed whose cause he championed.

He misrepresented the facts about Hoke Smith' srecord and he seemed disposed to say anything, right or wrong, that would reflect upon Senator Smith.

To say that his visit here did Governor Brown no good and made many friends for Senator Smith would be fairly stating the case.

1915 Overland $1075
MODEL 80



The Latest and Greatest Overland of All

THE latest Overland—model 80—is now on exhibition at our local dealers. This is, by far, the handsomest and most artistic car we ever produced.

Again we have made expensive improvements, costly enlargements and incorporated numerous, high-priced refinements.

But we have not advanced the price.

This Overland has a beautiful, brand-new stream-line body. Its full sweeping streamlines blend and harmonize perfectly with the balance of the symmetrical design. All visible lines are absolutely clean, unbroken and uninterrupted.

The new crowned fenders, new rounded radiator, new hood slightly sloped, and flush U doors with disappearing hinges, contribute the additional touches of exterior grace and modishness which distinguish costly imported cars.

The new tonneau is much larger—both in width and in depth.

The new cushioned upholstery is also considerably deeper and softer.

This model is equipped with the finest and most reliable electric starting and electric lighting system. All switches, in a compact switch box, are conveniently located on the steering column. Thus in the driving position, without stretching forward or bending down, you start the car, drive the car and control the electric horn and all head, side, tail, and dash lights.

This car has left-hand drive and center control.

The tires are larger this year, being 34" by 4" all around. These tires can be quickly detached from the rims which are demountable. One extra rim furnished.

A Few of the 1915 Model 80 Features

Motor 35 h. p.
New full stream-line body
Instrument board in cowl dash
Individual front seats, high backs.
Tonneau, longer and wider
Upholstery, deeper and softer
Windshield, rain vision, ventilating type, built-in Crowned fenders
Electric starter
Electric lights
High-tension magneto
Thermo-syphon cooling
Five-bearing crankshaft
Rear axle, floating type
Springs, rear, 3-4 elliptic, extra long, underslung
Wheelbase, 114 inches
Larger tires, 34 inch x 4 inch
Demountable rims—one extra
Beautiful new Brewster green body finish
Complete equipment

This new Overland has longer, improved and underslung rear springs which make it one of the easiest riding cars in the world. It rides with remarkable smoothness, taking the ruts and rough spots with the ease of the highest priced cars.

Ignition is high tension magneto, indepent of starting and lighting system. It requires no dry cells.

Fundamentally the chassis remains as before. The front axle is larger; the wheels are larger; the frame heavier and stouter; gears are made of nickel steel; there are integral grease cups in spring bolts; and other mechanical refinements which are described in detail in our new catalogue.

There is the famous, powerful, speedy, snappy, economical and quiet 35 horsepower Overland motor; and a long wheelbase of 114 inches.

This car comes complete. Electric starter, electric lights, built-in windshield, mohair top and boot, extra rim, jeweled magnetic speedometer, electric horn, robe rail, foot rest and curtain box.

The latest and greatest Overland is ready for immediate delivery.

MASSENGALE CREDITS TECH TO JUDGE HARRIS

Declares Candidate for Governor Is Founder of Atlanta School

St. Elmo Massengale, chairman of Judge Nat E. Harris' Fulton county committee, has sent the following communication to The Journal with the request that it be printed.

"Editor Atlanta Journal.

"You have given space to a card by Martin Amorous denying that Judge Nat E. Harris, candidate for governor, is the founder of the Georgia School of Technology. We ask that you be so fair as to give us equal space to reply.

"Judge Harris is the founder of that school. The idea of a state institution for technical training took form in his mind in 1882. He announced for the legislature to realize it, was elected, and introduced on November 24, 1882, a resolution authorizing a committee to investigate the suggestion and make report. On Dec'l 8, 1882 the resolution was adopted by substitute proposed by Judge Harris, and the committee was appointed with him as chairman.

"That committee visited the various technical schools of the east and on July 24, 1883, made unanimously a report favoring the project. The committee's bill came up for passage December 14, 1883, was bitterly assailed (at every step of the hard fight had been from the first) and was defeated, Judge Harris ran for the legislature to succeed himself on this platform, was elected, renewed his fight, kept it up nearly two years against strenuous opposition, and won. On October 17, 1885, the bill that created Georgia School of Technology was signed by the governor and became law. But even then the fight against it did not cease. An attempt was made to enjoin the state treasurer from paying appropriation to establish the school. In the legislature of 1886-7 the school's enemies tried to repeal the law. As late as 1889-90 the opposition continued. Judge Harris was always the leader of the defense.

"In 1886 the commision was appointed to receive competitive bids and locate the school. It met October 19 of that year. Judge Harris was its chairman. Atlanta, Athens, Milledgeville, Macon, and Penfield were bidders. Atlanta won with a bid of $50,000 cash from the city, $50,000 more from the city in twenty annual installments, and $20,000 subscribed by citizens. A campus on North avenue was bought from the Peters Land company, proved too small, and was increased by a gift of four acres from Richard Peters, president of the land company. The school was opened formally on October 7, 1888. Judge Harris became the first chairman of its board of trustees, still holds that office and is the only surviving member of its original board.

"When the technological school was won by Atlanta there was already here a small trade school of local scope only established by S. M. Inman, Captain James W. English and other big-hearted Atlantians, to train poor boys as handicraftsmen and artisans. It was a fine piece of pioneer work. Another like it had been started by Dr. J. S. Hopkins, afterward president of Tech, in a small frame building adjoining his home at Emory college. Tentative efforts of the same kind had been undertaken by far-sighted citizens at various other places in the south. The Atlanta trade school was not the nucleus, nor even the germ, of the state Technological school. When the latter was located here, the former ceased to exist. See the facts.

"Many things are condoned in the name of politics, but it is asking too much of Georgia to ask that she forget the services of the man who caused to be erected within her borders one of her greatest assets, the foremost school of engineering in the south.

"With appreciation, I am,

"Yours very truly,

"ST. ELMO MASSENGALE,

"Chairman Fulton County Harris Club."

C. W. Bramlett Elected

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LINDALE, Ga., Aug. 15.—C. W. Bramlett was elected here today to fill the unexpired term of the late G. C. Floyd, as justice of the peace. He was unopposed, his opponent, E. W. West, withdrawing from the race several days ago.

IN THE LIMELIGHT---BY CURTIS

HON. ROSCOE LUKE DRAWS CHEERS FOR HOKE SMITH

Divides His Speaking Time at Valdosta With Judge J. W. Bennett

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 15.—Valdosta Saturday was treated to a double-barreled political meeting; Hon. Roscoe Luke, of Thomasville, speaking for Senator Hoke Smith and Judge John W. Bennett, of Waycross, handling the candidacy of J. Randolph Anderson for governor. Each speaker was well received. A feature of the morning was the absence of any vituperation or slander.

Without pre-arrangement the two speakers had been billed to address Valdosta voters at the same time and place. When this was discovered they held a conference and an agreement was reached to divide time. Judge Bennett spoke first.

Following Judge Bennett's speech Mr. Luke took the platform and spoke for about two hours. He was extremely courteous in his references to Joseph M. Brown. Most of his remarks were directed against Hugh M. Dorsey, the Atlanta solicitor. He showed how Senator Smith's re-election would materially benefit the national administration as well as the people of Georgia. He insisted that Senator Smith's speeches in the senate would be of more effect than cards from Joseph M. Brown.

Lowndes county will likely go for Smith by a heavy majority.

Judge Bennett made an excellent speech for J. Randolph Anderson and said both his opponents compliments. Between 2,500 and 3,000 people listened to the speakers.

WASHINGTIN, Aug 15.—The American consul at Gibraltar today notified the state department that the new German steamer Schnerfels, which runs from Calcutta to Boston and New York, has been brought to Gibraltar as a war prize.

SLATON HEADQUARTERS CONFIDENT OF RESULT

Campaign Manager Newell Claims 103 Counties as Certain in His Favor

On the eve of the primary the campaign headquarters of Governor John M. Slaton, candidate for the short term in the United States senate, issued through Alfred C. Newell the following statement:

"We consider the campaign practically closed and are absolutely confident as to the result in favor of Mr. Slaton. We have an active campaign committee of more than 4,000 men in every section of the state. These men are our friends. From them we have received reports recently which indicate an overwhelming result in Mr. Slaton's favor. In addition to our active campaign committee, we are in direct touch with more than 20,000 friends. If anyone doubts the accuracy of this statement, we are prepared to show them.

"According to our latest tabulation, we are certain of 103 counties. Of the remaining counties there are not over six in which we consider we have no chance.

"As everyone knows, Mr. Slaton is the only man running in every county. Mr. Hardwick and Mr. Felder have parceled out the counties. Mr. Slaton is a candidate over the whole state.

"We understand it is being claimed in the Kimball house lobby by the adherents of Mr. Hardwick that he will carry 81 counties, with a voting strength of 218 in convention. This includes the absurd claim of Fulton county. Even including Fulton, his adherents are claiming barely enough to elect. But the preposterous idea of his claim for Fulton is enough to bring a laugh from the entire state.

"Mr. Hardwick takes himself too seriously. The absurdity of the claim of his management as to Fulton indicates the hollowness of their entire claim.

"That Mr. Slaton will sweep the state I have no doubt."

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Buyers to Share in Profits
Lower Prices on Ford Cars

Effective from August 1, 1914 to August 1, 1915 and guaranteed against any reduction during that time:

Touring Car . . .	$490
Runabout	440
Town Car	690

F. O. B. Detroit, all cars fully equipped. (In the United States of America only)

Further, we will be able to obtain the maximum efficiency in our factory production, and the minimum cost in our purchasing and sales departments if we can reach an output of 300,000 cars between the above dates.

And should we reach this production, we agree to pay as the buyer's share from $40 to $60 per car (on or about August 1, 1915) to every retail buyer who purchases a new Ford car between August 1, 1914 and August 1, 1915.

For further particulars regarding these low prices and profit-sharing plan, see the nearest Ford Branch or Dealer.

We Can't Pull Ourselves Up By Pulling Other Folks Down

That's a Principle Everybody Knows Is Right!

When the opposition pitch their campaign on a plane of personal attack against Judge Harris it's a sign they're up against it.

Isn't that the truth? Doesn't it show they're hard put to it to help themselves?

Here, in the last lap of the race, they'll tell you he isn't fit to be governor. They say he voted wrong in the legislature 32 years ago on two questions. Thirty-two years ago!

That's digging deep and desperately, isn't it, to go back 32 years? They've gone over his record with a fine tooth comb and that's what they find! His life is an open book.

For two months Judge Harris has been campaigning up and down this state, standing on his record, inviting criticisms of it.

Why hasn't the opposition been heard from before now? Where have their charges been? Why haven't they come out like the honorable men they must be, and made these charges while he had opportunity to answer them on the stump.

He stands on his record.

Judge Harris hasn't been chunking any rocks at anybody in this campaign. He started out to give his opponents fair play, the right to argue their case before you, the voters, on their own merits. He asked the same privilege for himself. He's been making that argument---and making it so well that Georgia is going to elect him her next governor.

Now at this late day he's not disposed to change his tactics.

The Fertilizer Attack

In a card headed, "Judge Nat E. Harris Worked and Voted Against Georgia's Farmers," the point is made that Judge Harris voted against the Ray Fertilizer Bill, when he was in the Legislature of 1882-83. In this card the amazing statement is made that "There was no inspection law then in force to protect" the farmers of this State.

This statement is untrue. By the Act of 1874 it was made unlawful to sell or offer for sale in this State any fertilizer before the same had been inspected and analyzed.

Supplement to Code of 1873, Sec. 245 and 246; Georgia Laws 1874, pp. 7 and 8.

By the Act of 1877 all fertilizers were required to be branded with the true analysis thereof. It was made a misdemeanor for any person to offer for sale or distribution in this State fertilizers without having a brand or tag attached showing the analysis thereof.

This analysis was made a guaranty by the manufacturer or seller that the fertilizer contained the ingredients indicated thereby and the percentages thereof therein named.

Supplement to Code of 1873, Sec. 247, 248 and 249; Georgia Laws 1877, p. 37.

A perusal of these statutes will completely demonstrate the falsity of the statement in this card that there was no inspection law in force in this State in 1882-83 to protect the farmers against worthless fertilizers.

The Ray Bill provided that although the fertilizer had been inspected and analyzed, and notwithstanding the fact that it contained the ingredients and came up to the analysis, which the seller guaranteed, the buyers of such fertilizers could still plead failure of consideration and get out of paying for the very thing for which they contracted and which they got. This was the Ray Bill.

Judge Harris voted against this bill because he thought it was wrong for a person to get exactly what he bought, and then be permitted to plead that the thing so bought was worthless.

A distinguished crowd of Georgians voted with him against this bill. Among them were C. L. Bartlett, now a Congressman from Georgia; C. R. Pendleton, late Editor of the Macon Telegraph; M. V. Calvin, former Director of the Experiment Farm of Georgia, and a farmer; W. A. Little, afterwards Judge of the Supreme Court of Georgia; Robert Falligant, afterwards Judge of the Eastern Judicial Circuit; Col. W. H. Hulsey, former Ordinary Fulton County; Col. Z. T. Zachry, a distinguished soldier and farmer, of Henry County; Dan. W. Rountree, Thomas Paulk, Dennis Paulk, H. M. McIntosh, H. A. Jenkins, Maj. C. E. McGregor, now member of the State Senate of Georgia; W. L. Peek, one of the most distinguished farmers in the State; M. P. Reese, C. A. Robbe, C. R. Pringle, the great prohibition leader and farmer; B. F. Barksdale, James W. Barksdale, E. F. Hoge and Thos. E. Watson of McDuffie and others. The house Journal, November 14, 1882, pages 196-197, shows that the report of the committee on agriculture was also against the bill. In the senate the following fall (see Senate Journal, August 10, 1883, pages 213-214,) the senate agriculture committee also reported against the bill—so you see both the house and the senate vindicated Judge Harris' vote and both committees agreeing, the bill was killed. For several years after that the Ray Bill was an issue in every legislature. It NEVER WAS PASSED.

Instead, the legislature IMPROVED THE EXISTING FERTILIZER laws just as Judge Harris knew they ought to be improved. By the way—at the Forsyth Theatre the other night Judge Lavender R. Ray, of Atlanta, author of that bill, sat on the stage with his close friend, Judge Harris.

The 12 Per Cent Attack

It is also alleged that "Judge Nat E. Harris, Macon's Candidate for Governor, Worked and Voted to Increase Georgia's Legal Rate of Interest from 8 to 12 per cent."

Without explanation this charge is calculated to injure Judge Harris. In 1881 there was an acute depression and panic in this country. There were no banks then in the rural districts. Farmers had to pay 8 per cent interest and 20 per cent commissions in order to obtain loans, making the money cost them 28 per cent per annum; and it was almost impossible to get money even at these exorbitant rates. It was thought that the farmers would be enabled to get money at a cost not to exceed 12 per cent, if the rate of interest was fixed at that percentage. With this end in view, Judge Harris introduced and voted for the bill mentioned in this card.

His purpose was not to injure the farmers, but to enable them to get money at a cheaper rate of interest than they were then paying.

You know the price of money is subject to the law of supply and demand as much as cotton, wheat or corn. Besides Judge Harris, the following distinguished citizens of Georgia, who were then members of the Legislature, voted for this measure:

Name:	County:
C. L. Bartlett	Bibb
R. C. Humber	Putnam
W. T. Gary	Richmond
M. V. Calvin	Richmond
C. R. Pendleton	Lowndes
C. R. Pringle	Washington
C. A. Robbe	Richmond
Thos. Eason	Telfair
Robt. Falligant	Chatham
J. M. DuPree	Macon
J. M. McBryde	Haralson
W. N. Spence	Mitchell
H. A. Jenkins	Putnam
Jno. McRae	Montgomery

and others.

Among the supporters of this measure were R. C. Humber, M. V. Calvin, C. R. Pringle and Jno. McRae, who were large farmers and who would not have voted for such measure to injure their own class.

Then they charge, too, that Judge Harris has been out of touch with affairs in Georgia for the past quarter of a century!

Make 'em tell you what they mean by that, Mr. Voter. Out of touch! Do they mean he hasn't been in the legislature? Does a man have to be a member of the legislature in order to be closely identified with what's going on? Not at all. Judge Harris has been associated with every legislature that has met since he left the Bibb delegation. He has been a constant counselor of legislators and governors; a lawyer engaged in active practice; a champion of education and a tireless worker in its behalf as trustee of Tech, the university, Wesleyan, the state normal, others. It's an affront to your intelligence to aim for your vote with a puerile charge like this.

Judge Harris is running on his record as a soldier, a statesman, a jurist, an educator, a Christian gentleman. He said in his Atlanta speech that he had rather not be governor than stoop to throw mud. I honor him for it. Have we answered about those votes?

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

By W. S. Cousins, Editor The American Banker

American Financial Conditions Excellent, Though Calling for Extreme Caution—European War Has Upset the Machinery of Trade, Commerce and Finance—Great Opportunity for Development of Foreign Trade Resources—Our Duty to South America.

NEW YORK, August 15.—From a series of reports from special correspondents in all the important monetary centers we find such a unanimity of favorable and hopeful sentiment that it would be useless to attempt to discriminate or to classify according to location. The underlying tone is one of confidence in our own financial security; of regret and horror for the ravaging spectacle that is devastating the countries of Europe; and with the positive conviction that out of the ruins and remains of European empires will arise a new opportunity for the propagation of American trade and industry. Already our South American neighbors are calling us to step in the breach made vacant by reason of European belligerency, and to supply the necessities which have hitherto come from the peoples on the other side of the Atlantic.

In New York the chief reason for regret lies in the continued closing of the stock exchange, and the temporary paralysis of practically every instrument of foreign exchange and foreign trade. The former is of greatest economic importance to those whose means of livelihood is furnished by the exchange, and the latter to business concerns all over the United States having in any degree an interest in our trade with foreign countries, and not one doubt should be lost in relying their unfortunate consequences.

Local financial conditions are satisfactory, and already credit is becoming freer than it was a week ago and arrangements of very important scope are under way looking to the reopening of international credits in a way which will facilitate the movement of grain and other merchandise. All sides of the big problem of re-establishing trade currents across the seas are being considered, and many forces are co-operating to this same end. The British government is undertaking to assume the war risks on grain shipments in English bottoms; the question of opening the way to the withdrawal of foreign-built ships has received Federal sanction, and bankers here are laying their plans for the financing of the shipments when they become physically possible. Meanwhile step by step the business left unfinished when the stock exchange closed a week ago Thursday is being cleared up, the stock exchange committee's ruling regarding the calling up of differences on borrowed stock being a step in this direction. Some little exchange is becoming available at lower rates than the maximum paid last week, and, more important as a sign of the improvement in our own position is the larger purchases which are now being made of commercial paper. The banks as last Saturday's clearing house statement showed, had to call heavily on their reserves principally to meet the gold outflow which was in full swing up to a week ago. But this is a much less serious matter than it would be were it not for the means now at the disposal of the banks to obtain bank notes against their assets to satisfy the seasonal demand for currency. Ordinarily a rise in the grain market would be regarded as reflecting conditions unfavorable for the financial markets, but this week's further sharp advance in wheat carried no such inference. That rise was due to the anticipation of the resumption of grain shipments, and that is something which will be distinctly helpful, and not hurtful, in this market. The banks and bankers, the shippers and receivers of grain and incidentally would provide material to use as cover for the obligations which we have to meet abroad and for which there is no present way of making remittance.

A number of favorable factors reported in the Wall street district this week at prices not varying very greatly from the closing quotations of July 30, which was the date of the last session of the exchange. The stock exchange is not insisting upon a complete suspension of business as between members or other interests, as it is recognized that in the interest of necessity be situations where transactions are absolutely necessary. However, the general ruling is to leave the necessity for transactions of this character entirely to the honor of the members of the exchange. That is to say, members are themselves to be the judges of whether such transactions are necessary or whether they should be avoided. The one great danger appears to be the publicity to be given quotations of securities thus reported sold. Frequently such transactions are readily arranged which would give an entirely erroneous idea of the market quotations and would not furnish a reliable basis for any statement of what real sales could be made at. Thus the managers of the stock exchange are wisely discouraging the negotiation of every class of exchange.

Chicago, St. Louis (the two other central reserve districts), as well as Pittsburg Cleveland, Omaha, Louisville, Atlanta, Washington and Detroit, report a slow but steady adjustment to new conditions, and but for the slight increase in borrowing prohibited no special evidence of stringency or upheaval. Accommodation is always forthcoming when the needs are legitimate and the security ample, and on the whole, interior cities have, to a large extent, felt themselves immune from any of the ills that befall their neighbors in the financial centers.

DEVELOPING OUR FOREIGN TRADE RESOURCES.

The outbreak of hostilities in Europe has shown how completely is America at the mercy of foreign shipping facilities for the conveying of our products to European markets. We are now brought face to face with the sorry spectacle of almost complete congestion of our seaports with goods intended for foreign export but lacking the ships to convey them thither. The admission of foreign-built ships to American registry may relieve the situation to a limited extent, but in the main the problem is not for the present only but for the future as well is the rehabilitation of our merchant marine on such a scale as to restore our prestige in the maritime world. Thus will we be assured of an increase in foreign trade when other nations are at a standstill, instead of the pitiable curtailment which now exists. There is now an enormous demand for our foodstuffs and similar articles of wearing apparel in the belligerent countries of Europe, and the prices thereof would add greatly to the incomes of our farmers, three and a half millions of whom are employed in agriculture, and manufacturers, but we must have ships. Nations themselves must fight to the title of mistress of the sea before we can, with safety, entrust our merchandise to the tender mercies of foreign shippers.

Perhaps in no direction has the index finger of trade pointed with such precision during the past few years as to the trade of South American continent. The annual imports of eight countries of South America is one billion dollars per year, more than half of which is supplied by European manufacturers. It is estimated on authoritative sources that British exports to South America in 1912, the latest year for which details are available, amounted to nearly $250,000,000, including both domestic products and foreign and colonial merchandise re-exported. Germany's exports to and South America in 1911, the latest year for which details are available, amounted to about $150,000,000 in value; those of France between $70,000,000 and $80,000,000; Belgium, between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000, and Austria approximately $10,000,000, the figures being necessarily in round terms. This makes for the five countries now actively at war total exports to South America of over $500,000,000, or fully one-half of the total imports of that grand division.

This is what the director-general of the Pan-American Union, in sending an appeal to America's business men, characterizes as the "golden opportunity" for aggressive action, says of the situation:

"The United States has a grave duty and responsibility as well as a great opportunity in its relations to South America. Figures just compiled show that the ten countries of South America proper last year bought and sold products valued at $2,120,000,000. Europe's share of this trade was $1,400,000,000. The major portion of this trade is now temporarily cut off, blocking the principal ports of South America practically in a condition of absolute blockade. Moreover, as long as the European nations are at war and British bottoms, now suddenly withdrawn from the seas, it can not be doubted how acute the situation is and how something must be done without delay to relieve it. Quick and comprehensive action by the commercial and financial interests of the United States will earn the lasting gratitude of South America and place them in a position of great permanent advantage with every South American country concerned."

This is to say that our South American trade is as moral as well as economic, and in the last analysis is as profitable to American shippers. There is an opportunity for our merchants to follow the steps already taken by our bankers in opening up more direct communication with the great southern republics and thus usher in a new era in American trade and finance.

MR. J. M. RAINEY DIES AT HOME IN EATONTON

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., Aug. 15.—J. M. Rainey died Saturday morning. He held several important Putnam county offices. He was fifty-eight years of age.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edward Dickinson, Hazele Rainey; a son, Harold Rainey, three sisters and two brothers.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at Salem church.

French Tradesman Given Death Sentence as Spy

Conviction of death by a French courtmartial in the present war was announced today. It was propounced on a French tradesman, whose name has not been disclosed. It was proved that he sent reports on aviation, the defense of the country and on wireless station connections on Eiffel tower, to a French secret service agent, believing him to be a German spy.

WANT ALL RELIEF SHIPS TO BE REGARDED NEUTRAL

United States Asks Position of Warring Nations on Chartered Vessels

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The United States government has notified the powers of Europe that it will regard as neutral vessels chartered for the sole purpose of repatriating American citizens stranded in Europe," and has asked the belligerent governments for a declaration on the subject.

The government took this position, it is believed, after indications from some of the warring European powers that ships bearing Americans would not be molested.

Dispatches from Berlin today said the German government would endeavor to neutralize any vessel bearing refugee Americans and it is known the Austrian government has sought definite assurance that other powers would regard as neutral German-owned ships now in Austrian ports ready to take Americans home. No objection is expected from England and state department officials look on the success of the project as assured.

Article 5 of the Hague convention to which the European powers are signatories says:

"Vessels charged with religious, scientific and philanthropic missions are exempt from capture."

INCLUDES FOREIGN REFUGEES.

This includes foreign refugees, in the opinion of the American government. With the neutralization of ships owned by belligerents and with the facilities previously provided for the relief of Americans, the problem of bringing Americans home from Europe is believed to have been solved.

The most immediate need of ships is in German ports. Americans who have been detained in Germany because of lack of railway facilities during the period of mobilization can now leave. The following announcement was made in this connection by Secretary Bryan today:

"The department of state has received cable advices from the American ambassador at Berlin that the German government is permitting American citizens to leave the empire as fast as train service can be provided, and that government blockades any port, Americans will be allowed to leave."

From London Ambassador Reed also came advices that the American cruiser Tennessee bearing gold for Americans, would be allowed to land at a German port.

SITUATION RELIEVED.

Reports from American ambassadors and diplomats indicate that the situation has been considerably relieved by the resumption of trans-Atlantic service of the liners Lusitania, Mauretania, Olympic and Saxonia. The restoration of these, state will help solve the transportation problem, though some steamship authorities estimate that 100,000 Americans await passage.

The demands of stranded Americans for ready money have been relieved somewhat. Banks now are honoring letters of credit, held by American travelers.

farmer is being most seriously affected and for that reason they have determined to stand by him to the extent of their power.

It is pointed out that while the effect of the war will be the closing of the European mills, an exigency which would sadly curtail the export of the raw cotton, that this decline in prices can be checked and even held at a profit insuring level, through an increasing demand for cotton goods in this country.

Labor leaders believe too, that their movement, while affecting them only at this time, will be joined in by the farmers and others in every walk of life. The possibilities of the project are far-reaching and enormous and it is practically certain that a tremendous following will co-operate.

The resolutions follow:

The resolution which has already been adopted by the chapels of the three cotton mills, dailies and others in the city, is as follows:

Whereas, It has been stated that the European war will interfere seriously with the exportation of the cotton of this country; and

Whereas, We believe it is our duty to aid our farmer brothers in every way possible in a crisis of this character, and we wish to make our aid as substantial as it is possible, and

Whereas, It has been stated that the addition of just a few inches more in length to a garment in China will cause the exportation of thousands of additional bales of cotton to that country, and

Whereas, There are many garments—of both male and female wear—which we now wear made of other material which we could just as well purchase of cotton material, it is hereby

Resolved by the chapel of The Atlanta Journal that from this date, wherever possible and without reservation, we pledge ourselves to prefer to those cotton-made goods in preference to those of other materials for every necessity in our families, and we ask every organization and person in sympathy with this movement to adopt the same plan, and in this way we will use a large amount of the cotton which is kept from our European sister countries through the war, and we help our farmer brothers and at the same time use a real bona fide home product.

issued except for cotton actually stored. The original receipt shall include a true statement of the date and place of its issuance, the location of the warehouse, the weight of the cotton and other means of identification. The certificates shall constitute a lien on the cotton.

The bill further provides that the licensed warehouses shall keep correct records of all the cotton stored and held therein and shall make reports to the secretary of agriculture at such times as he may require. The bill contains a provision requiring the secretary of agriculture to have inspection made of any cotton, to ascertain whether the cotton is in fact of the grade specified.

The secretary of agriculture is authorized to revoke or suspend any license issued by the government under the terms of this bill, if the provisions of the law are violated. He must publish, from time to time, the results of his investigations of the warehouses, the names of the owners and the locations of the warehouses.

An appropriation of fifty thousand dollars is provided to defray the expenses for carrying into effect the provisions of this act.

walking along the highway, and was taken into custody. She denied participation in the affair.

The negro displayed fiendish ingenuity in arranging his victims for the slaughter. All were in the dining room when he lighted a rug soaked in gasoline in front of the door, according to William Weston, the least seriously hurt. In a moment the room was in flames. But one means of egress, a window, was left.

Mrs. Borthwick was the first to be struck through the window. The negro, waiting outside, struck her down one blow, crushing her skull. He then dragged her body outside and waited for the next. Little John Cheney followed. His head was split open. Then Burdell fell.

"As each put his head out," said Weston, "the negro struck, killing or stunning his victim. I was the last. The axe struck me on the neck and knocked me down, but left me conscious. I got up and ran, the negro after me. Then I fell and felt he had gone."

By this time, Weston said, the bungalow was in flames. Neighbors appeared and later, officials of the town. A search was made for Carlton and his wife. The woman's apprehension soon followed, but no trace of her husband was found.

The fire was confined to the bungalow and when the flames were controlled, neighbors, many of whom formerly had been bitter against Mrs. Borthwick, joined the posse in search of the murderer.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Frank Lloyd Wright was in his office when he received a long distance telephone message informing him of the tragedy. He was overcome and declined to discuss it. Later he left for Spring Green.

Wright is one of the best known architects in the United states. He was estranged from his wife several years ago after a scandal which linked his name with that of Mrs. Nanah Borthwick Cheney, wife of a neighbor in Oak Park, a suburb. Later Mr. Cheney obtained a divorce and Mrs. Cheney and Wright made several trips together.

Two years ago Wright built a bungalow at Spring Green, Wis., which was called "Love's Cottage," by neighbors, and the architect and Mrs. Cheney were reported to have made frequent visits to the house in the woods.

The affairs of the Wright and Cheney families first became public in 1909 when Mrs. Cheney and Mr. Wright went to Europe. On their return Mrs. Cheney did not go to her home in Oak Park where she had left her children and her husband. Mr. Wright, however, went to his family and reports of forgiveness ran current.

A wall separating the Wright home into two apartments was erected. Mrs. Wright occupied one and Wright the other. The children divided their time with the parents. Then, after a month or so, a reconciliation was affected and the dividing wall was torn down.

Cheney brought suit for divorce charging adultery and August 5, 1911, an absolute decree was granted. Mrs. Cheney made no defense, and Wright's name was not mentioned.

Shortly before Christmas Wright's bungalow at Spring Green was completed and just before the holidays, terming their trip a "spiritual hegira," Mrs. Chéney and Wright left together for Wisconsin.

Friends at that time issued many public statements defending his course in leaving his Oak Park home.

Mrs. Wright took no steps toward a divorce but with her children, the oldest of whom was then a man grown, remained alone in the Chicago suburb.

Cheney was remaried in 1912. About this time the two Cheney children, Martha and John, joined Mrs. Cheney at the Spring Green home and have since lived there.

CAN'T FORCE FOREIGNERS TO GO HOME TO FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—In answer to many vessels for information from naturalized citizens and foreign residents as to conditions under which they may be returned to their native lands for military service, Secretary Bryan today issued a statement saying the United States was not a part to any treaties under which such persons might be compelled to return for military service and saying there was no way in which they might be forced to join the armies so long as they remain in the United States.

PAIR HELD FOR WHITE SLAVERY INVESTIGATION

Husband Follows Wife From Charleston and Causes Arrest After an All-Day Chase

Led by an indignant husband from Charleston, who claimed that his wife was lured from home by her alleged affinity, city detectives trailed Mrs. H. G. English, the two-year-old son, Horace, and O. A. Sanford, mechanic, who says he lives in Columbus, from 9 o'clock Saturday morning until 9 o'clock Saturday night, when the trio were arrested in front of the city hall as they were about to board a river car.

An hour later the woman, small and blonde and blue-eyed, was in the care of Matron Bohnefeld at police station with her little son, in default of $200 bond, and the police announced that both she and Sanford, whose bond was placed at $500, would be held for a white slavery investigation by federal authorities.

English, the husband, declared that he would stay in Atlanta to push the charges and endeavor to regain possession of the boy.

"Six weeks ago," English told reporters, "when my wife was visiting relatives in Macon, she met Sanford and became infatuated with him. He went to Birmingham and tried to get her to meet him there, but she came home to Charleston. He telegraphed her to join him but I got hold of the wire. I think he came to Charleston later and then went to Atlanta. From Atlanta he must have sent her money for her railroad fare, because she skipped out Thursday with Horace.

"I knew she must have come to Atlanta, so I left Charleston immediately and happened to see them in front of the postoffice.

"The man was laughing and talking to my wife and had my boy tossing him up in his arms. I wanted to choke the fellow right then, but instead I appealed to the police."

Detectives Rosser and Black were put on the case and discovered that Sanford and Mrs. English had been living together at 62 Walton street. This, both admit, say officers.

The pair, fearful they were being watched, must have reached them, for later Saturday morning they told the people at the rooming house they were going to Newnan, Ga. Instead they moved their belongings to 111 Walton, all the time closely watched by Rosser and Black.

Late Saturday evening, while Black watched the house, Rosser trailed Mrs. English, her son and the boy most Sanford at Five Points and followed them to Marietta and Forsyth street, where the chase began.

The police say that Sanford has a wife and children in Atlanta, but the only charge he is booked with as yet is disorderly and immoral conduct, as United States Officer C. J. Baley could not be reached Saturday night.

AUCTION AT CORNELIA OF 100 RESIDENCE LOTS

People From All This Section Are Invited to Attend Tuesday Morning

The sale at auction of a hundred residence lots in Park View Heights, Cornelia, Ga., next Tuesday gives a fine opportunity to acquire a home site in one of Georgia's most delightful and progressive towns.

Cornelia has grown wonderfully since peach and apple orchards began to cover its surrounding hill slopes and to bring riches to those who own them.

The natural beauty and charm the Cornelia orchard belt not only shows immense commercial orchards, cultivated with scientific skill and beautiful trees tended with watchful care, but it shows it shows homes equipped with every city convenience finished in hardwood and surrounded by lawns, gardens and hedges which delight the eye and acquaint the mind with the cultured people who are making them home.

Park View Heights have been laid out by an experienced landscape engineer from the residence section of Col. J. C. Wade's large property.

The lots which will be sold at auction Tuesday morning at the Park View Heights road in Cornelia with city water and electric lights available.

The terms are high and each one has been laid out with a view to having a home built upon it.

Cornelia has grown to it a large number of outside families during the past few years and its hospitable people give a hearty welcome to newcomers.

So we will be in view, and we desire always uppermost in Waycross to make all visitors have a good time, Inman and John, joined Mrs. Cheney at the Spring Green home and have since lived there.

LAST CONFEDERATE IN U .S. ARMY RETIRED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The senate today passed a bill to place Lieutenant Colonel Junius L. Powell, the only remaining officer in the army who served in the Confederate army, on the retired list as a brigadier-general.

Among other Confederate soldiers who have been retired as brigadier generals were General Joseph Wheeler and General Fitzhugh Lee. Powell was taken into the army as an assistant surgeon by special act of congress in 1879.

HERE'S NEW COURSE OF STUDY, GRAMMAR GRADES

Was Adopted by Board of Education Yesterday Afternoon and Appears Here in Full

The city board of education yesterday adopted a new course of study for the grammar grades of the Atlanta public schools.

The new course of study is made necessary by the board's action several months ago in reducing the grammar grades from eight to seven.

This reduction will not deprive the pupils of the schools of anything they received under the old eight-grade system, because the new course simply boils down the work formerly done in eight years to a course covering seven years.

This saving of one year in the lives of the younger generation will mean a tremendous economic contribution to the life of the community.

The new course of study was carefully considered by the board for weeks, in conference with Superintendent Slaton, Assistant Superintendent Landrum and the principals and teachers of the schools. It is considered a splendid course of study in every way.

The board also has adopted a new course for the Boys' and Girls' High schools, the English Commercial High school and the Tech High school, but these are not yet in shape to be given out for publication.

The course for the grammar grades is as follows:

FIRST GRADE.

Basal—Riverside primer and First reader; Supplementary—Free & Treadwell's primer and First reader; the Natural Method primer; Hutton's "Healthy and Feeling;" Arnold Ulgas Its First reader.

Materials—One bottle library paste, one foot rule, graduated to quarter inch; one box colored crayons, writing paper with line one inch apart, one pair pointed scissors.

REPORTS SHOW INFLATION OF FOOD PRICES UNJUST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Preliminary reports today to the department of justice in the nation-wide crusade against inflation of food prices, in many cases declared prices were without justification and that conditions warranted a federal inquiry.

A new factor entered the situation today when word came from Kansas City that there was no beet sugar on the market, although California refineries were to have started manufacturing beet sugar August 1.

"There is no apparent reason why beet sugar should not be on the market at this time," officers of the department of justice announced. The price of sugar has been raised in various cities.

The district attorney and a special agent working in San Francisco have prevented an increase in the freight rates to foreign ports on shipments of canned goods.

HOKE SMITH'S EFFORTS APPRECIATED IN ATLANTA

Chamber of Commerce Adopts Resolutions Commending Smith-Lever Legislation

Resolutions recommending action along the lines of the legislation proposed by Senator Hoke Smith and Congressman Lever have been adopted by the committee of fifteen appointed from the Atlanta chamber of commerce to consider the financial situation arising out of the war in Europe.

Permitting banks ang currency associations to use cotton or warehouse receipts for cotton as collateral for the circulation of notes; the immediate payment in full of Georgia's allotment of government deposits; the addition to this allotment of sums to be paid September 1 and September 15, and immediate steps on the part of the federal government to secure ocean transportation for the country's products, are among the recommendations in the resolutions.

Upon the adoption of the resolutions, a copy of them was sent to Senator Hoke Smith, who responded by telegraph, pledging his co-operation in the matter.

The resolutions in full are as follows:

"Whereas, the situation in the cotton-producing states, brought about by war conditions abroad, is serious and financial assistance is needed immediately to protect the situation; therefore, be it

"Resolved:

"First, That the most practical aid can be extended by the government through the banks and by the banks to the farmer.

"Second, That we recommend an amendment to the provisions of the Aldrich-Vreeland bill as heretofore amended, permitting banks, members of currency associations, to offer as collateral as a basis of circulation notes secured by cotton or warehouse receipts for cotton.

"Third, That we reccommend the full allotment in the way of government deposits to Georgia banks be paid immediately;

"Fourth, That the government increase allotments made to Georgia banks, this additional allotment to be made available, say half September 1 and half September 15;

"Fifth, That the government use its best offices immediately towards furnishing and securing ocean transportation and lend its facilities in such way as may seem expedient and proper towards maintaining such shipments;

"Sixth, That we heartily indorse and commend to the fullest extent the efforts which our members senators and congressmen are putting forth in order to protect the interests of the south. Further, we commend in the highest terms the broad and able manner in which the treasury department is viewing the situation."

Senator Smith's telegram to the committee upon receiving the resolutions follows:

"Your letter notifying me of appointment committee to consider ways and means to meet situation caused by European war received. I fully appreciate your action and will be glad to co-operate with your committee at any time."

GOV. BROWN'S MANAGER GIVES OUT PREDICTION

Says Candidate Will Carry Not Less Than 91 Counties

J. R. Terrell, campaign manager for former governor Brown, gave out a statement Saturday afternoon in which he expressed the opinion that Governor Brown would carry not less than 91 counties on Wednesday.

In part Mr. Terrell's statement follows:

"Our advice from all parts of the state confirm the vley frequently presented during the progress of the campaign, that Governor Brown is going to be elected United States senator for the long term, and arriving at this estimate of the contest we have been led by a cautious desire to look at the campaign from every possible viewpoint. It is going to be very similar to the fight won in 1908, in that Senator Smith is strong in the towns, whereas the country vote in many parts of the state is almost one way, and for Governor Brown.

"Weather conditions are such as to bring out the full country vote, and with this we feel sure of carrying a very decided majority of the small counties, a least an even break for Governor Brown in the votes represented by the 26 four-vote counties, and 6 six-vote counties.

"Without any desire to boast we feel very confident that the Governor Brown will not fall short of 90 counties."

ATLANTA MAN WINS PRIZE AT WINDOW TRIMMERS' CONTEST

JOHN C. MACKEY.

John C. Mackey, Head Display Man at Rich's, Carries Off First Honor at Convention in Chicago

Competing with 700 window trimmers from all parts of the world, John C. Mackey, of Atlanta, head window trimmer for M. Rich & Bros. Co., carried off first prize in the convention of the International Association of Display Men, held in Chicago at the Auditorium hotel August 2 to August 7.

Mr. Mackey's associates at Rich's are naturally very proud of his winning this prize. The prize was given on the strength of eight photographs of Mackey's window displays in Rich's store. Only two first prizes were given for general merchandise displays, one of which was won by Mackey: twenty-five prizes were the total number given for all kinds of displays.

"There were so many photographs of the work of the 700 window trimmers entered for prizes that it took two drays to cart them away from the hotel after the contest," said Mr. Mackey.

"The prize-winning pictures were kept; from them will be made stereopticon slides; these will be sent to the many branch locals of the association. They will be shown as models at meetings of these locals."

PLANS ATLANTA LOCAL.

Mr. Mackey said he is planning to organize a local in Atlanta.

Window trimmers from as far as Japan came to this international convention, said Mr. Mackey, but the European members failed to show up because of the war.

"We received cablegrams from them, saying there was no chance to get away," said Mr. Mackey.

Aside from the advantages gained in the acquisition of new ideas and in the competition of work from all over the world at the conventions of the international association, display men who are members all stand for high ideals in window advertising, said Mr. Mackey.

"The association and the locals all over the country are always fighting fraudulent advertising," he said. "Some of the unscrupulous cheaper stores will put out displays—as, for example, when a Chicago store advertised in its windows "all silk" shirts for $1.49. The shirts were not all silk; they had cotton on the inside of the cuffs and in other places. This brought a protest from the Chicago local of our association. In every town, the locals stand for conscientious and truthful advertising. And, as a matter of fact, in urging stores to abandon all fakes, we are simply helping the store. take ad never paid and never will."

RICH'S PROUD OF HIM.

They are very proud of Mr. Mackey at Rich's. He was trained in that store; he began as a bundle wrapping boy in 1902. Then, working his way up, he was made assistant to the display man seven years ago. Later, he was himself made display man, with assistants under him. In winning his prize at the convention, he was in competition with the best talent from New York and Chicago and other big cities.

"Our display work here is done by a separate and distinct department," he said. "We have to do many things that are not dreamed of by the person who looks into the completed windows. We have to keep ahead of all the styles —not up with them, but ahead of them —so that, when merchandise and goods of advance style come to Atlanta, we already know all about them and are able to advertise them properly.

"The chief object of window display is to show the people the latest we have in the store—all the novelties, all the new things."

PAULDING CO. APPRECIATES WORK DONE BY SMITH

Citizens Declare He Is Man to Keep in Senate at Present Time

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

HIRAM, Ga., Aug. 15.—The voters of Paulding county are fully aware of the great work which Senator Hoke Smith is doing to prevent a slump in the price of cotton because of the European war and they will show their appreciation of his faithful work on August 19.

A strong Hoke Smith club has been organized here. Following is the petition circulated and those who signed it:

"We, the undersigned qualified voters of Paulding county, realizing the very valuable service that Hon. Hoke Smith has rendered to the people of his state and nation in the United States senate; and realizing that at this critical time it is a matter of supreme importance to keep our very ablest men in the service of the nation on account of the European war, and the resultant demoralizing effect of the same on our agricultural, financial and manufacturing interests, feel that from the standpoint of public expediency, we ought to reward our faithful and efficient public servant, Hon. Hoke Smith, with another term in the United States senate, and to this end we hereby pledge ourselves, and agree to support him at the polls on August 19."

FELDER CLAIMS VICTORY ON FIRST BALLOT CAST

Campaign Manager Says He Will Have Popular Lead of Over 30,000

T. S. Felder, candidate for the senate, gave out the following statement Saturday:

"To the people of Georgia.

"For the past three months I have been engaged in a personal canvass of Georgia speaking in the interest of my candidacy for the senate, and during that time I have visited and spoken in every section of the state, though I have not been able for lack of time to go in each and every county, have, however, been in a large majority of the counties, in close touch through friends with the balance, and I feel that I know the situation.

"From the information which I have gained from my personal visits and reports received I am confident that I am the leading condidate in the race.

"To take a sanguine view I would say that I will have a sufficient number of votes in the convention to nominate me on the first ballot. A conservative estimate shows that I will go into the convention with more votes than any of my opponents.

"I have no alliance or agreement whatever with any of the candidates in this race and I urge my friends to stand by me to the day of the primary and to continue their unswerving support which now assures me of nomination."

Emmett Houser, in charge of Felder's headquarters in Atlanta, gave out the following statement with reference to the short term senatorship contest:

"Mr. Felder and his friends have not indulged in rash predictions and unwarranted claims. But that he will go into the convention with more delegates than any other candidate and with a popular lead of over thirty thousand votes more than his nearest opponent, I do not entertain a doubt.

"Mr. Felder's strength has been twice tested in the state, each time upon his record. His record is better today than it has ever been before and the people of Georgia are not ungrateful. His strength is to be found among the great, sturdy, reading public, consisting of farmers, working people, machinists, physicians, lawyers and bankers. From the hundreds who have visited these headquarters bringing reports from every section of the state, I am convinced that a sufficient number of voters have already resolved to vote for Mr. Felder to put him clearly and certainly in the lead in this contest.

"We do not believe that the voters are impressed with the unwarranted claims of the other candidates.

"Two candidates in particular have given out claims that are altogether unwarranted. These two candidates are in a contest with each other in an effort to stay out of third place.

"Likewise, these two candidates have done quite a lot of talking about one another, and there is more or less truth in the charges and counter charges made by each.

"Who is it that has taken the position that Thomas S. Felder does not deserve to win upon his record?

"Who except his opponents do not admit that he is the ablest man in the race?

"The people of Georgia are acquainted with Mr. Felder's record, admire his sincerity and recognizing his superior qualifications will pay tribute to his mental and moral worth by selecting him to succeed the late Senator Bacon."

DR. DUNBAR H. OGDEN IS BACK FROM VACATION

Dr. Dunbar. H. Ogden, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, has returned to the city after an extended trip on the Pacific coast. He will fill his pulpit Sunday morning.

The open air evening services at 8 o'clock on the Capitol grounds will be held in the Central Presbyterian church in case of inclement weather. Dr. Ogden will speak.

This joint service is drawing between 2,000 and 4,000 persons each Sunday night. It is held under the auspices of the First Christian, the Second Baptist, the English Lutheran, Trinity Methodist and Central Presbyterian churches.

HARRY VAUGHN RUNS DOWN AND INJURES NEGRO LAD

Andrew Dago, a negro boy of 317 Butler street, was run down and his leg broken by an automobile on Forrest avenue Saturday afternoon. The car was driven by Harry Vaughn, of 371 North Boulevard, who took the boy in his car to Grady hospital.

It appears that the boy had been into a store at Butler street and had taken a package across Forrest avenue to an automobile. As he started to recross the street he stepped in front of the automobile driven by Mr. Vaughn. Call Officer German served Mr. Vaughn with a copy of charges.

Use "Gets-It," Corns Shrivel, Vanish!

It's the New Way, and You'll Forget You Ever Had Corns.

"2 drops put on in 2 seconds, corn shrivels, comes clean off!" That's the marvelous story of "GETS-IT," the new-plan corn cure. Nothing can be simpler for the cure of corns—and it never fails. That's why millions of people are using "GETS-IT" today and throwing away their fussy plasters, sticky tape, toe-eating salves, and "wrapping outfits" that make a bundle around the toe and choke it into pain by pressing either on or around the corn. There is nothing to stick to your stocking, nothing to cause inflammation or rawness, nothing to press on or around the corn. You apply it in 2 seconds. No more knives, razors, scissors or files, with their blood-poison dangers. Try "GETS-IT" for that corn, callus, wart or bunion.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.—(Advt.)

JUDGE COVINGTON SPEAKS FOR SENATOR HOKE SMITH

Forsyth County Again Will Be Found in Smith Column

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CUMMING, Ga., Aug. 15.—Judge W. A. Covington, of Moultrie, addressed about one hundred voters of Forsyth county at the court house today. His address was on a high plane and entirely devoid of personalities. He conceded honesty of purpose to Joseph M. Brown, and stated that everyone who agreed with his principles of government ought to vote with him; but that no one who differed with him should vote for him. He said that he would not say that he would not make a good senator—he just did not know. That, as Lincoln said of the poem, "To a man who likes that kind of a man" Brown is exactly the kind of a man he would like.

The speaker showed that in all his fights President Wilson has relied upon the able assistance of Senator Smith, and that Georgia, at this time, can make no greater contribution to the administration than by sending Mr. Smith to help the president.

He called on his audience to take care of the interests of the man who, at this crisis in the financial affairs of the farmers of Georgia, although a bitter fight is on to defeat him, remains at his post of duty.

The speaker was well received, and Forsyth county may safely be counted in the list of Smith counties.

MONEY ORDER SYSTEM IS EXTENDED TO NAVY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The postal money order system is to be extended to naval vessels. Enlisted men and others thus will be enabled to make remittances to their relatives without the inconvenience of obtaining a treasury check in each case, which navy regulations have required.

PLAYER TRAVELS 600 MILES JUST TO STRIKE OUT.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15.—Arthur Miller a member of the St. Louis Typos, who recently played in the big tournament in Cincinnati, had a funny experience. Yes, it probably was the first time it ever was accomplished.

Miller got into the game just once. That was when he was sent up as a pinch hitter. Think of it, traveling 600 miles just for the honor of whiffing. That's the record distance for a pinch hitter to go to take three swings at the air.

But just the same Miller enjoyed himself, and is not a bit peeved. The local typos, who have just returned from Cincinnati, finished second, Boston captured the title.

You Have One More Chance to Get One of the Celebrated Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets on Small Payment

Nearly everybody in Atlanta and all adjacent territory will remember the big special club sale that Ed. Matthews & Co. put on last spring. Their original order was for two carloads and even when the whole shipment had been sold and delivered, they then took over fifty orders for future delivery. These sales were made to the very best people who were judges of fine and durable workmanship, to say nothing of their taste for beauty. Another sale goes on tomorrow morning, and as long as their present stock lasts you can buy one of the most renowned kitchen cabinets that is sold anywhere in this country for only $1 down and then $1 per week. Of course, if you prefer, you can pay more or pay all cash; that is left entirely with the purchaser. Now, don't forget, if you want a Hoosier cabinet, don't wait until they are all gone, but go right down to Ed Matthews & Co., 52 East Alabama street, and let an expert demonstrator direct from the factory show you the many points of advantage in the Hoosier.

"Its not very often that an old, reliable firm like the Matthews people make such extraordinary offers like this, but the club offer worked so much to the satisfaction of everybody that they have decided to do the same thing over. So remember, Monday is the day, and the cabinets will be waiting for you.—Advt.

THOMAS S. FELDER "NEXT JUNIOR SENATOR"

Recent Developments in the Felder-Slaton-Hardwick Campaign Made It Easily Apparent That Thomas S. Felder Is the Leading Candidate

Felder's election is as certain as anything can be in politics.

He will enter the state convention with more county unit votes than either of his opponents.

He will receive by far the largest number of popular votes.

He is the people's choice.

His brilliant record as a progressive, constructive legislator, his magnificent services to the state in leading the fight to abolish the convist system, his splendid work as attorney general, and the purity of his personal and public career, his superb talents as public officer and the cleanliness and dignity of his present campaign have distinctly brought Thomas S. Felder before the people as the logical man to send to the United States senate to succeed the lamented A. O. Bacon.

Felder has not thrown any mud. He does not ask to be elected because of his opponent's faults and weaknesses, but because of his own record.

BROWN HOLDS HIMSELF ABOVE HIS PARTY; SEEKS PERSONAL REVENGE, SAYS J. R. SMITH

TRAPPED IN OWN NET, SAYS HIS FORMER MANAGER

Mr. Smith Discusses All Issues of Campaign in Strong and Interesting Speech

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

FAYETTEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—One of the best and most impressive speeches ever heard in this city was that delivered here today by Hon. J. R. Smith, of Atlanta, to an unusually large audience, composed of business men of this city and farmers from the surrounding country.

Mr. Smith spoke on the issues involved in the long term senatorial race. His speech was both logical and illuminating and he was frequently interrupted by applause. At the conclusion of his address Mr. Smith was given an ovation.

Mr. Smith's speech was as follows:

My Friends and Fellow citizens: For more than fifty years the Democratic party has been held dear by the solid, loyal and true men of the south, and they have stood for its policies and against those represented by the Republicans. Now, for the first time in a quarter of a century, our party is in complete power, and its program consisting of the principles for which we have stood through all our national fights is being rapidly written into permanent, lasting laws—laws that will give life and liberty to American industries and manhood such as never could have been obtained through the Republican party, whose program always carried heavy penalties for the masses and special privileges for the classes.

The south is stronger today in Washington than it has been at any time since the civil war. There has not been a day during all that time when we could have used this strength to greater advantage than right now. As Democrats, we should not do anything that will weaken our position or in any way interfere with the program of our party.

PARTY LOYALTY VS. FACTIONALISM.

I come here today to talk to you about this contest and to call upon you as Democrats to rise above factional lines in state politics and to go to the polls on the 19th of August and by your ballots sustain our president and our party and approve the splendid work that is being accomplished for the American people. We owe it to ourselves, to our families, to our party, to our state and nation, to liberate ourselves from factional politics in Georgia at this time. The interests of our home and the interests of our party and state should overshadow any differences that are personal, as represented in the candidacy of Joseph M. Brown.

CANDIDACY ON PERSONAL GROUNDS.

I say that Governor Brown's candidacy is based upon personal grounds for the reason that he has not brought forward a single national issue nor advanced a single thought that people add as in solving the problems of our party or nation. His public utterances and the circumstance under which he entered this campaign show conclusively that he was not actuated by a spirit of patriotism or desire to serve the people. His acts were controlled by spleen and hatred for his opponent. Had he been actuated by a desire to serve his people or his party he would have been willing to obliterate factional lines and help to solidify the Democratic party in Georgia. To the contrary, however, Governor Brown is seeking to weaken the party by groundless attacks upon its policies and measures. These assaults are the outgrowth of an old grudge in which few thinking people are now interested. To satisfy this old grudge, to further his schemes of personal revenge, he is ready and willing to sacrifice party principles and national welfare.

A WEB OF DECEPTION.

It was the farmer poet, Robert Burns, who said:

"Oh, what a tangled web we weave
When first we practice to deceive."

These words completely illustrate the condition of Governor Brown's campaign. It is so thoroughly entangled in the web of deception which he has woven to catch others that his own utterances must be a source of embarrassment both to himself and his friends.

Let us make an impartial review of his card published on August 7, which is generally conceded to be the weakest he has ever submitted for publication. In this statement, which covers about three newspaper columns, he fails to stand for a single principle; he fails to discuss a single law; he fails to give a single reason why you should vote for him on August 19. He seeks to justify his candidacy by making repeated attacks upon the Democratic party and repeated false statements concerning his opponent.

SEEKS TO RESURRECT DEAD ISSUES.

In this latest effort of the governor he recites some old state issues that have been dead so long that even my friend Hoke Horsley and two horse and forty minutes' effort could not bring them forth from the grave.

Governor Brown's position regarding these dead issues reminds me of the Irishman who cut a snake's head off in the morning. Passing along in the afternoon, he noticed that the snake's tail was still wiggling. Upon seeing this, Pat exclaimed, "Faith, and he's dead, but he don't know it." These issues are all dead, but Governor Brown "don't know it." Even if they were not dead, they were strictly state issues and the people outside the state of Georgia are not interested in them.

FORTY BARRELS: A DEAD ISSUE.

Take port rates for instance: I have always thought Governor Brown was strongly opposed to port rates. But in his last card he dwells at length on this old issue, entering his complaint because port rates have not been secured for the people. If he was opposed to port rates when this was a live issue, why isn't he satisfied now that it is dead?

A father used to own an old mule that would get hidebound every spring. The remedy was easy for this complaint was crude and somewhat painful. It consisted in forcibly jerking the hide of the old mule loose from his bones. The ex-governor is evidently suffering with this same trouble, as evidenced by the fact that the Democratic party has been held intact by the solidity and loyalty of the men of the south, who have stood for its policies and against those represented by the Republicans. Now, for the first time in a quarter of a century, our party is in complete power, and its program consisting of the principles for which we have stood through all our national fights is being rapidly written into permanent, lasting laws—laws that will give life and liberty to American industries and manhood such as never could have been obtained through the Republican party, whose program always carried heavy penalties for the masses and special privileges for the classes.

The south is stronger today in Washington than it has been at any time since the civil war. There has not been a day during all that time when we could have used this strength to greater advantage than right now. As Democrats, we should not do anything that will weaken our position or in any way interfere with the program of our party.

He seeks to justify his candidacy by making repeated attacks upon the Democratic party and repeated false statements concerning his opponent.

SEEKS TO RESURRECT DEAD ISSUES.

In this latest effort of the governor he recites some old state issues that raised his hand or his voice against the measure either as a voter or as an office-holder. In this campaign, he is playing the negro solely as a manufactured issue to show the duplicity practiced by Governor Brown in the effort to catch votes in his campaign for the senate. So far as I know, Mr. Hoke Smith has filled the position to the satisfaction of the people of Georgia, as evidenced by the fact that they elected him by a majority to succeed himself by a good majority.

Governor Brown and his political henchman have made a great to-do over the failure of Mrs. Longstreet to be reappointed postmaster at Gainesville, Mrs. Longstreet is a lifelong and devout Roman Catholic. If she had been appointed, Senator Smith would have been condemned because of the fact that she is a Catholic. But she failed to get the appointment, and he is being condemned because she is the widow of her husband. It is a pity, a crime, to damn you if you do and damn you if you don't."

CAMPAIGN WITHOUT REAL ISSUES.

When you reduce this campaign to its last analysis you find not a single issue in it. It is a fight of the enemies of the Democratic party against the Democratic party enemies of Hoke Smith against Hoke Smith—with Joseph M. Brown as a willing tool.

My friends, let us rise above all this. Let us take a position as responsible men. Let us view the situation seriously as it demands. This, of all time, is no time for personal quarrels. It is no time to satisfy Governor Brown's personal grudges. It is no time to permit the Democratic party to go down before its enemies, from without or from within its ranks. Seven of the world's most powerful nations are at war today, thousands upon thousands of men are being cut down by modern machine guns. Disaster and ruin are following in the wake of marching armies.

This condition, which we had hoped in this civilized age could never come to pass, has added a great burden of responsibility to our government. While we may be thankful that this country is not actually involved in the war and none of our boys' blood is to be shed, we must all face the fact that a war of such magnitude is sure to be felt by every man in the world, every citizen of this country. Already we are feeling its effect. For the first time in my life I have cotton for sale for which there is no market, and in only a few days more, unless conditions change, you gentlemen will confront the same situation. For the first time since the civil war we must look to the government for financial aid. Whatever may be the ultimate effects of this world war, the south is feeling an immediate effect in the temporary abolishment of the market for its principal product, cotton. More than two-thirds of every crop is exported to Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Austria, Italy and other countries involved in the war. While we may hope that this closing of the market for our cotton is only temporary, we are face to face with the question what to do in the meantime. It is imperative that congress provide ways and means whereby the cotton producers of the south may get immediate relief.

MARKETING OF COTTON

While this question of marketing the present crop of cotton is the one that immediately concerns us, we cannot lose sight of the fact that the result of this war will be such a change in the political and commercial maps of the world as we never dreamed of in this generation. You cannot change any portion of the map of the world, either political or commercial, without vitally effecting America's interest. And such changes as will come from this war present an entirely unforeseen and unexpected situation, a crisis of a magnitude unparalleled in the history of the world.

While we must all be impressed with the seriousness of the situation, we must also bear in mind that such a situation is bound to offer opportunities for those who are strong and quick and brave enough to grasp them. A change in the commercial map of the world taking place at a time when all our rivals are weakened from loss of blood and treasure, if that change is ably met, will result in great benefits to our country, benefits which will be measure offset if not exceed the losses which we may endure as an immediate result of the war.

NEED OF STRONG MEN.

It is therefore at such times as this that the nation, that any nation, needs strong men in charge of her affairs. There has never been a time in the history of this country when the need of great men was greater. Fortunately for us, we have them. Having them, it is our duty to see that we stand by them loyally, firmly and with confidence. We must be as loyal to them as we expect them to be to us.

In times past, I have been opposed to Senator Smith. My opposition at all times was based upon personal grievances and not upon any personal feeling. Should he again run for governor upon the same issues I would support him. My position in the past has been represented by principles of government and not by men or sentiment. I occupy the same position today.

Whether you like Senator Smith personally or not, you must agree with me when I say that he stands closer to the president of the United States and the present administration than any other southern senator. You must also recognize that he possesses ability equalled be but fe American citidens. Under some of the voters of Georgia, he is ready and willing to pose as an enemy of the Catholic church. My reference to the appointment of Mr. Gray is merely to show the duplicity practiced by Governor Brown in the effort to catch votes in his campaign for the senate. So far as I know, Mr. Hoke Smith has filled the position to the satisfaction of the people of Georgia, as evidenced by the fact that they elected him by a majority to succeed himself by a good majority.

TILLMAN WILL RETIRE WHEN TERM EXPIRES

South Carolina Senator Issues His Farewell to Public Office

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 15.—Senator Ben R. Tillman, of South Carolina, today issued his farewell to public office with the statement that when his term expires March 4, 1919, should he live till then, he will not again be a candidate for the high position he will have held for twenty-eight years.

In a lengthy statement, "Pitchfork Ben" bids good-bye to his constituents, to the people who elected him.

"Two years ago when I asked you to re-elect me I thought die in harness," he says, "I fully expected to die very soon; but the good Lord has seen fit to prolong my life and by exercising me to live rationally, has enabled me to retain some degree of health. Should I live to the end of my term, I shall be seventy-two years of age, and I now serve notice upon all who are interested that I shall not try to succeed myself, but if I live until March 4, 1919, I shall die out of, and not in, harness, as I have always wanted to do. But I shall not worry. Death awaits us all and is inevitable. I go the way of all my fathers, and I try to say in all humility and sincerity, 'Thy will, O Lord, be done.'"

Senator Tillman was sixty-seven years old the eleventh of this month. For four years he served as governor of South Carolina, and in Washington has been senator for twenty years.

"An old man desires to thank you for your generous support all this long while. May he not, without boasting, but in sincerity and earnestness, say that he has done his very best for South Carolina and the nation?"

His farewell statement is in part a review of his long service to his state. It also deals at length with the critical issues now forward in the race for the United States senate in South Carolina, a situation, says Senator Tillman, which gives him deep concern.

He probes the situation deeply, protesting sincerely that "Bleaseism," not the outgrowth of "Tillmanism," deploring the hold of Cole Blease among certain of the people, but declaring his everlasting faith that the people will rectify their errors and that Blease will be defeated at the primary August 25.

Speaking merely as a citizen, says the senator, and remembering that a man's ballot is his own and that he has the right to use it as his own, he declares Governor Blease should not be sent to the senate because he is not worthy of the honor.

"I am too near the grave to tell any lies," declares the senator. While Woodrow Wilson is president Blease will get no recognition in the way of patronage whatever. I have said this once, none, but I would have it all hereafter with Blease as a colleague. If the unhappy difference among our people in South Carolina shall continue and Bleaseism becomes the dominant factor in the state, Blease might in time play the role of Marlene in Virginia. All signs, however, point to the triumphant re-election of President Wilson and the continuation of the Democratic party in power."

Senator Tillman touches also on social topics in the problem of common schools. Compulsory education, which he has always opposed, he declares he would now, should a case arise, need forcing the white children to school, but giving the negro only manual and industrial training.

CLUB THANKS TRAVELING MEN FOR EXCELLENT WORK

Writes Open Letter to All Members of Hoke Smith Club

Because there is not time in which to write each of them individual letters, the Traveling Men's Hoke Smith club has prepared an open letter to the traveling men of Georgia who have been in the city for the past several days and have registered at the club headquarters.

In this letter, W. G. Moore, secretary of the club, thanks the traveling men not only for voicing their preference for Mr. Smith while in the city, but for the work they are doing in their support of him throughout the state.

Mr. Moore's letter is as follows:

"Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 15.

"To the Traveling Men of Georgia.

"Dear Sirs: On account of you getting on the firing line early Monday morning, thereby making it impossible for us to reach you by mail at your address, we have decided to reach all our co-workers by means of an open letter in the papers.

"In answering your letters we wish to thank you for your enrollment as a member of the Traveling Men's Hoke Smith club. Your interest demonstrates conclusively that the traveling men almost to a man are most patriotic for your old friend and leader, Hon. Hoke Smith. You are helping the farmers win the greatest battle in the history of Georgia. Our farmers are the greatest factors in commerce and for every reason we are active and enthusiastic for the overwhelming success of the farmers in re-electing Hoke Smith.

"We are happy to note that you say the people of the country are on to the underhand game of the opposition in circulating the vilest falsehoods against Hoke Smith, and we believe you when you say the voters of Georgia on August 19 will by their ballots show their disapproval and will rebuke the foul methods of the opposition by giving a tremendous majority for Hoke Smith.

"We warn you to expect more slanderous and misrepresenting statements.

"Thanking you for your favors, we are,

"Most sincerely yours,

"TRAVELING MEN'S HOKE SMITH CLUB.

"By W. G. MOORE, Secretary, 507-8 Forsyth Building."

WAR MAP FOR EVERY READER

Official Guide For Use of Those Who Would Follow Great Event

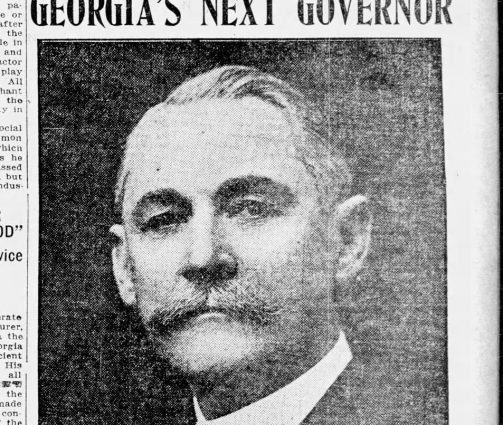
What do you know about the war? Do you believe that 11,000,000 men will have any chance against 17,000,000? What information have you of the exact situation and conditions in Europe? The Journal herewith presents an offer that will be eagerly grasped by every reader, as it is designed to prepare you to answer all of the foregoing questions as you follow the daily reports. It consists of an official map in five colors covering every point of the great war of European nations. The map was originally made in Europe by the expensive wax process and is as clear and smooth as a steel engraving. It is reproduced on copper plate. The colors are distinctive and all rivers and mountain ranges are clearly outlined. The type is large and distinct and every city and town of importance is plainly indicated. Cheaply drawn maps cannot possibly give the details shown on this authentic map. It is sufficiently large to include all the war area and besides it contains a wealth of the latest information pertaining to the big war centers.

The Journal has succeeded in getting a limited edition of these handy guides to the great war of nations and they will be passed out to our readers until further notice at the bare cost of the expense of distribution. Every day in another column will be printed a war map coupon and one of these will be required in addition to the expense fee.

As the cannon roar and the shells drop from the great aerial fleets you will want to know where all of these movements take place and this official map will give you exactly the information you are looking for, as everything is fully covered, from the Rock of Gibraltar to the Ural mountains.

Educational charts are attached to the map proper and these show the fortified towns, naval ports, big battle ground plans, and all of the great war capitals in detail, besides there are portraits of the European rulers, tables showing the strength of the armies and navies as well as the aerial fleets and a wealth of information such as has never before been shown in a map of this character. All you need to do to get one of these wonderful maps is to clip the coupon and present it with the promotion expense of ten cents, or it will be sent by mail either in town or out of town for twelve cents in coin, stamp or money order. The distribution begins today and readers should lose no time in taking advantage of this great offer.

GEORGIA'S NEXT GOVERNOR



DR. L. G. HARDMAN OF JACKSON COUNTY.

Dr. Hardman's campaign for governor has been remarkable in many respects. Remarkable for its freedom of bitterness and personalities. Dr. Hardman has said on every stump that he desired to win on his own merits and not on the demerits of his opponents. He has developed into one of the most efficient stump speakers Georgia has produced in recent years. He is not only a good speaker but a good handshaker, good talker and good mixer. Dr. Hardman took a strong lead over his opponents two weeks ago and is now generally acclaimed a certain winner.— (Advt.)

"WILL RE-ELECT SPEER BECAUSE HE'S MADE GOOD"

Faithful and Efficient Service as State Treasurer for Many Years

(From Richland News.)

Let us not forget that Confederate veteran, W. J. Speer, State Treasurer, who has given the state of Georgia the greater part of his best years. Georgia never had a more faithful and efficient treasurer, and the people know it. His work has won golden opinions on all sides.

The people will re-elect him to the position simply because he has made good in the office, which has been conducted to the entire satisfaction of the taxpayers.—(Advt.)

WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN IN FULTON FOR HARDMAN

Four Speaking Dates for Candidate Arranged for Tuesday

Dr. L. G. Hardman, candidate for governor, will wind up his race for the governorship with a whirlwind campaign in Fulton county Tuesday afternoon and night.

The central committee of the Fulton County Hardman club has arranged four speaking dates for Dr. Hardman in Atlanta Tuesday night.

These dates are as follows: City hall steps, 6 p. m.; West End, Gordon and Lee streets, 6:30 p. m.; Hemphill and Tenth streets, 7:30 p. m.; Forsyth theater, 8:30 p. m.

Beginning at the city hall Dr. Hardman will go to his various speaking points by automobile. He will be accompanied by a brass band and by a procession of automobiles of his supporters in Fulton county.

The speech at the Forsyth theater will be the big speech of the evening and will be the last speech of his campaign.

In addition to the speeches which Dr. Hardman will make personally, several good speakers will deliver addresses in his behalf at various points in the county Tuesday afternoon. These will also be accompanied by a brass band. Among the points where speeches will be made by these speakers will be the Southern railway shops, Hapeville, College Park, East Point, Inman Yards, Buckhead and east Atlanta. Other points may be added later. Dr. Hardman's managers state that they will announce the speakers for these points and a definite schedule Monday.

Colonel James W. Austin, president of the Fulton County Hardman club, stated Saturday afternoon that he is greatly pleased with Dr. Hardman's prospects in Fulton. "Dr. Hardman's gaining more support in Fulton than I had any idea we could rally," he said. "Reports coming into Dr. Hardman's Atlanta headquarters indicate that he will win the race for governor without difficulty. I expect him to be nominated on the first ballot. This statement is based on a thorough canvass made by safe and conservative men in the various counties of the state."

GOVERNMENT TO ACCEPT COMPROMISE TAX PENALTY

Will Not Be Hard on Persons Who Failed to Make Income Returns on Time

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The treasury department has determined to accept offers in compromise of the specific penalty for failure on the part of individuals or corporations to make returns within the period prescribed of their annual net incomes for the income tax, in cases where such failure was due to misunderstanding of the law or ignorance as to its requirements. The minimum offers that will be received are $5 from individuals and $10 from corporations organized for profit. This statement is made in announcements being sent today to collectors of internal revenue by Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams.

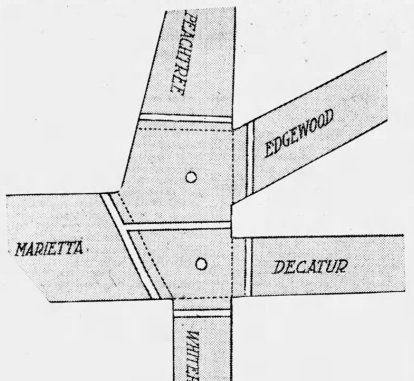
It also is stated that in cases of corporations not organized for profit the specific penalty will not be assessed this year provided the required return has been or shall be filed before December 31, 1914.

The foregoing, it is added, applies only in cases in which there was no intention of evading the law or escaping taxation.

DELAYED PEACE TREATIES WILL BE INVESTIGATED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Peace treaties with the Dominican republic and Panama, which the senate failed to ratify, are to be retained on the calendar instead of being sent back to the committee on foreign relations for revision. It is not contemplated, however, to bring them up again for consideration until the state department has carefully considered the relations between those republics and the United States and possible future developments.

EXPEDITE FIVE POINTS TRAFFIC



PLAN OF TRAFFIC OFFICER E. C. THORNTON TO EXPEDITE TRAFFIC AT FIVE POINTS.

White lines to mark boundaries of all vehicles until they are signalled forward by traffic officer. Pedestrians to utilize space between white lines and edge of sidewalk, indicated by dots.

The lines are to be six inches wide. Officer Thornton says he's willing to pain them fresh each night if allowed to put them down. Thornton declares that traffic will be expedited thereby and less confusion will result.

He also makes request that street cars be not allowed to stop within the lines as they block traffic and cause much annoyance.

SCHOOL BOARD IS SLOW TO ADOPT GEOGRAPHY

Book Taken Only for One Year Because Map of Europe May Be Changed

Echoes of the great European war were heard at the meeting of the city board of education held in the Boys' High school Saturday for the purpose of adopting books for the schools. Mayor Woodward raised the issue when geographies were taken up; the result was that every grammar school book except geography was adopted for five years; geography, for one year.

Mayor Woodward said the map of the world would be changed in six months, so it would be foolish to adopt any of the present-day geographies for five years. He said he believed the best plan would be not to teach geography at all until the European war was over, because the impressionistic mind of children might receive erroneous facts which would never eradicated. In answer to this argument, R. J. Guinn said history was changing, too, as well as geography, so that it would be equally foolish to teach history, according to Mayor Woodward's arguments.

When the vote was taken, the board, of which George M. Hope is president, went six for one year and four for five years.

As soon as the grammar school books were adopted, the board, shortly after 1 o'clock, took up the high school courses.

COLONEL POWELL TO BE RETIRED AS BRIGADIER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The senate today passed a bill to place Lieutenant Colonel Janius L. Powell, now the only officer in the regular army who served on the Confederate side in the Civil war, on the retired list as a brigadier general.

Among other Confederates who have been retired as brigadier generals were General Joseph Wheeler and General Fitzhugh Lee. Powell was permitted to enter the army as an assistant surgeon by special act of congress in 1875.

CARL SHIFLET STABBED BY HIS OLDER BROTHER

Bloody Fight in Decatur Street Wagon Yard Over Their Father

Carl Shiflet, of 78 Jett street, this city, was stabbed several times by his brother, N. E. Shiflet of DeKalb county, in a row in a Decatur street wagon yard penetrated the wall of his back, causing an internal hemorrhage and may result in death.

It appears that N. E. Shiflet and his father were in a quarrel and were about to come to blows, when Carl, the youngest of the two brothers, stepped between them. Thereupon the older brother knocked him down and plunged a knife into him five or six times, according to his statement to the police.

Call Officer Cochran, answering an alarm from witnesses of the fight, found the wounded brother lying on the ground, covered with blood, and the older brother standing over him with a knife in his hand. He sent Carl to Grady hospital and N. E. Shiflet to the lockup.

BROYLES GETS OVATION AS HE PRAISES HOKE SMITH

Cartersville Audience Cheers Prediction of Seeping Smith Victory

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—Hon. R. A. Broyles of Atlanta addressed an audience at the court house Saturday that taxed the capacity of the auditorium. Three fourths of his hearers were farmers who applauded him as he pleaded that fair play and common justice be done Senator Smith against the efforts of political tricksters, and schemes, to defame and misrepresent him and his wonderful record.

Mr. Broyles was introduced by Oscar T. Peeples, editor of the Bartow Tribune, Mr. Peeples stated that he had always supported Governor Brown in the past but was now for Senator Smith, and paid a high tribute to Senator Smith's ability.

Mr. Broyles declared that all the evidence offered by Hugh Dorsey and others was purely fragmentary, and that Mr. Dorsey and others would not dare to tell the whole truth. He brought up the question of organized labor, and proved to the satisfaction of all that Joseph M. Brown was not the friend of labor.

He said he had supported Mr. Brown before because he represented democracy, but that now he was against him because he represented autocracy, and that he was for Senator Hoke Smith because he was truly a great man, that he was "on the job" in Washington and had done and would do more for the state and country than any representative ever sent from Georgia.

Mr. Broyles was given an ovation when he predicted that Hoke Smith would sweep the state like a cyclone on the day of the primary. His speech made many friends for Senator Smith as he dissipated all the misrepresentations made against him.

The large audience was overwhelmingly for Senator Smith and it is a safe prediction that he will carry Bartow county by a large majority.

HUNDREDS SEE GLEASON STOP MAD RUNAWAY

Riding a bicycle M. D. Gleason, of 25 Houston street caught up with a pair of runaway horses hitched to a wagon of a White hall street department store, as they dashed past the New Kimball on South Pryor street yesterday afternoon, and climbing into the vehicle, caught the lines and steered them into a telegraph pole across the railroad tracks.

The daring feat was witnessed by hundreds of people who were on the streets at the time, and who expected to see some one seriously hurt. Little damage was done.

STATUE OF CONFEDERATE ARMY OFFICER UNVEILED

(By Associated Press.)

HARRISBURG, Va., Aug. 15.—A granite statue of Joseph White Latimer, a major in the Confederate army, was unveiled here today. It was erected by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Virginia division, and the alumni association of Virginia Military Institute.

Memorial Service for Mrs. Wilson to be Held In Auditorium Sunday

A special memorial service dedicated to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will take place of the regular free organ concert at the auditorium-armory Sunday afternoon. An elaborate and beautiful musical program has been arranged.

City Organist Edwin Arthur Kraft will be assisted by the choir of St. Mark's church, composed of, Mrs. J. W. Hurt, Mrs. John M. Cooper, Mr. John M. Cooper and Mr. L. D. Scott.

The service will be under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Festival association. The program will be as follows:

Alexander Guilmant—Marche Funebre et Chant Seraphique.

Handel—Largo.

J. Frank Frysinger—Meditation.

"Art Thou Weary, Art Thou Languid."

"For All Thy Saints"—St. Mark's choir.

Frederick Chopin—Marche Funebre.

Theodore Dubois—In Paradisum.

George H. Faircloth—Fantasie on "Lead Kindly Light." (Dedicated to Mr. Kraft.)

George Frederick Handel—Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah."

The two hymns which appear in the program were favorites of Mrs. Wilson and were sung at her funeral in Rome, Ga., her girlhood home.

Beecher Cleveland Burton of Chicago, who is visiting his relative, Miss Nana Tucker in Atlanta, and who is said to possess one of the most remarkable voices in America, will assist at the memorial concert.

LIEGE, 1914.
(In the New York World.)

"Ye're men of peace," the kaiser said,
"Ye wot not how to fight!
Give passage to my soldier men,
nor prate to me of right.
Or, I'll blot out in red the oath ye swore in black and white!"

The burgomeister from the wall:
"All peaceful men are we,
But we have sworn that through our land we'll give no passage free.
And what we swore in black and white we'll keep in red," said he.

"Push on, my men," the kaiser cried.
"Turn loose the cannonry!
Hale out that burgomeister churl,
to hang upon a tree!
Rush on, my Uhlans, cuirassiers, dragoons and infantry!"

Across the meadows, 'neath the walls, the regiments advance,
The horsemen rush, the footmen push,
With cannon, saber, lance
They strike the men who dare to keep the oath they swore to France.

Eftsoon the peaceful meadows green beneath red mangled heaps!
In row on row, head to the foe, the fearless German sleeps.
Alas! full well his plighted word the peaceful burgher keeps!

"God rest their souls, the gallant men!"
The burgomeister said.
As from the wall, with saddened eye, he looked out o'er the dead,
"But what is sworn in black and white must e'en be kept in red!"

SMITH WINS OVATION IN SOUTH CAROLINA'S RACE

Blease Is Rapped, but, as Usual, Leads Admirers From Speaking

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

KINGSTREE, S. C., Aug. 15.—The largest demonstration of the present campaign for the United States senate was given here Saturday in honor of Senator Ellison D. Smith. Three wagons, eighteen automobiles and seven carriages, all decorated in banners bearing the inscription, "Vote for E. D. Smith, the Farmers Friend," came carrying their cheering supporters of the senator here in the parade, which winding through several streets, came to a halt in the court house grounds where the speaking was held. Senator Smith, seated on a bale of cotton, led the pageant and bowed acknowledgment to the cheers that greeted him along the line of march.

Williamsburg county has always been solid for Blease and no evidence of a change was visible at the meeting, the sentiment of a majority of the people being in favor of the governor. The speeches of the four candidates were along the usual lines.

Senator Smith discussed cotton, predicted his record, took a lick at lawyers, and predicted his re-election. Governor Blease ridiculed Senator Smith's demand for cotton, spoke a special request of the reporters to print a local indorsement of a number of his acts, Colonel Edwin Dubose, "a fine old man from this town," attacked Senator Smith's record, finished his speech and left the meeting, talking about a fourth of the crops with him.

L. D. Jennings, in characteristic fashion, lambasted the governor for his record, declared the governor's unfit to be king of the negroes in Africa, much less governor of South Carolina, and then went on to tell of the horrendous cases, denouncing the governor for liberating these two convicts.

W. P. Pollock, continuing his arraignment of Governor Blease, said the latter was not only "feather-legged, but gunshy and can't stand shot," and was trying to make cowards out of his supporters by taking them away so they couldn't hear their favorite's record discussed.

He dared a small group of Bleasettes to attempt to take him from the stand, as was threatened, and brought many hearty laughs by his humorous references to Blease and Bleaseism.

Only four meetings remain, that at Georgetown Monday beginning the last week of the campaign.

ROOSEVELT KNOCKS PEACE TREATIES IN THE SENATE

Says Monroe Doctrine Backed by Force Is Our Sole Great Protection

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 15.—Nearly half of the political speech Col. Theodore Roosevelt delivered tonight before the progressive state convention here was devoted to a discussion of the cataclysm that has engulfed Europe in war.

"Africa, south of the equator," he said, "has being drawn into the fight although without any interest in it. We would have been drawn in the same way if we had not been for observance of the great principle the Monroe Doctrine contains, the principle that this continent shall not be treated as a place for territorial aggrandizement by old world powers.

"The peace of the western hemisphere largely depends on the preservation of this doctrine. It is for this reason I feel that arbitration treaties now pending in the senate would, if adopted, be inimical to the interests of the United States and of peace.

"Under the proposed treaties, we would be bound to join the creation of a commission to investigate all the matters at hand before we could take action. Within a fortnight we would have had fresh proof of the utter worthlessness of treaties, of names signed to pieces of paper, unless backed by force, if power or interest demands this violation.

"These proposed arbitration treaties would not be worth the paper on which they were written if any great military power, though it could violate them with impunity. We would have bound ourselves to await a year or so while a joint commission pursued its weary courses of investigation and during that time an old world military power could make a Gibraltar of one of our West Indian islands, and defy us to turn it out, save at the cost of war which might be as dreadful as any now raging."

PLAYGROUND CHILDREN PLAN FOR RALLY DAY

Exercises for 1914 Will Be Held at Grant Park Saturday Evening

Rally day for 1914 will be celebrated by the playground children of Atlanta Saturday afternoon, August 22, in Grant park. Some 2,500 youngsters are expected to take part in the program of contests. The general public, especially the parents of the children, is invited to attend. Joe Bean, supervisor of playgrounds, will be in charge. Music will be furnished by the Fifth regiment band.

The program will consist of flag raising exercises, 50-yard dash for junior boys and girls, 75-yard dash for senior boys and girls, running high jump for junior boys and girls, running high jump for senior boys and girls; building and home for small children; awarding prizes for best stories written on playgrounds, circle dodge, for small children, and volley ball for large children.

There ought to be a playground in every ward of Atlanta," said Supervisor Bean, announcing this program. "This work should be made one of the strong features of Atlanta's progressiveness, for it results in immeasureable good. The past season has been most successful. It was started on broader lines than last year, for the park commission established three new playgrounds this season."

Three German Aeroplanes Brought to Earth; 2 Killed

LONDON, Aug. 15.— A dispatch from Brussels to Reuters agency says that a battle near Echezee, north of Namur, has occurred yesterday at Noville Tariere, on the Namur-Tirlemont railroad line, was very keenly contested.

The Germans, according to the dispatch, were mostly cavalrymen. They were surprised by the Belgians and suffered severe casualties. Eventually they fell back hurriedly on Huy between Namur and Liege.

The dispatch adds that three German aeroplanes flying over Diest were brought down by the Belgian artillery. Two of the aviators were killed by being dashed to earth and the third was terribly injured.

"The Human Slaughter House"

READ THIS FIRST!

A wave of horror spread over the European continent when this book, "The Human Slaughter House," was published. One hundred thousand copies were sold in three months! In it, the author, Wilhelm Lamszus, a German high school teacher, paints a horrifying word picture of death on the battlefield with modern machine guns and war appliances. Men go out to fight—"MACHINES"—according to the author. When brought to the attention of the German kaiser, the book was suppressed and the author, practically a government official, was "relieved of duty." In a curious fashion the mowing down of men on European battlefields today is graphically described in this story. The translation is by Oakley Williams.

CHAPTER VI.

Our subaltern, lying a bare five paces away from the grass, raises himself on his elbows, and gazes intently through his field glasses. I know what he is vexing his soul. He is a handsome, splendid lad, for whom even we grizzled old-timers would go through fire and water, for he stands you as man to man, without sniffing or swagger as it becomes a youngster. And the other day, when I was marching with the rear guard, we discussed Lilliencron's novels. Since then he has always appealed to me as if he had stepped straight out of one of these romances of war. He is all ablaze to glean his first laurels. But however much he may twiddle the focus of his glasses up and down and crane his neck, he cannot discover a trace of the enemy. Only a blaze away foolishly at the wood, and may, for all I know be bringing down leaves or birds that stepped straight.

"Close to the big oak. To the right in the undergrowth, some one of the rank and file sings out.

I strain my eyes to the spot, and fail to see anything.

And again I hear the guns growling all around us. But somewhere out of the far distance a clear, long-drawn bugle-call rings out . . . then he ceases. . . . It thrills like nerve and brain against an iron wall.

Behind there, to the right—they are on them there! And from afar the rifle fire rattles like mad.

"My men! Up with you! At the double!"

That came from our lot . . . our subaltern is racing on with his drawn sword in his hand . . . I am still prone, and have, almost automatically, drawn my right knee close up under my body . . . they are rising to their feet to the left and right of me, and dashing on after him . . . a wrench! and my knapsack slides lop-sided up the back of my neck . . . then I jump up with my rifle in my right hand, and am running for all my legs are worth.

But as we rise to our feet the machine guns in the woods begin to buzz, and to rain lead into our ranks, until right and left of me men yelp and drop twisted and tumbled to the ground.

"Down! Rapid fire!"

The line is prone and again we are blazing desperately into the wood, and can catch no glimpse of our enemy. Never a single arm raised against us, never the eye of a single man to challenge us. The wood, the green wood, is murdering us from afar, before a single human face come in view.

And while to the right and left of me the rifle fire chatters incessantly, the grim mockery of it maddens my blood, and makes me see red before my eyes. I see scale-armor and visors . . . high in their stirrups the knights burst blazing out of the woods, and I, a reckless horseman of the past, I leap into the saddle—my broadsword flashes clear and kisses the morning breeze—and now up and at them like a thunderbolt. Then eyes are flashing into mine and my hands are raised for the melee—and stroke for stroke breast to breast, the pride of youthful, virile strength . . . Ha-ha-ha-ha! What has happened? Where have horse and rider vanished? Where is my sword? We are not even charging men. Machines are trained on us. Why, we are only charging machines. And the machine triumphs and eats into our very flesh. And the machine is draining the life blood from our veins, and lapping it up in buckets-full. Those who have been in front are already lying mown down in swathes behind us and are writhing on their wounds. And yet they are racing up behind us in their hundreds—young, healthy human flesh for the machines to butcher.

"Up! Get on! At the double!"

The gallant young subaltern dashes on . . . he is waving his sword above his head recklessly . . . a picture for a painter. I am rushing after him . . . his cheer in my ears . . . then the gallant vision begins to sway . . . the sword flies from his grasp—the subaltern stumbles and falls face forward in the short, stiff stubble . . . then I race past him . . . I can hear nothing except the uncanny buzz coming out of the wood . . . I literally feel how the lead is splashing into our ranks, how men are breaking down to the right and left of me. . . . "Down! Rapid fire!" . . . . . I throw myself on my face, my rifle at the ready. . . . Why does the enemy fail to reach us? No shout comes from the subaltern, none from the non coms . . . the nearest man a good twenty paces away . . . and then one other . . . only we three.

The first line is lying shot down in the stubble . . . what's the next thing? The ground becomes alive behind us . . . and clattering, panting and shouting . . . and again the wood rumbles sullenly . . . there they are, lying flat, breathing hard . . . . never a word . . . rifle to the ready . . . and shot after shot . . . . they have filled up our gaps.

Of a sudden a deep stillness falls. . . . . .

The machines are silenced!

Then, not for nothing, not a single spurt of flame, not a rustling amid the undergrowth . . . . the branches overhead are swaying frantically against each other. Look! Something is hurrying among the trees, is pushing and hauling—now, to crown it all, they are trying to save precious machines from us.

Yah! Jah! The earth reverberates dully and trembles under out tread . . . a shout of cheers, clubbed rifles, that's how they are coming up behind us . . . our reserves are driving the machines before them . . . they are chained in dense mobs—sappers, sharpshooters, rifle men . . . . a tall sapper jumps from the group . . . I see how his eyes are flashing as he passes. . . . Up, after them . . . . there is the heather . . . . there is the entrenchment . . . down with you into the trench and scramble up on hands and feet . . . . where are they? Where?—where? . . . . There, by that belt of firs . . . . they will have disappeared in another minute—past thick, silvery tree-trunks, through the green beech leaves, with the sun laughing in them, the lust of blood charges red and naked . . . . headlong through the undergrowth—and now—there is something wriggling away so comically before our eyes, and twisting with sinuous dexterity in and out among the trees and the undergrowth . . . . there is something clinging to the machine as if it were ingrown into the iron. . . . .

Ha, ha!—in the clearing yonder the horses are waiting. . . . .

"Let go! Run for what you are worth!—let go!"

But they won't let go . . . for their horses are already ploughing through the undergrowth . . . in another minute they will have thrown their guns into the wagon . . . . and then so-long . . . I am off—the trees are dancing round and round before my eyes. . . . . I catch my foot in the root of a tree. . . . . Lay on! Lay on! They are "ours" who have come up, and they are laying on blindly on heads, and bayoneting bent backs and bared necks, till the whole tangle disperses squeaking. . . . I drag myself to my feet. A lad, a mere boy, is sprawling over me, and clutching his abandoned gun . . . . with an oath some one dashes at him—it is my yokel bareheaded, his face distorted by rage . . . . the boy stretches out his mangled hand to ward him off, his lower jaw is waggling, but his mouth remains voiceless. . . . . The next moment the fixed bayonet plunges into his chest. . . . . first a fight, then his shattered left hand seizes the blade as if in his death throes he were trying to pluck it out of his heart; so he clings tightly to the bayonet . . . . a thrust! a recovery! . . . a bright, leaping jet follows the steel . . . . and gasping breath gasp their last among the dead leaves. . . . .

All around men are lying slain on the brown carpet o fthe woods. . . . .

But the machines are still alive, and rage against the maniacs who free the blood, and consumes the flesh. . . . . Up with trenching tools! . . . . with axes upraised they rush at the machines, and hail blows upon the barrels. The retorts wherein Death has brewed his potion shriek as though wounded . . . the jackets burst . . . . the water flows out . . . . . and the carriage leaps splintered into the air . . . . twisted metal, the spokes of wheels and cartridge belts litter the ground all around but we are battering and smashing and hailing blows upon out . . . until our hot blood has cooled its rage on the metal. . . . . .

And now amid joyous cheers raise the thunderous shout of victory.

Widow Wants to Buy That Slaton Mule Taxed at $25

Mrs. Mary L. Brooks, of Acworth, a Widow, Writes Tax Equalizer Hart She Returned Four Mules for $600--Tax Money Comes Hard, She Says--Wants Her Return Lowered by Governor Slaton's Increased --Offers to Buy That Mule That He Returned for $25

The following letter has been sent by Mrs. Mary L. Brooks, of Acworth, Ga., a widow, to Judge John C. Hart, state tax equalizer:

Acworth, Ga., Aug. 14, 1914.

Mr. John C. Hart,

Tax Equalizer,

Atlanta, Ga.,

Dear Sir:—I have been told by some of my neighbors that you are the man in charge of this tax business that is causing so much trouble among us country people.

They tell me that you are appointed by Governor Slaton, and that it is one of your duties to see that everybody pays in the same proportion on their property.

I am a widow woman living in Red Rock district, in Cobb county. I have raised a big family of orphan children, and had to work mighty hard to feed and clothe and educate them.

If you are the man in charge of this business I want you to look into my case and see if you can help me out in any way.

I see in the papers that Governor Slaton gave in his two horses this year at $37.50 apiece, and one mule at $25. I read that in the paper and the Governor has not denied it.

I have four mules, and they told me that I must give them in for what they were worth, and I gave them in at $150 apiece, making $600 for the four. You can see that on the books.

Now, Mr. Hart, if a big, rich man like Governor Slaton is going to be allowed to give in his mule for $25 and his two horses for $75 I want to be allowed to the same thing.

Is it true that a big, rich man like him owns a $25 mule and rides around Atlanta in a $25 carriage, pulled by a $75 team of horses?

If you have anything to do with this business, I wish you would have my properly lowered at once, as I have to work hard for my money. I have sold chickens and eggs lots of times to get up money to pay my taxes with.

If you can't do this, then it is only right that you make the Governor raise his taxes. He ought to be willing to pay as much as we poor widow women that have to work so hard.

I wish you would write me about this at once, for it will not be long until I have to begin laying up the money to pay my taxes.

This law, the way it is working, may be a good thing for the town folks, but it is hard on us country people, especially widow women that have children to feed and educate.

Your friend,

MRS. MARY L. BROOKS.

P. S.—I may need another mule next year, and if the Governor will take $25 for that one of his I will come down and look at him. I might sell a pair of my mules and buy them horses of his for $75, if they will work to a plow.

PROGRAM IS ANNOUNCED FOR LABOR DAY PARADE

Division Will Form on Capitol Square and March to West Peachtree

Announcement of plans for the Labor Day parade and celebration on the first Monday in September were made Saturday night at a meeting of the general labor day committee, with every labor organization in the city represented as well as many other citizens.

Walter P. Andrews addressed the committee stressing the marked co-operation between capital and labor here which he said would be evident in the great industrial procession in which they would march shoulder to shoulder through the streets of Atlanta.

Fire Chief W. B. Cummings also spoke, stating that a large sum of money had been raised by the fire department to help finance the celebration. Captain W. Ellis and Courtland S. Winn also reported the raising of a considerable sum.

The marshals of the parade were announced as follows: Chief marshal, Charles Hirsch; division marshals, J. W. Stephens, A. McClain, J. T. Mosely, J. R. Jackson, H. N. Mullinax. Chief Marshal Hirsch stated that Dan Goodlin would be one of his aides. Other appointments will be made next week.

Marshals will form at each end, east, west and south cornes of Capitol square, using Capitol avenue, Washington and Hunter streets as starting places for divisions. The head of the parade will form at Washington and Mitchell streets.

The line of march will be along Mitchell to Whitehall, to Peachtree, to West Peachtree, back to Broad street, along Broad to Mitchell, along Mitchell to Pryor and Central avenue, where the parade will disband.

Exercises will be held in afternoon at Grant Park.

MEN PURSUING BANDITS ARE SLAIN BY MISTAKE

West Virginia Posses, Confused, Fire Into Each Other, Killing Six or Eight

(By Associated Press.)

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Aug. 15.—After surrounding the five bandits who yesterday killed three guards and stole the $15,000 payroll of the Glen Alum mines, a posse of deputy sheriffs and mine detectives tonight fired into each other in the darkness and killed six or eight of their own number, according to telegraphic report received here late tonight from Judge James D. Cameron, of the twenty second circuit court, who is with the posse at War Eagle.

Judge Cameron reported that two of the bandits were killed by the pursuing party, but that three probably have escaped.

One of the bandits, Harve Prater, late tonight entered the Alwick station of the Norfolk & Western railroad, several miles from War Eagle, and at the point of a revolver, ordered the telegraph operator to signal a light engine to stop. Prater climbered into the cab and forced the locomotive driver to proceed west. Prater rode to within half a mile of Glen Alum and then jumped from the cab.

The mortalities thus far numbered about fifteen, including three men slain when the payroll was stolen, two deputy sheriffs killed today when the bandits ambushed the posse, two robbers killed tonight when they were surrounded, and the pursuers killed when they became disorganized and fired into each other.

The posse will remain at War Eagle until morning and then try to run down the two bandits there. A posse has been formed to search for Prater at Glen Alum.

Sicilian Woman Gives Birth to 5 Sons and All Alive and Robust

ROME, Aug. 15.—Scientists are immensely interested by an occurrence in Sicily, which is considered to be unique. A woman named Rosa Salemi, forty, the wife of the mason Corrado, of Bacheria, has given birth in the Austrian clinique at Palermo, to five sons, all of whom are alive and robust. The simultaneous arrival of five boys is thought to be unprecedented. The French accoucher states that the annals of the clinique, which deals with some 400,000 birth registrations, do not disclose a similar happening.

Dr. Veray, writing from Turin, affirms that in 1897 or 1898, at Madrid, there was a similar case, while another authority states that about 1884, at Lugano a woman gave birth to seven girls.

Probably a national bounty will be presented to the mother.

NEGRO DODGING BULLETS IS FLOORED BY BOOZE

Midnight Prowler So Drunk He Falls Down and Police Capture Him

Nathan Kaplan, of 440 South Pryor street, discovered a negro prowling about his back yard shortly after midnight Sunday morning.

He picked up a revolver and attempted to capture the man. The negro ran and Kaplan fired at him.

The negro dropped as if dead, and Kaplan greatly excited, called police headquarters. Before officers could arrive, however, Policeman Hurst alighted from a passing trolley car and went to the scene.

He picked the negro up and found on the ground he was unable to rise again.

The negro gave his name as Edwin Prather, 61 years of age, of 107 Old Wheat street.

REBELS ARE CHEERED AS THEY ENTER MEXICO CITY

Huerta Regime Passes Into History as Victorious Army Takes Peaceful Possession

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15.—The national capital tonight is in the hands of the constitutionalists. General Obregon marched in with his army and took possession of the city late today. The citizens greeted him and his soldiers with cheers. The evacuation by the federals has been completed and constitutionalist troops are quartered in the barracks which the government soldiers recently occupied.

Eight special trains will leave for the front tomorrow carrying a reception committee to welcome General Carranza, first chief of the constitutionalists, who will assume the presidency as soon as he enters the capital.

With the resignation of the military governors of the states of Chiapas, Vera Cruz, Tobasco, Campeche and Yucatan, the last vestige of the old regime will disappear.

The city was decorated today for the occasion, for the first time in many months American flags flew beside the Mexican colors. Crowds early packed the streets along which it had been announced the constitutionalist troops would pass. After six hours of waiting the people were rewarded by seeing the front ranks of the main force of General Obregon's army swing into the Paseo de La Reform and commence the march toward the national palace.

As the cavalry, artillery and infantry passed the crowds cheered. Balconies, roofs and sidewalks were densely crowded from Chapultepec Castle to the national palace, a distance of three miles, and the reception given the incoming army was taken by the leaders as an augury of the support the people will give the new government.

GREATEST EMERGENCY PIANO SALE COME QUICK BEFORE STOCK IS BROKEN

One week of the Sale has passed, the most memorable week in all the history of the piano business in this city. Never before have so many Pianos and Player-Pianos been sold by any Piano house in so short a time. Never before has the Atlanta public bought the new designs in high-grade instruments of real and lasting quality at prices that are actually lower than their cost at the factory. Never before have our customers exhibited such enthusiastic delight in their buying.

Greatest Piano Event in the History of Atlanta Prices 25 PER CENT Below Factory Cost

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF

Atlanta has known many Piano Sales, but never one like this. Prices such as you have never dreamed of, on New Pianos and Player-Pianos of standard Name and Fame. In spite of the heavy selling of the past week, the leading lines, though greatly reduced, are still unbroken. Come make your selection while the assortment is complete, but come at once for this week will surely witness the breaking of some of the leading lines of the stock.

$300 PIANOS FOR $98

The heavy buying of the past week exhausted one of these lines, the Kohler, but we commence the Second Week of the Sale with FOUR well-known makes of $300.00 Piano to be sold at $98.00, less than their actual cost. Similar values in higher priced Pianos and Player-Pianos are available in FOURTEEN of the leading makes, including the product of some of the leading Piano factories of the world.

EVERY INSTRUMENT FULLY GUARANTEED

With every purchase made at this Sale we give the Ludden & Bates guarantee and the Ludden & Bates service which for nearly half a century have protected the owners of Pianos and Player-Pianos throughout the Southern States, against every emergency which might arise from any defect in workmanship and materials. Our Home Office, will, of course, remain in this city and our patrons are assured the protection and convenience which have heretofore characterized the service of the Oldest Piano House in the Southeast.

COOPER TELLS EFFECTS OF WAR ON AMERICAN TRADE

Secretary Takes Optimistic View of Situation in United States

BY W. G. COOPER,
Secretary Atlanta Chamber of Commerce

Business men who have given any thought to the situation, realize that the European war will cut off some of America's European trade. If they don't want to know is, will we be able to capture enough other trade, or more than enough to make up that loss?

A study of the world's commerce shows that other nations bought of the United States 2,720 millions of goods last year.

Of this vast sum 1,409 millions were taken by the countries now at war.

We are likely to lose 500 to 600 millions of their trade because of the war. We shall probably lose all, or nearly all, of the trade with Germany and Austria, amounting to 448 millions, and possibly 49 per cent of the trade with France and Belgium, say 100 millions.

But Europe has been selling to America, Asia, Africa and Australasia 3,449 millions of goods. Much of this trade must be cut off from Europe, because the nations which supplied it are at war. What they can't produce or deliver, must be supplied mainly by other European nations, or by the United States and Canada.

To those same countries we sold last year 968 millions of goods. If we can get 20 per cent of the remaining 3,449 millions, we will have enough to take care of the probable shrinkage in our European trade.

Our success in getting that increase depends many on three things:

First, the ability of our manufacturers to supply the kind of goods needed.

Second, the adequacy of ocean transportation.

Third, ability of our merchants and banks to carry this trade until the returns come in.

It is not simply a question of balancing the general account, but of meeting the local needs of each country, and supplying the goods of the quality and type demanded by custom and packed in the kind of packages those people are accustomed to handle under their various conditions of transportation, varying from mules and camel caravans to railways and steamships.

In addition to this, the goods must be sold under the terms and credits which those people get in Europe, largely by the use of bills of exchange, which have been used under a system developed by European banks. Our new regional bank law provides for that kind of finance for our foreign commerce, but this machinery is just now in the making.

From this it will be, realized that, while the opportunity to extend our foreign commerce is very great, even unprecedented, a great deal of adjustment and activity on our part will be necessary to make the transfer of this trade from other countries to our own.

If, as Earl Kitchener estimates, the war lasts eighteen months, we will have time to secure our way, but it will not come in a month. Probably it will be six months or a year before the big changes are manifest.

Farm Industries must suffer more than others, especially at the outset. This naturally will fall heavily on those industries which sell most of their product to Europe, particularly to the nations at war.

THE COTTON GOODS TRADE

This seems to be the case with cotton. The last crop was disposed of as follows:

COTTON EXPORTED 1913

Countries.	Bales.
United Kingdom	3,563,216
Germany	2,350,761
France	1,014,334
Italy	478,804
Spain	298,435
Belgium	214,245
Russia	70,625
Austria-Hungary	109,202
Netherlands	13,922
Other European Countries	22,516
Japan	374,802
Canada	148,292
Mexico	19,990
All other countries	14,824
	8,724,572

Taken by American mills 5,786,330 bales

We are likely to lose during the war ... Germany and Austria-Hungary, amounting to 2,465,963 bales. What ... France and Belgium will probably be made up by England, Italy and Spain.

It then remains for the mills of the United States, Canada and Japan, which took 6,309,424 bales of cotton last year, to take about 2,500,000 more, which we are not likely to sell to Europe.

If they can take half of that quantity, the surplus will not be larger than we have had in some years.

Certainly they will take more than usual, by probably not less than a million bales.

England's takings in 1912 were 700,000 bales larger than in 1913. No doubt with her equipment for foreign trade and her merchant marine, she may go much farther than ever, since the world will need the goods.

Taking all these things into consideration, this year's crop of cotton is not likely to exceed the demand by more than two million bales, and it may not be more than one and a half millions.

It is very probable that the expansion of the cotton goods trade of this country, England, Canada, Italy and Spain may go far beyond our present estimates and make the surplus still less.

There is already a fight in England to keep down unemployment. If the mills sell the goods they will probably get labor enough to make them. The same will be true of Italy and Spain. There never was a time when people needed work and wages more than they do now.

The same is true to a considerable extent of the United States, Canada and Japan, and it is reasonable to expect a record-breaking production of cotton goods in all these countries.

COTTON WON'T CROWD THE MARKET.

Taking a calm, clear view of these conditions, there is no reason to think that cotton will sell at panic prices. The farmers are not going to force it on the market. All reports from the country are to that effect. They will probably borrow money to pay their urgent debts, giving cotton as security, or else settle by note secured by cotton, which will give the merchant or banker good collateral which he can use to meet his obligations.

Sagacious business men familiar with conditions in banking, merchandise and the cotton trade think that with the passage of the shipping bill giving ocean transportation, the situation will clear up rapidly, and before many weeks have passed there will be a market for cotton, and it will improve as months go by. This improvement will be hastened when the supply of money for advances on cotton is assured and the ways and means to get it are made clear.

Against the immediate disadvantages of war we can set two permanent results that are probable.

The revival of our merchant marine.

The extension of our foreign trade.

We cannot expect to escape wholly the serious consequences of war, even at this distance. It is impossible to kill a half-million or a million men and destroy ten billions of wealth without causing trouble all over the world. After it is over, Europe will have to sell securities in this market to raise funds to start the wheels of industry again, and the nations at war must face years of poverty and reconstruction, such as we understand too well in this country.

It is a condition in which neither optimism nor pessimism is wise. We need to husband our resources and to study the economical habits of the old world to make the most of our opportunities and to be ready to meet the heavy demands which Europe must make on this country, not only during the war, but for years afterwards. If we do this, we are safe, and beyond the reach of serious trouble, above all, far removed from the horrors and the calamity of war.

For the convenience of those who wish to study the subject, I append a few statistics of our foreign trade.

W. G. COOPER.

Marries 499 Couples, Now Justice of Peace Is in Market Himself

J. T. NORMAN.

Justice of the peace in Carroll county who has joined 499 couples and would now takek bride himself.

To have joined 499 couples in the holy bonds of matrimony, is the record of J. T. Norman, justice of the peace in Carroll county, Ga.

Incidentally the justice remarks that he is in the market himself for a helpmeet and should one to his liking appear he will be glad to enter the matrimonial fold again.

Justice Norman was born in Laurens county, S. C., March 1, 1847. His father moved to Carroll county, Ga., in 1848, and Justice Norman has ben a resident of that county since. In 1861 he joined the Confederate army and served until he was mustered out in 1865.

In 1867 he married Mary Malvina Hendan. His wife died about nine years ago.

Mr. Norman was elected justice of the peace of Carroll county in 1879 and has served in that capacity ever since, except for four years from 1893 to 1897. He married his first couple February 20, 1879, and the 499th couple August 2, 1914.

VICTOR INNES VANISHES AND LEAVES NO TRACE

Portland Lawyer's Disappearance as Complete as That of Nelms Girls

Victor E. Innes, the Portland attorney, has now disappeared, apparently as mysteriously and as completely as the two daughters of Mrs. John W. Nelms, who charges he is the one person on earth who can explain the mystery surrounding them.

Mrs. Nelms is making every effort through the police of many cities to locate the lawyer, and while she makes no statement, her efforts to locate Innes have been redoubled recently, and that has led to the belief that additional evidence connecting him with her daughters has been found.

Marshall Nelms is still in San Antonio and it is said that in his search of the house there occupied by Innes during June, he has found more evidence to connect the lawyer with his missing sisters than has been given out for publication.

Dispatches from Birmingham Saturday state that the letter alleged to have been forwarded Innes from San Antonio to the Alabama city has not been called for at the general delivery window, nor has it arrived at the postoffice there. As a result Mrs. Nelms will probably start an investigation to determine, if possible, what has become of the letter.

STATE R. R. COMMISSION GETS BARREL OF APPLES

The members of the state railroad commission on yesterday received from the citizens of Ella Gap, Ga., on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, a barrel of old-ashioned juicy horse apples, and a gallon of delicious sweet cider.

Recently the citizens of Ella Gap applied to the commission for an order requiring the railroad to make Ella Gap a flag station, where passenger trains would stop for passengers to get on and off.

The commission granted the application and the citizens sent the apples and cider to show their appreciation.

CONFERENCE IS CALLED ON COTTON SITUATION

John D. Walker Summons Bankers, Business Men and Farmers to Meet Here

Indications are that every section of Georgia will be represented at the meeting called by John D. Walker, the banker, at the state capitol at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when methods of meeting the south's cotton crop emergency will be discussed.

In the call for the meeting stress is laid upon the fact that the seeming disaster to the south's prospects may be turned into the greatest boon she has ever known if prompt action is taken and replies already received by Mr. Walker indicate that business men in all sections of the state are deeply interested in the project and are planning to be present.

Mr. Walker's call in full is as follows:

"AN OPEN LETTER."

"To the men of Georgia and especially bankers, farmers, merchants, worehousemen, cotton men and others interested in the business welfare of the state.

"Gentlemen: Thirty days ago Georgia had the best business prospects in ten years. Everybody was feeling fine. The outlook for fall trade, due to good cotton crop and good price, was excellent.

"No sign of business trouble was visible anywhere.

"Then the kaiser got busy and butted in and he has played thunder.

"Today our prospects for a good crop are the same, but we have no market and no staple price.

"Yet I believe this war is America's opportunity and ours, but we must act with great wisdom and unanimity, or it will produce disaster rather than blessing.

"Shall we act separately, each town and county and individual trying an independent plan? Or together, every one of us combining for the common good? Together, by all means, for in union there is strength, and we will need all the skill and finesse of the best business experts to prevent awful loss to our section and the nation.

WE STAND TO SAVE MILLIONS.

"Georgia's two million bale crop will be worth less by ten million dollars if sold for 8 cents, than a million and a half bale crop would be if sold for 12 cents. In other words, Georgia could, if necessary, throw away 500,000 bales of this crop which cost her farmers twenty to thirty million dollars to produce and still have more money to spend, if her farmers can get 12 cents per pound for what is left, than her farmers would get if the entire crop is saved and sold at from 8 to 9 cents or less than it costs to make it. If the crop can be sold for 12 cents and not 8 cents, we stand to make or save about eighty million dollars.

"Surely it is time for business Georgia to sit up and take notice and prepare herself to fight. Opportunity is knocking at our door. Are we ready to take advantage of her gifts and responsibilities?

"DELAY IS DANGEROUS."

"The great danger at present is that many of our farmers not being fully informed as to the best plan to aid them, will conclude that they must look out for themselves as heretofore, and will plant too many acres in cotton at ruinously low and inadequate prices.

"To save this unnecessary loss and sacrifice, the best business men of Georgia must combine for the good of farmers, the state and themselves.

"We cannot and it is the farmers' business to look out for himself, and ourselves escape the penalty of selfishness. In saving him, we save ourselves. It is an awful fact that no hurtful thing can be done in one part of the state but does not also hurt, indirectly though it may be, every other part of the state. The reverse, thank God, is also true. We cannot do a helpful thing in the smallest town in the state that does not indirectly benefit and bless every part. If we help the farmers of Wayne county directly, we are adding indirectly to the wealth and prosperity of Habun county or Hancock. Georgians we owe it to our state and to each other to assist, when possible, every movement for the betterment financially, morally, or otherwise, of those in need of our aid.

FARMERS NEED OUR AID.

"If the farmers had organized financial backing, they could travel alone, but in an emergency like the present one, they need and must have the hearty co-operation and help of all business interests in order that they secure what is justly theirs.

"The business men of the cities, and especially the banks thereof, should rally to the need of the farmer, since the prosperity of the city is absolutely dependent upon the men in the country. If they go down, the city does, too.

"A conference of farmers, bankers, merchants, manufacturers, warehousemen, railroad magnates and all others interested in Georgia's business welfare is therefore called for Monday, August 17, at the state capitol, Atlanta, 10 o'clock a. m., in the hope and for the purpose of agreeing, if possible, upon some sane and feasible plan that will not only prevent needless sacrifice of the present cotton crop, but how it may be held so that the best price possible can be obtained.

"The farmer should be there, and the banker. The big merchant of the city and the small merchant of the town. The manufacturer should be present, and the railroad officials, for the more we get for cotton, the better off we will all be. The only Georgian not needed at this conference is the politician. This is to be a business men's conference for business ends exclusively.

"We hope the smallest hamlet in the state will be represented as well as the largest city, and may every man who attends do so with his mind made up to do his best for Georgia, so dear to us all.

"Eternal vigilance is still the price of our commercial liberty.

"JNO. D. WALKER."

DECLARES FRANCE IS THE 'TORCHBEARER OF NATIONS'

Genius of Country Covers the World, Says M. Grunebaum-Ballin

PARIS, Aug. 15.—France, as the "torchbearer among nations," was acclaimed by M. Grunebaum-Ballin, president of the prefecture of the Seine, at the annual distribution of prizes at the Condorect Lyceum recently.

"There is no part of the world," he told the students, "where the genius of France is not becoming more and more appreciated. The French Canadians remain unalterably attached, in spite of their British citizenship, to their native langage and the customs of their ancestors. The United States has set a fashion that other nations will follow by inviting the best exponents of French thought to cross the Atlantic each year. The Democracies of South America are tending toward a vast Latin federation that will recognize Paris as its intellectual capital."

INSTRUCTION

SIMPLEX SHORTHAND SCHOOL.

THE Simplex Shorthand School teaches the Paragon system of shorthand writing. The Paragon system of shorthand writing is an improved, simplified and standardized method, and a long step in advance of the older and more involved systems. Many users of this method of shorthand writing are in the United States government service and in the service of the largest corporations in this country. Its users are also proving it to be the most accurate and rapid in the most difficult of all work—court reporting. In two months any person of average education and intelligence can become an efficient writer of this method of shorthand. For a limited time the school is making a special rate of twenty-five dollars for the complete course. For this twenty-five dollars you get one scholarship backed by a written agreement to make the pupil an efficient shorthand writer. All graduates of the Simplex Shorthand School will be furnished with positions. Demand for the services of those writing the Paragon shorthand greatly exceeds the supply. Students may enter the day class or the night class at any time of the month or year. The home of the Atlanta division of the Simplex Shorthand School is at No. 30 Capitol avenue, opposite state capitol building, Atlanta, Ga. Bell phone Main 5395-J.

TICKS

THERE is no doubt but what ticks are the most serious handicap the entire south has against its cattle raising. There are but few people who realize the damage that is done by these little pests, and only those who have suffered a loss are the ones who even know how much they cost this country. In the first place no beef cow or dairy cow will do near so well when they are covered with these insects as they would if they were free of them. No animal can ever fatten and make a first-class beef or give the quantity of milk that it should, regardless of how much feed they have, if they are covered with ticks. This is one reason why fine beef animals practically go to nothing when they are brought to this country. We can take the finest specimens of any of the beef breeds and bring them to this section and in a few years they will degenerate and practically go to horns, skin and bones and will not take on flesh as they should. If allowed to come in contact with ticks they will not look nice, sleek, fat animals that we see in sections free of ticks. Regardless of how good specimens we buy to cross on our natives we can never reproduce as good as the originals unless we keep in clean pastures.

With the hundreds of acres of good forage and good grasses scattered all over the south we can raise as good beef here as can be had anywhere in America. But they must be free of ticks. Many people have bought good animals and brought them into the south and would lose them afterwards almost before they knew it. The first time a cow is infested with ticks fever will set in and in a few days the animal will die, and many people do not know the cause. Cattle that range on low lands that are even free from ticks are likely to become infested after any high water. The high waters will bring ticks from miles above and when the waters recede the seed ticks will be left in the pastures and in a few days your cattle will be covered with them. It is useless to undertake to clean your premises of ticks on any stream that overflows or that is likely to have ticks above you on this particular stream.

Just so long as this state allows ticks to take possession of the hundreds of acres of good pastures that much longer will we lose our prestige as a cattle-growing state. It could be so easily cleaned of ticks and bring thousands of dollars to us for a few dollars invested in this line of work, and when we know that other states have had to do it, it is folly that we should sit idle and let an opportunity go by that would be worth a lot more to us than our cotton industry. With the demand for butter, milk and packing house products of all kinds in our state we could not only produce every bit of this, but have thousands of dollars' worth of these products to ship to other states, and it could be produced with the food that is now going to waste in Georgia that can not be harvested or utilized through any other method except cattle pasturing on these grasses. But we can never hope to have cattle in Georgia until we get rid of ticks first.

In the counties that have been cleaned of ticks, some twenty-seven, they are fast stocking these counties with good cattle and are finding it far more profitable than cotton raising. We must come to it, sooner or later, and the sooner this work is done the better off will our country be. Suppose every farmer in Georgia now had from five to ten head of good steers to sell. They would not be forced to put their cotton on the market. They would be independent and could keep it indefinitely, and this could so easily be done. Take the other states that are producing something to eat and cattle. They are now independent, with this war confronting us, as they know the nation must have something to eat and they will reap a rich reward for their product. We depending on a cotton crop do not know where we stand, and unless the government comes to our rescue and furnishes enough money to retrieve a part of our cotton crop we will soon see cotton farms go down in value and our people unsettled and not know where we stand.

The breeding of hogs, cattle and horses would soon relieve this situation and make our cotton farms the most valuable farming properties in existence.

Only people who have suffered a loss from ticks and have studied their habits and destruction, they alone are the ones who can see the importance of getting rid of them, and unfortunately as a rule these are the people who have not the influence with the legislators or with the state officials to bring forth enough influence to see that enough money is appropriated to clean our state. While thousands of dollars are set aside to fight other pests that we have to contend with we are neglecting to get rid of one thing, the tick, that would eventually mean more revenue brought to our country than any other money that could be appropriated. We certainly have nature's food all over our country to produce thousands of dollars' worth of beef cattle which is now going to waste and not being utilized. From $50,000 to $100,000 each day is being sent out of Atlanta to the west for packing house products, and every bit of this could be produced in Georgia and would be if we could get rid of the greatest drawback that we now have to contend with, the tick. If we would get rid of them in this state it would only be a short time before we will have enough cattle for not only home supplies but to send abroad and bring thousands of dollars back to our farming class of people.

Yours very truly,

Loring Brown

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION.

Norwood, Ga.

A recent article of yours on alfalfa was a good deal of help to me. I will put in two acres in September. Peas getting ripe now. Will cut vines in a few days and harrow in acid phosphate, also some standard guano. How much lime can I use per acre to advantage? I suppose it should be harrowed in before sowing seed. I hear a good deal said about seed, different kinds and certain sections they must come from. Are there any Georgia grown seed on the market? Where can I get seed suited to this section? Where can I get stuff to inoculate them with? The peas treated with——, but I did not have enough to get over and I see no difference in those treated and those not. How do I sow the seed?

W. M. S.

ANSWER.

If your peas are ripe they should be cut high, leaving considerable roots in the soil. A coating of lime, at least two tons per acre of lime rock should be scattered broadcast and disked or harrowed in the soil thoroughly. Then at least 100 pounds of acid phosphate should be scattered broadcast, and the disking repeated. The main thing and the secret in succeeding with alfalfa is to have a good, soft, well worked seed bed filled with moisture, which can be had on any pea stubble by disking and harrowing five or six times, but do not plow your pea stubble under any circumstances. If so, in nine cases out of ten you will make a failure of your alfalfa. When your land is thoroughly worked to a nice seed bed you can sow the seed with a Cahoon seed drill or any other seeder that will distribute the seed equally, cover lightly with a weeder or a roller and by April of next year you can cut two tons per acre, that is, if the land is good and the seed are planted in September.

I think it makes but little difference where the seed comes from, just so they are sound and free from foreign seed.

You can get inoculin prepared fresh every ten days or two weeks in Atlanta. A chemist there makes this preparation, and it being made fresh is similar to yeast cake and gives far better results than some of the preparations that are sold that are probably one or two years old and have lost their strength. It only cost $2 per acre and you cannot succeed with any of the clovers in this section of country unless this is used, or something similar.

WHY IS NO. 16 MARIETTA ST.

THE BEST STAND IN ATLANTA

1.—I CAN name you a rental cheaper than any other store in Atlanta, advantages considered.

2.—I CAN give you a seven-year lease.

3.—THE STORE is 20x110 feet and basement, alley in rear.

4.—ABOUT six months ago Joel Hunter & Co. made an accurate count of the people passing here on an ordinary week day. The result showed 77,998 from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m.

5.—AT THAT time the stores in this block had not been remodeled. There are nearer 100,000 people pass here now.

6.—IT IS RIGHT at "5-points" and practically every street car in the city passes your front door.

7.—IT IS THE only store left for rent in this entire block, all others having been quickly taken on long leases.

8.—ACT NOW while you can get it.

North Side.

LOOK! A BEAUTIFUL North Side home on Myrtle street, on a nice east-front lot, 1 have a perfectly beautiful 8-room 2-story home, with tile veranda, tile bath, stone front, hardwood floors, exposed beam ceilings, built-in bookcases, sliver heat, sleeping porch, etc. This place was built for a home, and has large rooms, and plenty of large closets. On the lot, there is a servant's house, garage, and private laundry with cement floor. The owner refused $10,000 for this place last year. Will now take $8,750, on terms of $1,000 cash, balance $90 month, which is not rent for the place. Possession can be given immediately. If you will look at this place, you can't help but admire it, and if you want a home, you will buy it. It is one of the most attractive homes on the street. Carl Fischer, Main 4232, or 520 Fourth National bldg.

FOR SALE—New north side six-room bungalow; sleeping porch; never occupied. Has hardwood floors, birch mantels, bookcases in plate glass, window seats with keystone, panel dado tint; beautiful electric showers and reading lamps, Batterwing tile floors, porcelain for shower bath; medicine cabinet, plate glass shelves and level rods. No tile roof, guaranteed ten years; cement porches and steps, granite fronts and furnace heat. Has Pittsburg installations, gas water heater, heats three gallons water per minute. Street cheerful and convenient. Must be seen to be appreciated. Price $5,500, easy terms. Would accept vacant lot as part property as cash payment. Call owner, Ivy 2947.

CLOSE to corner of Ponce de Leon and Highland Ave., I have a brand-new 7-room bungalow never been occupied, with outdoor sleeping porch, hardwood floors, double floors, tinted and storm-sheeted, heated by a Moncrief furnace, modern bath with tile flooring, costly cabinet mantels, complete electric fixtures, on 50x132 feet to alley, elevated and level; convenient to the Piedmont Park car line and cars close to North avenue school and Druid Hills church, all Ponce de Leon and street improvements. Price $5,250, very small cash payment down, Walter P. Reynolds, agent. This place would be cheap at $6,000. J. H. McNesser, 1018 Healey bldg., Ivy 8524.

North Side Bargain

$4,000—NEW 6-room bungalow, double floors, steam heated, electric and gas fixtures. Fine lot and shade, built for a home, 10 minutes to Five Points. No loan. $200 cash, $25 per month. This place would rent easy at $32.50 per month. Why look further? S. T. Tibbs, Main 2854.

FOR SALE.

BRAND-NEW HOME.

MY new home will be ready to occupy Monday, August 17th, and I will interview cash buyers and offer this place for sale this week before moving time. The house has 7 rooms and is located in best north side section. It will take a fair cash payment of at least $1,000 to secure this home. The place is a very pretty and up-to-date one and is just what you are looking for. Address "Quick Trade," Box 82, care Journal.

Just off Ponce de Leon Ave.

BEAUTIFUL LOT, 50x158, WITH WATER, SEWERAGE, TILE SIDEWALKS, GAS, ETC. ALL PAID FOR. WILL SELL FOR $1,000.00. TERMS OF $50 CASH AND $15.00 MONTHLY. CALL MAIN 3584-J, MR. S. PLATTE.

DO YOU WANT IT? Cash talks. The very best lot on Highland View, north side, for cash only, at the price of 25 per cent less than they are asking for lots not so desirable. This lot fronts south, 50x120 to alley, is elevated and level and overlooks the most beautiful oak trees; very near car lines; charted street with all improvements and many other features. It is a beauty and at the price for all cash is a great bargain. Call Druid Hills section. For a home lot or speculation, it can't be beat. Phone owner, Ivy 1vy.

PONCE DE LEON home, 8-room, at $1,500. Cheaper than any other house on the street. Party leaving city and will give good terms. Address W. J., Box 122, care Journal.

I WILL SACRIFICE 120 feet on Spring street at $143.75 per foot, close-in property paying annual rentals; adjoining property within two blocks sold last week at $300 per foot. Terms, $2,500 cash, balance $1,500 year, 7 per cent interest upon each note at maturity. At option of one in one year we will carry this property two years, when a profit of $15,000 can be realized. Phone Ivy 1561, Monday morning, between 9 and 10.

FOR SALE—If you have five to eight hundred dollars cash (balance in monthly payments) you can buy one of the nicest six-room bungalows on the north side and on a prominent street; a genuine bargain. The house is in first-class condition. Has cement driveway and garage. This is for sale directly by the owner and no agents need apply. Address Box 865, Atlanta, Ga.

ONE-HALF BLOCK FROM PONCE DE LEON AVE.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

Three Unusually Attractive Bungalows.

We have just constructed three bungalows of the highest type. These places are not the regulation "stock houses" used by a great many buildings, but individual homes, the plans having been prepared by the well-known architects, Hents & Reid.

The inside arrangement is one that is sure to please. These homes are very compact, yet very roomy, no waste space. Every foot of space being utilized for the benefit of the occupants.

The tile bathrooms, combination fixtures, and furnaces are of a different type from those used by the average builder.

The important inside detail work, such as hardwood floors, beam ceilings, paneled walls, show evident signs of workmanship that is different from the average.

These homes have sleeping porches, and a number of other advantages that will have to be seen to be appreciated.

We believe that in these three homes we have every idea worked out that could possibly be wished for by anyone, and if you are in the market for a home, or are thinking of building your own home, it would pay you to take a look at any one of these three places, as they represent the very latest idea in building.

On Thirteenth st., near Piedmont park, and on Juniper st., near Tenth st. The prices are $6,000 and $6,250, on very reasonable terms.

Sale of Belmont Farm Leading Announcement of Yesterday Afternoon — Details of Ogletree Sale — Agency Takes New Offices — Lack of Spectacular Sales During the Year Has Helped Small Business — J. W. Mason Reports Activity

The main real estate announcement yesterday afternoon was the sale by Loring Brown of his Belmont Farm at Smyrna. This transaction, which was handled by Earle Greene, of the Thomson and Lynes agency, appears in detail under another head.

Mr. Brown is one of the pioneer chicken fanciers of Georgia. He developed a regular show place at Smyrna, and the transaction is interesting in ways other than as a real estate sale.

OGLETREE SALE.

The various properties which were sold by S. H. Ogletree, mention of which was made on yesterday, for an aggregate consideration of $45,000, appeared in detail in yesterday's record of transfers.

Only one parcel, a Houston street corner, was large. The rest consisted of small renting properties, vacant residence lots, dwellings and the like. Every trading zone in and around Atlanta almost was represented.

NEW AGENCY TAKEN.

The White, Evans Cauble Realty company, the organization of which was announced recently, has taken the former quarters of Galloway and Smith on the second floor of the Empire building. They will formerly intended to occupy Harris G. White's offices in the Grant building.

Van H. Smith will have a connection with the new office, where he will be glad to see his friends.

TITLE ACTIVITY.

Under another head appears a statement from J. W. Mason of the Atlanta Title Guarantee company, that his business, which is the examination of titles, has been more active in 1914 than ever before.

This statement is not so surprising to persons who watch the daily transfers, and see the volume of small transfers that go to record both in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Because 1914 hasn't been a year of large and spectacular sales, many people had supposed that there was no business. As a matter of fact the small trader is more active, when there is not so much speculation, and the agencies pay a lot more attention to him.

Some of the big agencies that during 1912 and 1913 were turning over a $1,000 buyer to the office boy now take him out in an automobile. Old listings have been revamped and the new sought, and the result has been a big increase of small business.

This has been a good thing for the business. It has taught a good many people, including some agents, that a small amount of capital is capable of investment in Atlanta real estate.

It has also encouraged the small investor to come into the market, and he has not been timid about showing his interest in small properties.

As a matter of some of the best traders in Atlanta, men who have made money out of real estate and have become independent, have never bought anything but small stuff.

Another advantage of this condition is that it tends toward a better distribution of activity, and does not confine it to one or two sections at a time.

Now that the agents are listing small places and handling them, the small investor, particularly the man or woman who is just starting, has the best opportunity to get into the market.

The investor who buys now, not with speculative intent but with the intention of holding, will make a killing once the war situation has calmed down.

Agents have plenty of properties that can be bought with $100 or so down, and the balance on easy terms within the reach of the average person making a salary. Such properties can be bought at their real value too, and they are bound to be higher later on.

Beginners should take advice of the old stagers in real estate, and that is to buy when the market is quiet and sell when it is active.

BUNGALOWS EXCHANGED FOR FARM LANDS

An exchange of bungalows in the East Lake district for farm land properties, the transaction involving nearly $5,000, was announced Saturday by R. A. Tomlinson of the Edwin P. Ansley company, who handled the deal.

The bungalows on Fayetteville road, aggregating $14,750, were exchanged for 500 acres of land in Coffee county and 100 acres of land in Pike county, aggregating together $9,500. The names of the principals were withheld.

FIDELITY FRUIT AND PRODUCE CO.'S MARKET LETTER

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 15.—There has been very little, if any, change in the Atlanta market during the week. The truck growers in and around the city seem to be able to supply all vegetables wanted at very reasonable prices, and of good quality. The rains have caused tomatoes to crack and decay on the vines to a great extent, causing an advance in the price. Cucumbers, peppers and tomatoes are just about cleaned up. Our market is being well supplied with very fine quality from North Carolina, Maryland and Tennessee at reasonable prices. White Bliss Triumph potatoes are just about being supplied to meet the demand, the quality is considerably off. Our fall crop will bring in a great deal cheaper new prices ten days ago.

Recent rains have prevented the digging of sweet potatoes to a certain extent, which has caused the market to advance somewhat. Good potatoes selling at $1.50 per bushel.

Our home grown peach crop is cleaned up. What few are in storage are being taken out and offered, and we look for the Missouri peaches on this market within the next few days.

Very fine North Carolina and Ohio Delaware grapes are being offered now at reasonable prices.

WAR MAY BENEFIT SOUTH

The European war news has brought considerable optimism into the Birmingham district where pig iron is concerned. Furnace and steel makers here are practically unanimous that nothing could help Birmingham better than to have pig iron market than the European war.

It is pointed out, first, that all danger of imports under the Underwood tariff is eliminated. The present embargo here and probably for years to come. It develops that local iron can be put on the consumer's platform at a price possible effect of competition between local pigiron iron and that imported as ballast by ships will be under the low tariff. All danger of this competition they now consider gone, at least for the present and long hereafter, regard the home situation in itself as very much better prospect for the future.

The second consideration, however, is the war itself. It is claimed by furnace makers that the enormous wreckage and waste following in the wake of the armies will not only destroy forts, bridges, factories, etc., but it will have to be rebuilt, but that the very iron industry itself of the European countries will be destroyed for long time. In all cases possible, blast furnaces, mines, foundries and other plants will be blown up and destroyed, it is claimed, before allowed to fall into the hands of a hostile army. Those that are not thus destroyed will be put to work to manufacture materials for war use, the whole situation thus resulting in saying what iron men had expected to happen and they are looking for an important and strong export trade to be developed for the United States instead of having the competition of an import trade.—The Iron Trade Review.

No Immediate Relief for Ocean Shippers Caused Heavy Selling

Wheat Traders Who Held on in Hope That the Consultation of Exports Might End the Virtual Embargo, Forced to Let Go

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Disappointment that no immediate relief for ocean shippers could be obtained had an unsettling effect today on the wheat trade. At the close prices were 2¾@2¾c under last night's level. The outcome in corn was a net decline of ¼@⅛c and for oats a loss of ⅜@⅝c. Provisions finished irregular, varying from 15c off to a rise of 2½c.

Within an hour after trading began wheat had suffered a break of 2¾c to 3¾c. Many owners who had held on in the hope that the consultation of exporters with Secretary McAdoo might end the virtual embargo, quickly were forced to let go. Advices that a million bushels of wheat were being put aboard steamers at Galveston and that the Atlantic passenger and mail service was about to be resumed were responsible for a comparatively steady feeling at the close.

Increased country offerings depressed corn, but a prospect that Argentine exports would be stopped altogether led to a decided rally.

Oats, like other grain, showed signs of having been considerably overbought.

Provisions weakened on account of larger receipts of hogs. Sensational declines at Liverpool also counted.

NEW YORK COFFEE MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Today's cables from Brazil reported the clearance of 58,000 bags for New York from Santos and 1½ and another clearance of 40,000 bags from Santos for New Orleans August 14. These cargoes naturally will help replace recent warehouse deliveries, but few further clearances are expected from Brazil until the foreign exchange situation becomes sufficiently settled to make it easier to finance purchases, and the local trade is still more or less at sea as to the probable cost of importations. The business was reported on the curb today and the further closing up of deliveries of small lots. It is undertaken through the voluntary committee which began early sittings yesterday. The local spot market was steady with Rio 7s quoted at 8¼c and Santos 4s at 13¾c.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF DRY GOODS MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Prices on cotton goods are very irregular. Print cloths are declining while some lines of sheetings are advancing. Fine cottons have grown more active in the past few days. Leading houses handling colored cotton goods have sent out notices placing their goods at value because of the uncertainty of being able to secure dyestuffs. The fear of very big cotton prices is deterring some buyers of goods from operating although they feel sacrificed goods may be worse later on. Export trade is at a standstill owing to inability to make shipments and importers are selling all the balance of their stocks ang have no hope of securing shipments from Germany, Austria and other continental countries for some time. It is hoped that British shipments may be resumed later on.

Imported goods have been advanced and stock balances are being reduced steadily. Large purchases of cotton duck abroad have been held to take the place of burlap, which is held up by the shipping embargo. Estimates of sales to date reach 15,000,000 yards, principally $4.75 Mast, $2.85, $3.50 and four-yard sheetings. Many lines of printed goods can only be bought from stock as manufacturers of ginghams are disposed to contract all orders for future delivery. Color assortments on spring goods are being cut down.

Prices on cotton goods are as follows: Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x60s, 4c; 64x60s, 3¾c; 38½ inch, 64x64's, 4¾c; brown sheetings, Southern standards, 5¼c; 4-yard, 4¾c; 3-yard, 3¾c; 2-yard, 3c; 2-yard, 9-ounce, 14c; tickings, 8-ounce, 12c; Standard prints, 4c; staple and staple ginghams, 6¼c; dress ginghams, 9¼c.

MINNEAPOLIS FLOUR OUTPUT

The Northwestern Miller says:

The Minneapolis flour output last week increased 82,000 barrels. The total output (week ending August 8) was 387,565 barrels, against 226,480 in 1913, 245,715 in 1912 and 300,735 in 1911.

The capacity in operation this week is slightly smaller than last, but with the mills running somewhat longer it would not be surprising if the production should total 400,000 barrels. In the corresponding week last year it was 344,430 barrels.

The weekly output was of the following per cent of the maximum capacity:

	Aug. 8.	Aug. 1.	Aug. 9, 1913.	Aug. 10, 1912.
Minneapolis	76	70	64	54
Outside mills	57	53	65	54

Minneapolis and interior mills on an average did a good business last week. Necessarily it was all domestic. Most mills sold all the way from full output to double that quantity. Some of them experienced the best demand from New England and other eastern markets, while others derived fair trade from central and western states.

While occasional orders were placed of 5,000 barrels or more, usually the quantities were of only moderate size and their aggregate was asked for. Bakers were in the market rather less than were jobbers. While some mills broke off having their nearby bookings August 4, with most of them the trade was comparatively uniform in volume from day to day.

There was every indication that buyers had definitely fair trade from central and western states.

While some mills broke off having their nearby bookings August 4, with most of them the trade was comparatively uniform in volume from day to day.

There was every indication that buyers had definitely fair trade from central and western states. Some of them objected to the very substantial advance which millers were disposed to ask, they would finally conclude to place orders at the price the miller quoted. It is unnecessary to refer again to the fact that sales from a fairly good profit to the miller.

With the natural fluctuations in wheat from day to day, millers continue to make quotations on flour only subject to confirmation.

With buyers low in supplies, they are flooding millers with directions on old and new orders and the mills are running as strongly as possible and have no difficulty about getting wheat is somewhat restricting the current output.

No foreign business was attempted and millers were unable to quote prices.

First clears is the big demand and prices are strong. One sale was made yesterday at $4.55 bureau, or 10c to 15c over sales. Some mills are not able to make shipment as promptly as they would like, however, while not in quite so strong a position as first clears, in good demand, with excellent prices obtainable.

Minneapolis and outside millers are asking for standard patents a range of $5.50@6.00 per 196 pounds in wood.

The millfeed situation at Minneapolis is very tight. Almost every day sees an advance in price. Since August 4 bran has been advanced $2.00@2.50, standard middlings $2.00@2.00; flour middlings, $1.00, and red dog, $1.50. All three of the large Minneapolis mills have practically withdrawn from the market and are not making any quotations, either for prompt or future shipment, except on small lots to mixed cars with flour.

The added entrance in the price of sacks, owing to the war interrupting shipments of jute, completely has overcome what at most sales from a dollar to a dollar and a half per barrel. Mills are not able to make shipment as promptly as they would like to because of delays while not in quite so strong a position as first clears, in good demand, with excellent prices obtainable.

BROAD STREET IS CHANGING TO PLACE OF RETAIL TRADE

Removal of Produce Concerns Followed by Extensive Alterations of Old Buildings From Marietta to Mitchell

OLD LANDMARKS NOW HAVE RETAIL TENANTS

Some of the Places That Have Been Changed--Nearness to Whitehall Gives Street Overflow Business

For many years Broad street, from Marietta to Mitchell, was devoted exclusively to the wholesale produce business. There was virtually no retail business on the street.

About a year ago, however, sixteen produce concerns moved into quarters of their own on Produce Row, where the L. & N. railroad erected a $200,000 building to house them. They are now located between Central avenue avenue and the Washington street viaduct, beginning at a point north of Hunter street.

Following the change of the produce dealers, many old buildings were remodeled and new concerns took leases. Large Whitehall street concerns who formerly had their back doors on Broad street, put in new fronts there and made Broad street entrances.

ONLY A BLOCK REMOVED.

As Broad street is only a block from the Whitehall street shopping district, whose front-foot value is the highest in the south, there is no reason in the world why it should not take the overflow retail business of the expensive and crowded centers.

Concerns handling lines of a special nature could just as well take locations on Broad street.

Some very important changes have been made on Broad street. The corner of Broad and Alabama streets, which was formerly part of the quarters of The Journal, has been razed and a new three-story building erected, which now contains retail tenants.

The old building near the corner, which was also partly used by The Journal, has been converted into a hotel and restaurant.

Another corner of Broad and Alabama streets was formerly the quarters of the Postal Telegraph company and other tenants. That corner has been remodeled, subdivided, and is now occupied by several retail concerns.

Across Alabama street, still another corner underwent the same process of alterations, now containing several new retail concerns as tenants.

One of the corners on the viaduct, which had long been occupied by a produce concern, is now being converted into stores and offices.

Going to the other side of Alabama street, Kress has built a $50,00 addition, making a Broad street entrance to his Whitehall street store quite as effective as the latter.

Down at the corners of Broad and Hunter streets, the Davison-Paxon-Stokes company has erected a great addition to its Whitehall street store having effective fronts on its Broad street side as well as Whitehall. The J. M. High company also has paid attention to its Broad street front.

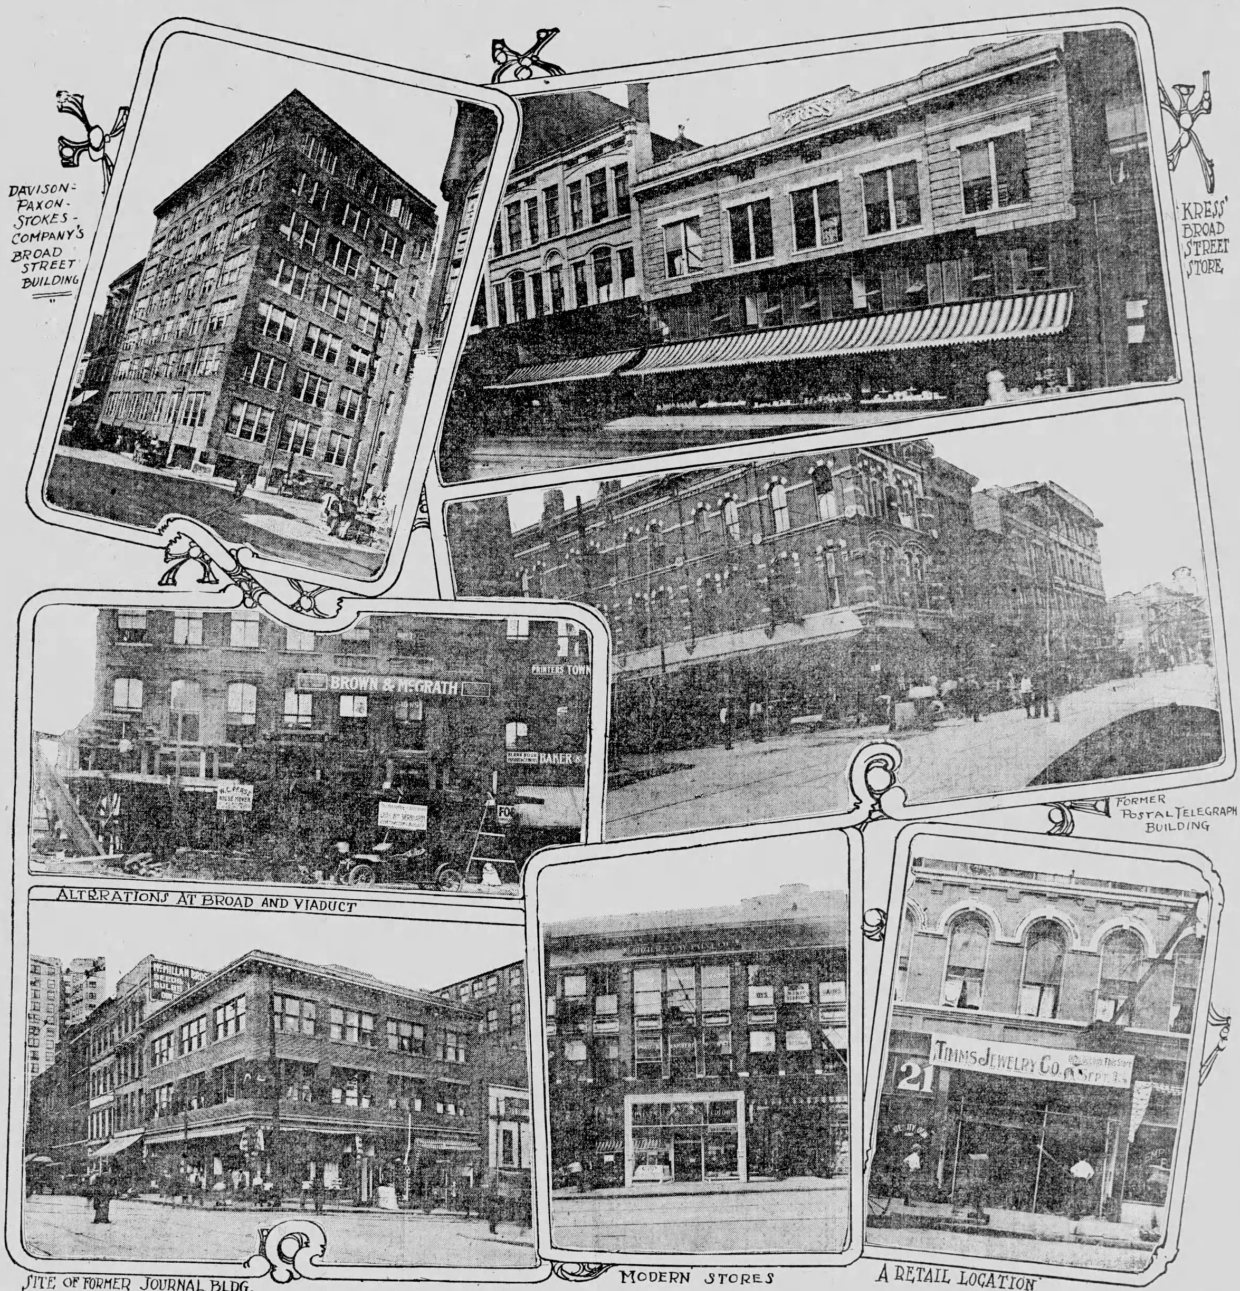
NEW FRONTS PUT IN.

In between the various locations, several retail concerns that formerly had quarters in the congested centers, have opened new locations. New fronts have been put in and the general appearance of each block has been changed for the better.

The removal of so many produce concerns has done away with the congestion of drays and trucks that for so long interfered with the through traffic of the street.

Now it is one of the main thoroughfares from town to Mitchell street and the Terminal station, having the advantage of a smooth pavement and a level grade.

BROAD STREET, FORMER WHOLESALE DISTRICT, NOW BEING TURNED OVER TO RETAIL BUSINESS



COUNTY IS NOW MOVING INTO NEW COURT HOUSE

Sheriff Went In Last Week, Others Will Follow by September

As already forecast, there is every indication that the county will have moved all its offices and courts into the new court house by September 1.

The sheriff's office was moved into the new building the past week, and has begun work in its new quarters.

The finishing touches are now being put on the building and work is being rushed to completion. It is expected that every county department will be at work in its new quarters by September 1.

The Atlanta Builders' exchange held its annual barbecue at the Burns club yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

There were many guests, including ladies, and the barbecue was an elaborate affair and was greatly enjoyed by those present.

TITLE COMPANY REPORTS RECORD BUSINESS IN 1914

J. W. Mason Says He Has Never Been as Busy Before--Most of the Titles Represent Small Transactions and There Are a Good Many Loan Deeds, but Business Has Embraced a Wider Territory and More Varieties of Property

J. W. Mason, of the Atlanta Title Guarantee company, is authority for the statement that his company has done more title work this year than in any previous corresponding period in its history.

He admits that it is nearly entirely small business, and that some of it is examination for loans, but he says that the actual trading that has come through his hands is exceedingly large.

He added that for the first time in the history of the company the annual vacations of the force have constituted a problem, and outside help has had to be enlisted.

Mr. Mason's statement is further proof of the fact that the volume of small real estate business has kept up well, in fact has really improved during 1914.

Mr. Mason added that trading had undoubtedly covered a greater territory during 1914 than in the past. It has not been confined to one or two highly speculative sections as in the past, but has embraced a greater variety of property.

CONNALLY BUILDING TO RECEIVE BIDS TO AUG. 26

The Exposition Cotton Mills announces that plans are being drawn for the erection of a warehouse and storage room.

FAMOUS BELMONT FARM NEAR SMYRNA IS SOLD

Loring Brown Sells to W. M. Fambrough, Who Will Occupy Place

Earle R. Greene, of the Thomson & Lynes agency, has sold for Loring Brown to W. M. Fambrough Mr. Brown's famous poultry and stock farm near Smyrna, known as "Belmont." The price was $20,000.

Mr. Brown took as part payment a twelve-room double house at 793 Highland avenue, near Ponce de Leon avenue, at $12,000.

Belmont farm is located just beyond Smyrna on the Marietta car line, and consists of about thirty-six acres, with about 450 feet frontage on Marietta road and about 2,000 feet frontage on the Concord road.

About fifteen acres is cultivated in alfalfa hay, the balance being devoted to truck farming, poultry and fancy stock raising. The improvements consist of a fourteen-room brick veneered home, chicken runs, barns, brooders, goldfish ponds, outhouses, etc., this being one of the most up-to-date and scientific farms in the south.

Mr. Fambrough will occupy the place as his home and continue with Mr. Brown's assistance to handle the 3,000 chickens and pigeons now on the place.

Mr. Brown will give most of his time to handling 3,000 acres of land near Oglethorpe, Ga.

ASK CAR EXTENSION FOR BOLTON AND ADAMSVILLE

A movement is on foot on the part of property owners and others to ask the Georgia Railway and Power company for a street car extension which would form a loop taking in Bolton, Adamsville and that section in the western part of the county near Atlanta.

The plan is to form a loop of the river and West View car lines, having them connect on the Gordon road.

This would not only benefit the community, but would make accessible two or three county institutions.

As it is that section is without car service, although it has an almost perfect system of roads. The project as yet has not taken definite shape but those interested in it are working on it.

REAL ESTATE ACTIVE WITH SOME CASH TRANSACTIONS

The week past was an active one in real estate, all things, the European war included, considered.

There was the sale of the Lamar place, on which a cash payment of $40,000 was made.

Another sale of the week was the Orpheum theater at $62,000, upon which a cash payment of $20,000 was made. The Ogletree sale of $45,000, mentioned yesterday, was also a cash transaction.

There were, besides, some changes of fair importance, and some lease announcements.

Building was slow during the week, but as it compared with an extremely dull period last year, a slight gain was shown from day to day. The year continues slightly behind, but the month continues a substantial advance.

The war situation and its effect on real estate is being discussed a good deal, but agents and traders feel assured that the government will soon devise some method by which the cotton of the south can be marketed.

In fact, such plans are now being worked out, and even if the war continues for some time, it is believed that shipping will be resumed before very long.

Meanwhile prices are holding their own. Any favorable news would soon start a revival. The fundamental conditions were never better.

Miss Louie H. Smith, of Atlanta, an artist who has been living in Paris, has reached London after having been marooned in the French city for several days.

Target Practice Shows New York Is Protected From Warship Attack

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Target practice last night by the One hundred and twenty-third coast artillery at Fort Hancock, demonstrated that New York harbor is well protected from battleship invasion. Out of twelve shots with 12-inch mortar guns, fired at an illuminated target four miles away and moving at the rate of eight miles an hour, the artillerymen made ten hits. This army and navy officers declared, was a record which they doubted had ever been equalled anywhere.

BIG FORTUNE IS LEFT TO FUND FOR MERCHANTS

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—Nearly three-quarters of a million dollars will be added to the merchants' fund for the care and relief of indigent and aged wholesale merchants of this city through the death of Mrs. Catherine Richardson, 92, recently at Atlantic City. Her father, George L. Oliver, a cotton and woolen merchant, died 32 years ago leaving a fortune of $700,000 which his will specified should revert to the fund on death of his daughter.

Mr. Oliver was one of the early members of the fund, which was chartered here in 1854 and at the time of Mrs. Richardson's death amounted to about $500,000.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

W. G. MASNBURN SPEAKS FOR SENATOR SMITH AT WRIGHTSVILLE

Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—W. G. Masnburn, of Atlanta, spoke to the largest and most enthusiastic crowd of farmers here today that has listened to politics here during the campaign. He was introduced by Judge Hall, of Dublin, and explained clearly why Senator Smith should be reelected.

Mr. Mashburn was introduced by J. M. Cox, chairman of the local Hoke Smith committee. He told of Mr. Mashburn's record as governor and senator, Smith's record as governor and senator, and showed that Smith elected Brown, a friend of the people, and Brown has showed the safety farmers by the fake charges concerning the confirmation of the negro Terrell and Lincoln Johnson to minor offices. Mr. Mashburn also told of Senator Smith's parcel post bill making Postmaster Burleson's parcel post bill possible. Senator Smith's effort to establish the parcel post. His speech was an able and comprehensive summary of Senator Smith's record and was received by the entire audience as a friend to every farmer present.

Hon. Walter Marshburn—Monday, August 17, 12:45 p. m., at Hiram, Paulding county.

Hon. W. M. Smith—Tuesday, August 18, 11 a. m., at Alpharetta, Milton county.

Hon. R. A. Broyles—Monday, August 17, at Marietta; Tuesday, August 18, at Lawrenceville.

Hon. J. E. T. Bowden—Monday, August 17, at Monroe, Walton county.

BOWDEN SAYS MR. SMITH WILL CARRY 100 COUNTIES.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., Aug. 15.—Hon. J. E. T. Bowden, who returned today from LaGrange, where he spoke in behalf of Senator Hoke Smith, states that in his opinion Senator Smith will not less than a hundred counties in the primary that a hundred counties in the primary Wednesday and will over his opponent by a majority not under 5,000.

He speaks at Monroe Monday, and will make endeavor to get Hugh Dorsey to debate with him. His request for a joint debate at LaGrange met refusal. Mr. Bowden speaking for Smith after Hardman completed a speech for Brook.

CONGRESSMAN BELL SPEAKS AT TOCCOA.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TOCCOA, Ga., Aug. 15.—Congressman Thomas M. Bell, candidate to succeed himself from the ninth district, spoke here Saturday afternoon.

MANY SPEECHES ARE MADE FOR J. RANDOLPH ANDERSON.

Friends of Randolph Anderson, candidate for governor, practically covered the state Saturday in his behalf. There were four speakers for him in widely separated counties.

James F. Grant, spoke to a large audience at Albany.

At Valdosta, John W. Bennett of Waycross, who is well known in Valdosta, spoke to a large number of his friends in the interest of Mr. Anderson.

Carl Nicholson, of Atlanta, spoke at Hazlehurst.

Basil Stockbridge, of Atlanta, was selected to fill the engagements of Mr. Anderson which were cancelled on account of the death of his wife's mother. He spoke at Newnan, Lutherseville, and Fayetteville.

Mr. Grant speaks Monday at Hazlehurst. Several others will make speeches for Mr. Anderson on Monday and Tuesday in various sections of the state.

BUSY CAMPAIGN FOR CLIFFORD WALKER.

Special Dispatch to The Journal.

MONROE, Ga., Aug. 15.—The headquarters of Clifford M. Walker in this city, the home of his birth and his boyhood place within these, the closing days of his remarkable, record-breaking campaign for the office of attorney general.

Every day the mails are crowded with assurances of support from all sections of the state and rarely, if ever, does any letter fail to express assurances of a sweeping victory for Walton's candidate.

There is no doubt as to Mr. Walker's popularity at home.

MANGUM ISSUES STATEMENT ON ANDERSON'S CAMPAIGN.

Walter Mangum, of Savannah, assistant manager for Randolph Anderson, candidate for governor, late Saturday afternoon issued a statement predicting that Mr. Anderson would be the next governor of Georgia, and that he would secure enough votes to be elected on the first ballot.

Hon. Randolph Anderson will be elected governor of Georgia on the first ballot," said Mr. Mangum. "Friends of the other candidates are coming to county after county to Mr. Anderson and he will go into the convention far in the lead of his opponents.

Waging his campaign in a systematic business like manner and without flurrah, Mr. Anderson has grown steadily, and this is particularly true of the last two weeks. The wave of hysteria caused by sensational speeches died out, and the people, realizing that he is the logical and best fitted candidate, have rallied to his standard.

Reports coming into headquarters by state and by letter show that sections of the state previously considered in doubt are now in line for Mr. Anderson and will swell his majority Wednesday. South Georgia is almost solidly in line for the only candidate, with chances of election, from that section of the state. Ninety-three years, and Fort Gaines is supporting him, mainly because he is a south Georgian and the belief that he is the best qualified man in the race.

We feel confident of election, believing that the friends of Mr. Anderson will keep up the work until the close of the polls Wednesday evening."

CALLS FARMERS AND UNION MEN TO REPUDIATE GOV. BROWN.

Tom Hutchins, of Athens, Ga., formerly president of the Georgia state federation, international association, of which he is still a member, has issued a communication to farmers and union men asking the repudiate former governor Brown for the stand he took in August, 1913.

Mr. Hutchins calls attention to the position of Mr. Brown in regard to labor, especially in reference to charges of lawlessness against the union, declaring them to be untrue. He refers also to the assistance that unions boasted of their defenders in the governor's office. He says that the laboring men are thankful to have a surplus, the action of the legislature which, he says, was passed for their benefit when need is great.

In conclusion, Mr. Hutchins asks his fellow union men and the farmers to vote as one next Wednesday and repudiate Governor Brown, the fight he has made on organized labor.

GOV. SLATON MAKES SPEECH AT CARNESVILLE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—Governor Slaton, candidate for United States senate, spoke to about a thousand people here today. He was introduced by E. W. Coker, one of the prominent farmers for Franklin county. His speech was on the tax equalization law.

HARDMAN AND SLATON SPEAK AT ROYSTON.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROYSTON, Ga., Aug. 15.—Dr. G. Hardman, in the interest of his candidacy for governor and Governor Slaton, in defense of the tax equalization law, spoke here Saturday to the same audience of several hundred. Dr. Hardman is very strong in this section and his speech was splendidly received. Governor Slaton was carefully listened to and his speech was well received. He did not mention his senatorial candidacy.

ITINERARY ANNOUNCED FOR HOKE SMITH SPEAKERS

The following engagements for gentlemen who are speaking in behalf of Senator Hoke Smith were announced Saturday afternoon by the Smith headquarters:

Hon. Walter Marshburn—Monday, August 17, 12:45 p. m., at Hiram, Paulding county.

Hon. W. M. Smith—Tuesday, August 18, 11 a. m., at Alpharetta, Milton county.

Hon. R. A. Broyles—Monday, August 17, at Marietta; Tuesday, August 18, at Lawrenceville.

Hon. J. E. T. Bowden—Monday, August 17, at Monroe, Walton county.

DR. L. G. HARDMAN SPEAKS AT HARTWELL.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

HARTWELL, Ga., Aug. 15.—Dr. L. G. Hardman, candidate for governor, addressed the voters of Hart county here this afternoon on the issues involved in the gubernatorial race. He was heard attentively for an hour by several hundred voters. He reviewed his record as a representative and senator in the general assembly of Georgia and pointed out in a forceful and modest manner, the many measures he had introduced, and had passed, notably the teaching of agriculture in the public schools, the creation of the state board of health; providing for the treatment of diptheria, hydrophobia, and tuberculosis, and many other contagious maladies; the bill authorizing the teaching of civil government in the public schools, and what he had done toward securing larger appropriations for the common schools of the state. Dr. Hardman's address was well received. He was presented to his audience by Mr. A. B. Skelton.

QUITMAN VOTERS DECLARE HARDWICK WELL RECEIVED.

The following was wired to The Journal Saturday night with the request that it be published:

QUITMAN, Ga., Aug. 15.—Editor Atlanta Journal: After reading the article in today's Constitution in reference to the speech of Hon. Thomas W. Hardwick, under the heading, "Quitman voters resent attack on governor," we, the undersigned citizens of Quitman in the interest of truth and fairness feel it our duty to reply to this article. Evidently it was written by some Slaton supporter and was so far from the truth and so misrepresenting that it is only fair that the public should know the truth. Mr. Hardwick spoke to a crowd at least four times the size that has listened to any candidate or speaker during the present race. His audience was with him and applauded him from start to finish. All his references to his opponents were of the very friendliest nature and were applauded by his hearers from time to time. He was never interrupted except by applause.

His speech was very able and won him many votes in this county, which was already counted safely in his column. W. D. Blalock, A. E. Williams, Milton Oelsner, D. J. Blasingame, W. T. Horne, W. R. King, G. D. Dorough, C. G. Denmark.

700 MAJORITY FOR SMITH PREDICTED IN GWINNETT.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—A consolidation of the various Hoke Smith clubs of Gwinnett county was had here today, showing a total number who have signed the different club lists of 1,567. The Hoke Smith followers are elated over this large number and insist that it is very significant in view of the fact that Mr. Smith carried Gwinnett in 1910 with 1,822 votes, and in the recent canvass several sections of the county have not been worked. They confidently believe that he will carry the county by 700 majority. J. H. McGee is president of the club and A. T. Green is secretary.

DELLWORTH HALL SPEAKS FOR HARRIS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CAIRO, Ga., Aug. 15.—Dellworth Hall, of Macon, addressed the voters here Saturday morning in the interest of Nat E. Harris, candidate for governor. Colonel J. F. Stone introduced the speaker.

NEWELL MAKES STATEMENT ON GOV. SLATON'S CAMPAIGN.

Alfred C. Newell, chairman of Governor Slaton's campaign committee, Saturday evening issued the following statement:

"We consider the campaign practically closed and are absolutely confident as to the result in favor of Mr. Slaton. We have an active campaign committee of more than four thousand men in every section of the state. These men are our friends. From them we have received reports recently which indicate an overwhelming result in Mr. Slaton's favor. In addition to our active campaign committee, we are in direct touch with more than twenty thousand friends. If any one doubts the accuracy of this statement we are prepared to show them.

"According to our latest tabluation we are certain of one hundred and three counties. Of the remaining counties there are not over six in which we consider we have no chance, in all the remaining counties we have a good fighting chance.

"As every one knows, Mr. Slaton is the only man running in every county. Mr. Hardwick and Mr. Felder have parceled out the counties. Mr. Slaton is a candidate over the whole state.

"I understand it is being claimed in the Kimball house lobby by the adherents of Mr. Hardwick that he will carry eighty-one counties, with a voting strength of two hundred and eighty-one in convention. This includes the absurd claim of Fulton county. Even including Fulton, his adherents are claiming barely enough to elect. But, the preposterousness of his claim for Fulton is enough to bring a laugh from the entire state. Mr. Hardwick takes himself too seriously. The absurdity of the claim of his management as to Fulton indicates the hollowness of their entire claim.

"That Mr. Slaton will sweep the state, I have no doubt."

CLIFFORD WALKER HAS VISITED MANY COUNTIES.

One of the hardest and most effective campaigners now before the voters of Georgia is Clifford M. Walker, of Monroe, candidate for attorney general.

In his race for the attorney generalship, Mr. Walker has visited practically every county in Georgia, and has made tours through a majority of them. He is confident of election and his Atlanta headquarters report that every mail brings strong indorsements and pledges of support from leading men in every section of the state.

As solicitor general of the western circuit, Mr. Walker has given general satisfaction and has received the indorsement of the Bar association of the circuit in his candidacy for attorney general.

FINDS BROWN MEN ARE FEW AND FAR BETWEEN.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

METTER, Ga., Aug. 15.—Colonel Walter Marshburn, of Atlanta, spent Friday in Bulloch county visiting Register, Pulaski, and Metter, in the interest of Senator Hoke Smith's candidacy. Colonel Marshburn spoke in Metter in the afternoon to a good sized crowd. At Register about fifty voters were seen and they stated that there was not a Brown man in town and but precious few in the country around. Many of those in and around Register who are now strong for Smith were up until this election among the strongest Brown men.

At Pulaski about twenty-five or thirty voters were seen and not a Brown man could be found in town, and it was stated that there was not one Brown man in town, and none around town. Many of the voters in Pulaski were once strong Brown men, but are now strong Smith men.

At Metter, the county seat of the newly created county of Candler, a single Brown man could not be found. However, it is stated that there are two or three here. It is stated by those who are in a position to know that 90 per cent of the farmers in this section who once supported Brown are now active Smith men.

Bulloch county has always gone for Brown but it is safe in the Smith column this year. Mr. Marshburn left Friday afternoon for Dublin. He speaks Saturday in Wrightsville and Kite.

HARDWICK ADDRESSES VOTERS IN GRIFFIN OPERA HOUSE.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GRIFFIN, Ga., Aug. 15.—Thomas W. Hardwick, candidate for the short term in the United States senate, spoke at the opera house here tonight to an enthusiastic audience, composed of citizens of all parts of the county, who gathered here to listen to the congressman's argument.

Mr. Hardwick was introduced by Judge T. E. Patterson, the prison commissioner, who declared that whether or not the audience agreed with Mr. Hardwick's political principal, it must respect him for the magnificent record he has made during his service in the lower house.

Mr. Hardwick's Griffin speech made his fifth address to voters during Saturday, but a natural hoarseness didn't keep his voice from reaching every person in the big opera house.

He was frequently interrupted by applause. His speech generally was similar to the ones delivered in Atlanta and other places.

SPEAKING DATES FOR JUDGE HARRIS.

Judge Nat E. Harris, of Macon, candidate for governor, will speak at Alpharetta, Monday morning, and Monday evening he will make two speeches in Atlanta.

The first of these will be at the corner of Walker and Peters streets, where a meeting of Judge Harris' friends will be held at 7:30.

The second will be at the East Point city hall, where Judge Harris will address the voters of this city. Friends from East Point, College Park and Hapeville, John W. Moore will introduce Judge Harris at this meeting and Judge J. C. McKenzie will preside.

Judge Harris will spend Tuesday in Atlanta resting after his campaign.

SKIN TROUBLE ITCHED AND BURNED

On Body. Could Not Rest. Broke Out in Pimples All Over. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

R. F. D. No. 1, Box 164, Bridgewater, N. C.—"I was suffering with a skin trouble which began after a spell of sickness six years ago. It was mostly on my body and I could not rest for the itching and burning. It began like a nettle rash, then it would break out in pimples all over me. I would sting and burn and itch all over and I scratched until I was almost raw. At times I could hardly bear anything to rub against the parts that were affected.

"I do not know how many remedies, soaps, etc., I tried but none did me any good. Then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they seemed to be the very thing that I needed. I only used them four weeks and they completely healed me. I have not been bothered with the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. H. L. Patton, Jan. 31, 1914.

MRS. HOLT'S FUNERAL CONDUCTED AT LUMPKIN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LUMPKIN, Ga., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Fort Holt, a native of this place, but more recently of Cordele, was buried here Friday. She was forty-five years old, and had been ill for some time.

She leaves a husband, Mr. Ford Holt, of Cordele; mother and father, of this place; one sister, Mrs. Epps Brown, of Atlanta, and five children. The children are as follows: Mr. Robert Holt of Atlanta, Mrs. Dennard, Misses Estelle and Irene Holt, Fort Holt, Jr., of Cordele.

310 TUBERCULOSIS CASES HANDLED PAST MONTH

Miss Rost Lowe, Association Secretary, Submits Report to Executive Board

At the regular monthly meeting of the executive board of the Anti-Tuberculosis association Thursday in the Gould building, the report of Miss Rosa Lowe, secretary, showed that 310 tubercular patients were treated during the past month; fourteen of these, ten whites and four negroes, were sent to the Battle Hill sanitarium.

H. S. Willett, president, after discussing plans for work in the fall, reported he had been before the board of county commissioners in behalf of the association and that the commissioners had voted $150 a month to the work of fighting the white plague. Mr. Willett also said he recently appeared before the Fulton County Medical society and read resolutions passed by the educational committee asking the co-operation of physicians. Mr. Willett said increased interest of physicians in the work of the association has resulted.

The vital statistics bill and the public health bill, recently passed by the Georgia legislature, were discussed at length. Both bills will be of great value in aiding the work of the association, in the opinion of the board.

Besides Mr. Willett and Miss Lowe, those present at the meeting were Miss Rhoda Kauffman, H. S. Cole, Wade Harding, Bernard Suttler and J. E. Sommerfield.

Named Director

WARREN H. TOOLE

Mr. Toole's choice as a regional bank director is meeting with wide approval in Georgia.

Waco to Have Bank

The Citizens' Bank of Waco, Haralson county, Ga., has applied to the secretary of state, Philip Cook for a charter. It is to start with a capital stock of $25,000.

GEORGIA BANKERS PLEASED WITH ELECTION OF TOOLE

Small Town Bankers of Georgia Substantially Represented

WINDER, Ga., Aug. 15.—The small town bankers of Georgia will be substantially represented in the new regional bank by the election of Warren H. Toole, of Winder, as a class A director.

Mr. Toole is president of the First National bank of Winder, of which he was the organizer, and is one of the foremost and best known bankers in the state.

Warren H. Toole began to get his experience in the banking business when he was but thirteen years of age, as office boy. In four years he had saved enough money to enable him to take a course in the Eastman college, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. After the completion of this course he entered a bank in Macon, now the Commercial National, as a bookkeeper. In 1896 he went to the Bank of Winder, then a small branch bank, as cashier. Here his ability was shown in the manner in which he handled the affairs of this bank, and he was often called upon to assist in the organization of many of the banks of Northeast Georgia.

His experience has been gained in every position in a bank, from office boy to president, and his ability has been generally recognized. He was recently been elected to the presidency of the North Georgia Trust company of Winder a financial institution with a capital of one hundred thousand dollars, and a directorate comprising some of the strongest me in the northeastern section of the state.

In addition to these he is connected with a number of other banking institutions in that section of the state, as well as manufacturing and other commercial interests. He has unlimited faith in Georgia farm lands, and has subdivided number of large plantations into smaller ones, selling them to able farmers on easy terms, a service of value both to the individual and to the state.

Mr. Toole will serve with L. P. Hillyer of Macon, who represents group 1, and Mr. F. W. Foote, of Hattiesburg, Miss., representing group 2, in the class A group, all of who are regarded as among the strong representatives of southern banking interests. The country banks will have in Mr. Toole an able representative.

H. S. BENJAMIN FINDS HIS PARENTS ARE SAFE

Senator Hoke Smith Helps Atlantian Locate Relatives in Germany

Through the assistance of Senator Hoke Smith, H. S. Benjamin, 115 Garnett street, has located his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Benjamin, in Germany. He had not heard from them for several weeks, when they were in Berlin and were becoming alarmed for their safety.

Mr. Benjamin appealed to Senator Smith last Thursday to assist him in finding his parents. The senator replied, calling attention to the uncertain delay in the transmission, but saying that he had already taken the matter up with the secretary of state.

Friday afternoon Mr. Benjamin received a telegram from Secretary of State W. J. Bryan, advising him that the American consul in Dresden had cabled him that Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin were safe there.

TRAVELING MEN WILL NOT LOSE VOTE ON WEDNESDAY

Wholesalers and Jobbers Arrange for Men to Return Home

Hundreds of traveling men, who work out of Atlanta, will be back here to cast their ballots at the primary Wednesday.

At an informal meeting of the executives of a number of large wholesale and jobbing houses in Atlanta on Saturday, it was agreed that all traveling men who are registered from Fulton county will be allowed to return to headquarters on Wednesday to vote. This means hundreds of salesmen, who often lose their chance to vote, will be able to cast their ballots this year.

The action of the wholesale and jobbing houses is expected to materially help Senator Hoke Smith in his race for re-election to the United States senate, as the traveling men are afire with Hoke Smith enthusiasm.

Leaders among the traveling men assert that practically every salesman in the state is working for the re-election of Senator Smith and all are anxious to help on Wednesday with a vote.

Will Aid Textile Workers

At the home of Mr. B. J. Cannon, 192 Wylie street, at 8 o'clock Monday evening, the Socialists of Atlanta will hold a meeting in the interest of the striking textile workers of the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills and a number of leading members of the Socialist party will deliver addresses. All friends of labor are urged to attend this meeting.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, the heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is which contains no dangerous narcotics or alcohol.

It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fevers; for the run-down, anaemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing.

In liquid or tablet form at most drug stores or send 50 one-cent stamps for trial box to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

TOOMBS, FORMERLY FOR BROWN, NOW FOR SMITH

Voters Appreciate Great Service Senator Is Rendering Georgia

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

VIDALIA, Ga., Aug. 15.—In the Vidalia district of Toombs county there are less than 400 registered voters. From this list of voters the Vidalia Hoke Smith club has been formed, and the members are pledged to support Senator Smith are pledged to support Senator Smith with their vote and influence. Probably one of the most remarkable things about the club is the number of names on its rolls that have never before supported Mr. Smith. This county has never given its vote to Mr. Smith, but the Vidalia Hoke Smith club and the allied clubs hich will be formed in the other county towns and settlements will guarantee Toombs to the Smith column this year.

The club has voted a resolution of confidence to Senator Smith and the citizens of the county generally appreciate the magnificent work Senator Smith is doing for the cotton planters of the south and as a mark of their appreciation they seem to have taken the burden of his campaign on their own shoulders and will make a fight to return him as the senior senator.

Below is a partial list of the Vidalia Hoke Smith club or rather a list to date, the names being secured in a few hours, and the list is still open and growing:

"We, the undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to support Hon. Hoke Smith for the long term as United States senator from Georgia and to use our influence in his behalf:"

MEMPHIS MAN KILLED IN WRECK IN ARKANSAS

(By Associated Press.)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 15.—C. H. Webb, of Memphis, traveling auditor, died here of injuries sustained in the derailment of the Hot Springs-Memphis passenger train on the Rock Island road at Germania, Ark., this afternoon. Eight others were injured, but none seriously. Believing the switch was tampered with, officials of the road have started an investigation.

NATIONAL FOREST FIRES CREATE GRAVE SITUATION

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—With one thousand forest fire fighters battling in the national forests of Montana and northern Idaho, 50 uncontrolled fires burning and weather conditions in the northwest more threatening than at any time since the great fires of 1910, forest service officials here today said the situation was grave.

FINE "SHOW" SEASON IS PROMISED ATLANTA

A SCENE FROM "SPARTACUS" AT GRAND

Great Movie Show to Open the Atlanta--Forsyth Vaudeville Begins Again Soon--Lyric Opens Columbia Circuit

With the coming of "Cabiria," the world's greatest motion picture, to the Atlanta theater Monday and reopening of the Forsyth with vaudeville on August 24, the 1914-15 theatrical season begins here with prospects of being the most attractive of years.

"Cabiria" will have a preliminary run of two weeks. On September 21 the Atlanta announces its regular opening with the musical comedy, "Adele," and forty other attractions already booked, including such stars as David Warfield, Maude Adams, Billie Burk, Margaret Anglin and others, a complete list of which is given today.

The Lyric opens two weeks from tomorrow as a house of the Columbia Amusement company circuit, advertising musical comedy, farce and extravaganza at popular prices. After a rather unsuccessful season of stock last year, the management feels that it has found the right sort of attractions to appeal to its patrons and is looking forward to packed houses during the fall and winter.

Jake Wells has formed a southern circuit for Columbia shows out of his theaters in Richmond, Norfolk, Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis, Nashville and New Orleans. At the Lyric there will be evening performances and regular matinees, with prices ranging from ten cents for unreserved seats in the gallery to $1.00 for box seats.

The Columbia shows are similar to the comedy offerings of Ward and Vokes, Yirke and Adams, Dave Lewis and others which have made hits here. They will come to Atlanta direct from Birmingham, going from here to Nashville.

SCENES FROM SIX COUNTRIES.

The motion picture, "Cabiria," which plays here two weeks is the product of Gabrielle d'Annunizc, Italy's great poet. It was filmed at a cost of a quarter of a million, five thousand actors and supers employed, the scenes made in six different foreign countries.

The story deals with the tremendous conflict between Rome and Carthage and the film is replete with ambitious scenic specialties, such as sea fights between triremes, the plunge of Axilla from towering cliffs to escape the priests of Moloch, the eruption of Mount Etna, fierce fighting in walled cities and the like.

The production takes about three hours to run. With it there comes to Atlanta, straight from the Knickerbocker theater, New York, a grand opera chorus and a symphony orchestra with music written especially for the picture.

Manager H. L. Cardoza, of the Forsyth, announces that the local vaudeville house will have better bookings this year than ever before. Jake Wells has given his personal attention to seeing that Atlanta is not slighted in the picking of good vaudeville acts, and many new stars will be seen, together with old favorites.

There will be regular matinee and night performances throughout the season, with a slight advance in prices at the matinees, an increase of 10 cents a seat for half of the lower floor.

The Grand will continue to show motion pictures until further notice. For the week beginning Monday four performances, at 2, 4, 7 and 9 o'clock, will be given daily of George Klein's latest and greatest photo-dramatic achievement, "Spartacus." The play enters around the famous rebellion of the gladiator-slave against the iron heel of his Roman masters, and the scenes are said to be magnificent in detail and voluptuous atmosphere.

Homer George has returned from New York with a fine array of bookings for the Atlanta theater. Adele is the first of them, on September 21, followed by Hanky Panky, another musical comedy, and "Oh, Oh, Delphine!" the New York success of last year.

DAVID WARFIELD COMING.

Atlantians will be especially delighted by the announcement that David Warfield, who has not been seen here since he appeared five years ago at the Grand in "The Music Master," returns in October for three performances of "The Auctioneer," which he revived in New York last season with wonderful success.

Other stars whose appearance will be welcomed are Maude Adams in a new play; Billie Burke in a new play; Margaret Anglin in a new play; Fannie Ward in "Madam President," in which she starred in New York last winter; Richard Carle and Hattie Williams in musical comedy; Raymond Hitchcock in "The Beauty Doctor;" George Arliss in "Disraeli," and McIntyre and Heath.

Several fine productions will run for a whole week at the Atlanta, notably "Peg o' My Heart," "The Garden of Allah," "Potash and Perlmutter," and "The Whip;" "Within the Law," which played two engagements here last year, returns again for half a week early in the season, with Clara Joel again playing the leading role.

A full list of shows already booked for the Atlanta is as follows. September 21-22, "Adele;" September 23-26, "Hanky Panky;" September 28-29, "Oh, Oh, Delphine;" October 1, 2, 3, Al G. Field's minstrels; "Today;" "The Things That Count;" David Warfield in "The Auctioneer;" "The Midnight Girl;" "Within the Law;" "Mutt and Jeff;" McIntyre and Heath in "The Ham Tree;" "Peg o' My Heart;" "The Lady of the Slipper;" Fannie Ward in "Madam President;" Richard Carle and Hattie Williams; "The Garden of Allah;" "High Jinks;" Maude Adams; "The Old Homestead; "Seven Keys to Baldpate;" "Potash and Perlmutter;" "The Yellow Ticket;" "Raymond Hitchcock in "The Beauty Doctor;" "Sari;" Margaret Anglin; "The Round Up;" O'Brien's minstrels; "Romance;" "Help Wanted;" George Evans' minstrels; George Arliss in Disraeli;" Billie Burke; "Nearly Married;" "The Little Cafe;" Kitty McKay; "The Poor Little Rich Girl;" "The Whip;" William H. Crane and Thomas Ross; "A Pair of Sixes."

Contracts for the above have already been signed. Other shows will be booked and announced from time to time throughout the season.

BERTHA CLAY PLAY AT THE BIJOU.

Unusual interest is being manifested by patrons of the Bijou in this week's offering of the Jewell Kelly company, which is to be a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's successful novel, "Thorne and Orange Blossoms." It has been a great many years since this drama was given on an Atlanta stage but its great success in former years is an assurance that patrons of the Bijou will find in this play one of the most interesting and appealing plays of the stock season. The cast of characters that has been selected is given below:

Lord Randolph Rivers..Vernon Wallace.
Oscar Carston .....Newton Ross
Tommy Swift .....Earl Higley
Hubert Forest Hay ..Chas. J. Lammers
Rev. Simon Barstow..T. C. McDonough
Lady Rivers, dowager..Helen Jackson.
Monica .....Lillian Douglas.
Lady Violet Rivers .....Rose Morris

The leading roles, of course, will be in the hands of Vernon Wallace and Rose Morris, whose many friends have come to look upon them as the greatest favorites that have appeared in stock in this city. Matinees will be given daily at 2:30 and night performances at 8:30. Monday night ladies will be admitted when accompanied by an escort holding a paid thirty-cent ticket purchased before six o'clock.

RABUN VOTERS RECOGNIZE ABILITY OF HOKE SMITH

Rabun County Smith Club Has Big Active Membership

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TALLULAH FALLS, Ga., Aug. 15.—During the past few days a strong division of the Rabun County Hoke Smith club has been organized here. The people of this county recognise the great ability which Senator Smith has demonstrated in the senate and they fully appreciate the work he is now doing to protect the price of cotton.

The petition circulated here and the names of those who signed it follow:

"We the undersigned citizens and voters of Tallulah Falls, Rabun county, in appreciation of the distinguished public services rendered in the past by the Hon. Hoke Smith, his present prominence and power in congress and his general fitness for the position to which he aspires, do hereby pledge our best efforts for his re-election to the United States senate."

Has a Cure For Pellagra

Parrie Nicholas, Laurel, Miss., writes: "Seems to me if I had not obtained your remedy when I did I would not have lived much longer. I am glad you discovered this wonderful remedy that will cure Pellagra. When I began taking Baughn's Pellagra Remedy my weight was 60 odd pounds; now it is 90 odd. I would like to have this published and sent to sufferers of Pellagra."

This is published at her request. If you suffer from Pellagra or know of any one who suffers from Pellagra it is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn, who has fought and conquered the dreaded malady right in the Pellagra Belt of Alabama.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off; sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea; either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope, if you have Pellagra you can be cured by Baughn's Pellagra Remedy. Get a big free book on Pellagra. Address Baughn's Compounding Co., Box 2022 Jasper, Ala., remembering money is returned in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—(Advt.)

Alex Stephens Denounces Circulars and Charges Of His Opponents

To the People of Georgia:

There is being circulated throughout the State pernicious circulars, advertisements and verbal charges falsely accusing me of habitually indorsing negro politicians and charging that my "personal tastes and inclinations" run along such lines.

I denounce these scurrilous attacks as willful, malicious, unmitigated lies, circulated and instigated at the eleventh hour of the campaign by a gang of Atlanta ringsters and political tricksters who are seeking to put one of their crowd, the Atlanta police magistrate, upon the bench of the Court of Appeals. They have a grip upon the politics of Atlanta and the county of Fulton and will stop at nothing to control the politics of the State. They realize that they have met defeat, and, seeing the hopelessness of their cause, they, in order to save it, now stoop to scandalous charges against me.

As against these false attacks I put the testimony of Judge Horace M. Holden, Judge Spencer R. Atkinson, Judge J. R. Pottle, Judge Arthur G. Powell, Hon. Sam S. Bennett, Judge H. Gray Lewis, Judge E. E. Cox, Hon Joseph E. Pottle and hundreds of others throughout the State who indorse my character as a lawyer and as a man.

I have run a clean campaign and expect to continue to do so. I have made no personal attacks upon Recorder Broyles. I have no mud to sling. I desire to go upon the bench free from the contamination of dirty politics.

Being a native Georgian and imbued with all the traditions of the South; having been raised by and in the house with the Vice President of the Confederacy and Governor of Georgia, my Uncle, Alexander H. Stephens, whose honored name I happen to bear, is alone a sufficient answer to these vicious attacks.

While I seek a place upon the Court of Appeals upon whatever merits I myself possess, I appeal to the people of Georgia, as my Uncle would do were he here today, to rally to my support on the 19th and rebuke this crowd of Atlanta ringsters and character assassins, who, for selfish ends and political purposes, are endeavoring to besmirch my character and, through me, to befoul and dishonor his good name.

ALEX W. STEPHENS.

Georgia Needs A Young, Active and Progressive Governor. That's Why the People, Wednesday, Are Going to Nominate

Randolph Anderson

If you were going to select a manager for your own business, would you choose a man of nearly three score and ten who had not been in touch with your affairs for twenty years or more, or would you choose an active, progressive and constructive business man who has been in direct touch with your affairs for over a decade?

Randolph Anderson knows Georgia's finances and Georgia's needs. He has been in close touch with and has studied them the last ten years or more.

Judge Nat E. Harris, of Macon, has not been in active touch with Georgia's affairs in nearly a quarter of a century.

Judge Harris is running almost solely on his war record. Capt. F. D. Bloodworth, of Savannah, one of Georgia's foremost Confederate veterans, has publicly called attention to the fact that while Randolph Anderson was too young to enter the army, many distinguished relatives, among them his father, were numbered among the bravest and most gallant soldiers and sailors in the Confederate service.

Judge Harris admits that as a legislator, he introduced and voted for a bill to increase Georgia's legal rate of interest from 8 per cent to 12 per cent. His only excuse was: "I was right."

Judge Harris admits that in the same legislature, he voted against a bill to protect the farmers of Georgia against worthless fertilizers. He says he was right.

The people of Georgia, do the farmers of Georgia, think he was right? They will answer at the polls.

Randolph Anderson is going to win. Telegrams like this are coming to Anderson headquarters almost hourly:

"Augusta, Ga., August 15. Hon. W. W. Osborne, Kimball House, Atlanta, Ga.

"The prominent supporters of Harris conceded this county for Anderson on the streets today. You can surely count on Richmond.

(Signed) "H. A. WOODWARD."

IF YOU WANT TO VOTE FOR THE NEXT GOVERNOR, YOU WILL VOTE FOR—

Overland Co. Is Showing New 1915 Model Car

Toledo Concern Has New Model "80" Ready for Agents--New Design Is Big Improvement Over 1914 Car

While the 1915 Overland, designated by the manufacturers as model 80, follows in most of its general features, the Overland of 1914, the latest product of the big Toledo plant of John N. Willys, embodies a number of improvements and noteworthy changes over last year's model, which make the Overland a more attractive proposition than ever—whether it be viewed from the standpoint of the dealer or from that of the purchaser.

In making its public announcement at this time, the Willys-Overland company has adhered to the practice of former years, to vouchsafe detailed information concerning its new lines only when the regular distributors have been furnished demonstrating cars, these are now delivered and ready for inspection.

The points of the new car which receive the first attention of the observer are graceful, up-to-date body designs and improvements that perhaps less noticeable to the average motorist, but nevertheless of vital importance to him. All these improvements secure greater riding comfort, and more quietness and flexibility of operation.

The body conforms to the most modern notions of streamline design, yet is without the suggestion of exaggeration or freakishness. The radiator, with a shell consisting of a single steel stamping, joins its curve admirably to the characteristic slope of the Overland engine hood, which gradually leads to the entirely new cowl dash and sweeps, without angles or abrupt curves, to the full-curved tonneau back. Frame, running-board bracket, and battery box are concealed by mud-shields, which add materially to the looks of the car by giving it that much desired long and low appearance.

Though the wheelbase remains 114 inches, the body offers considerably more leg and elbow-room. The rear seat, for instance, is 49 inches wide inside; the front seat is 40 inches wide, while the backs are 21 inches high in the rear and 18 inches in the front.

The seats are twenty inches deep with cushions sloping toward the rear, which permits the passenger to ride in the easiest possible position, least likely to result in fatigue.

In developing the new body design much attention has been given to interior refinements, which may not force themselves into the eye of the motoring novice as much as they will be appreciated by the seasoned automobilist. An example is the storm curtains, which are fastened and unfastened from the inside. In fair weather they are stored in a convenient metal box placed directly behind the front seat and the usual tedium of having to disturb the tonneau passengers when curtains are to be used is done away with.

Heretofore it used to be the practice to hold the folded-down top in position with leather straps. The new Overland has a unique clamp which holds the top so securely as to prevent all rattling.

Leather pockets are provided in all doors, which, in addition, have a metal beading for protection from the weather. The doors are hung on concealed hinges with inside-operated latches placed so as to make it impossible for them to catch on passengers' garments.

Maxwell Men Will Meet at Ansley Hotel

Convention Will Be Held Tuesday--Motion Pictures Showing All Processes of Manufacture As Well As Travel Scenes Will Be Shown on Screen

There are very few people in the southern states who have had an opportunity to visit a really modern, up-to-date motor car factory and see the "almost human" machinery which is absolutely necessary for the production of an efficient and reliable car at a figure within the reach of the average man.

A trip through a motor car factory in Atlanta will in the near future be possible, as a result of a new department by the Maxwell Motor Car company of Detroit, who are holding their annual business meetings and dealers' conventions in this territory during the present month.

The meeting in Atlanta will be held at the Ansley hotel, Tuesday, August 18, at noon, at which time the pictures, which take one through the change "from molten steel to automobile," will be shown to the dealers and arrangements for their exhibition in the different cities will be made.

The Maxwell company has a corps of the most expert motion photographers available engaged for about six months, working in the new factories at Newcastle, Ind., Dayton, O., and Detroit, Mich., and the automatic machinery, the laboratories and the steel and iron mills have been photographed in action.

Another body of men have been following the cars in races, in hill-climbing contests, and in the most beautiful scenic spots to be found in the Rockies, the Cascades and in California's world-famous hills and valleys. Two of the four big reels are devoted to the outdoor work.

At the convention above mentioned, the entire set of films will be shown and the addresses will be made by Mr. C. H. Booth, of Detroit, Mich., southern supervisor of sales, and Mr. J. P. Headley, district representative in charge of sales in this district.

W. H. Weingar, special factory representative, will give short talks in the line of descriptions of the manufacturing operations and a travelogue, as the scenic pictures are thrown on the screen.

All dealers in the state of Georgia are cordially invited. The Maxwell car will be on exhibition in the lobby from Sunday, August 16, to Wednesday, August 19.

MISS BRYCE BECOMES GIFFORD PINCHOT'S BRIDE

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Miss Cornelia E. Bryce, daughter of Lloyd Stevens Bryce, former minister to the Netherlands, and Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester of the United States, were married at 10:30 o'clock today in the Episcopal church at Roslyn, Long Island. On account of the illnes of Mr. Pinchot's mother, only relatives and a few intimate friends were present. A reception followed at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce, at Roslyn.

Large Demand For Dodge Car

Hundreds of visitors daily call upon the Dodge Brothers at thehuge Detroit plant and every one goes away mightily impressed by the magnitude of the factory, the up-to-date equipment and the general layout which promises an enormous output of automobiles when the Dodge Brothers start deliveries.

Built upon ten acres of land the great factory is being added to by the construction of a building 876 x70 feet and with this addition the factory will cover 18 3-4 acres of floor space, and it is reported employ no less than 10,000 men.

The rush for agencies with the Dodge Brothers has been one of the most remarkable features of the motoring business of Detroit and has aroused interest in every section of this country and foreign countries as well. Sales Manager Arthur I. Philp recently compiled some statistics which are interesting. On the map which graces the walls of Mr. Philp's office tacks are placed showing that an application for an agency has been made and it was shown by the information received that 5,165 agency applications were in hand and hundreds were being added daily. From one city no less than 31 applicaorns were in hand.

The style of the car, the price of the Dodge Brothers' product and all information has been withheld and the agency applications received have been due to no stimulation on the part of the manufacturers.

BRYAN IS SENT PROTEST OF WIRELESS CENSORSHIP

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The German American chamber of commerce, through its secretary, Heinrich Charles, today sent a telegram to the state department in reply to the department's letter announcing that the question of imposing a censorship upon the English and French submarine cables such as has been exercised over the German-owned wireless stations at Sayville, L. I., and Tuckertown, N. J., "had been taken under consideration."

"Why should wireless stations at Sayville and Tuckerton remain under censorship?" asks the telegram, "while the department has under consideration the general question?" We must respectfully protest against this apparent continued discrimination."

BRITISH BOATS WITH CARGOES OF FOODSTUFF

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—Three transatlantic steamers flying the British flag sailed from Philadelphia today for English ports carrying more than 500,000 bushels of wheat and other foodstuffs. They are the American liner Haverford, for Liverpool; Manchester Engineer, for Manchester, and Malin for London. Besides the wheat the ships have in their cargoes many tons of flour, hundreds of cases of canned vegetables and large consignments of shoes and medical supplies.

The ships also carry some passengers aboard. All three ships expect the protection of British war ships on the way across.

LUMBER CAMPS PROBED BY SEATTLE COMMITTEE

Charge Tables Made Better Beds Than Company's Mattresses

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 15.—Stories of alleged exploitation of lumber employes were related at today's session of the federal industrial relations commission. At noon the hearing adjourned and the commission went to a nearby camp to make a personal inspection.

Rev. Oscar H. McGill of Seattle, who visits camps frequently, declared that with some exceptions the men were forced to live under miserable conditions and every effort was made to pay them as little money as possible.

"It has been testified here that the men frequently throw mattresses out of windows," he said. "If you could see some of these mattresses, you would not be surprised. I know of a camp where the men fight each night for the privilege of sleeping on the table in preference to their bunks."

Frequent changes in employes at the camps has led to reports of collusion between employment agencies and employers and Mr. McGill said he believed the stories were well founded.

Rudolph Distler, a Cosmopolis, Wash., real estate man frequently was held at the depot for several weeks for debt while they made futile attempts to obtain enough money to recover their belongings.

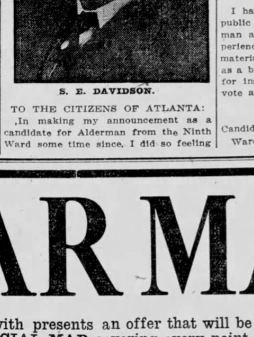
S. E. Davidson Announces As Candidate for Alderman

Well-Known Business Man Aspires to Represent Ninth Ward



S. E. DAVIDSON.

TO THE CITIZENS OF ATLANTA:

In making my announcement as a candidate for Alderman from the Ninth Ward some time since, I did so feeling that the encouragement and support which was voluntarily tendered me by my friends and neighbors was ample evidence that I had the endorsement of the rank and file of the citizenry of my ward.

The recently organized effort to eliminate me as a candidate, and allow another man to be elected without opposition, as has frequently been the case in the Ninth ward, caused me to again go over the ground, and make sure that the people of my ward were advocating my candidacy. To every voter in Atlanta, I make this pledge, that if elected, I will exert my influence and cast my vote for a safe, sane, business administration of the city's affairs, such as one as will tend to build up rather than hinder and tear down. If elected I will not be hampered by any clique nor be the political puppet of any man who has chosen me to succeed him. I ask the support of the people, not the influence of a political dictator.

I have never before sought or held public office. I am a plain business man and believe that my years of experience in business life would be of material benefit to the city. My record as a business man and a citizen is open for inspection. I will appreciate your vote and influence.

Respectfully,
S. E. DAVIDSON,
Candidate for Alderman from the Ninth Ward.

Benj. H. Hill for Re-election As Judge Superior Court

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY:

I am a candidate for one of the judgeships of the Superior Court to succeed myself, at the Democratic primary next Wednesday. In 1906 I was elected by the people of the State as one of the Judges of the Court of Appeals, and upon the organization of the court I was elected as Chief Judge. In 1913, I was re-elected to a second term of six years. On November 1st, 1912, complying with the suggestion of members of the Bar and many prominent citizens, I was tendered the judgeship of the Superior Court, and this position I accepted chiefly from the conviction that I could render greater service to the people in the lower, but not less important, judicial position.

Since my appointment I have been constantly engaged in the trial of important cases. My record is familiar to you, and on that record I ask your vote and influence. Judicial responsibility is too sacred and too vital to the rights of the people to be bestowed by them without a conviction of qualification and fitness.

I am very profoundly interested in my judicial work, especially that feature which confers upon the trial Judge the discretion of giving to the first offender a chance for reformation.

If, after considering my work, you are willing to continue me in your service, I promise fidelity to your trust and earnest endeavor to protect your individual rights, and will enforce your laws with equal justice alike to the rich and the poor.

Dr. Hardman Will Carry Over One Hundred Counties

Reports From All Sections Indicate His Nomination for Governor

Reports from every section of the state received at the Hardman campaign headquarters in the Kimball House last night indicate that Dr. L. G. Hardman will carry over one hundred counties for Governor, at the coming Democratic primary on Wednesday.

Dr. Hardman, following a thorough canvass of the state, shares the belief of his friends that he is to be the winner on the first ballot of the coming state convention.

It is not believed that even a combination of the Harris and Anderson forces will be sufficient to defeat the will of the people in the nomination of Dr. Hardman at this time.

Thousands of letters have been received, giving securing the camvass mentioned, and extracts from some of them, showing the basis for the claims made above, are as follows:

Dr. Henry H. Shadd, LaGrange, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman is gaining strength in Troup county every day."

Dr. Ed. V. Chidsey, Omaha, Ga.—"I confidently believe you may expect Stewart to be in the Hardman column on the 19th."

Mr. J. M. Davies, Blue Ridge, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Fannin county beyond a doubt."

Mr. L. A. Dean, Rome, Ga.—"I feel sure Floyd county will go for Dr. Hardman."

Mr. M. M. Spinks, Greensboro, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Greene county."

Mr. J. N. Hackney, Blue Ridge, Ga.—"Don't have any worries or fears about Fannin county. She is in the Hardman column. We are practically all for the farmer candidate for governor."

Mr. N. V. Lockhart, Maysville, Ga.—"Banks county will go for Dr. Hardman, all right."

Mr. W. I. Hobbs Gainesville, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman is going to carry Hall county."

Mr. J. L. Cliatt, Mistletoe, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman is in the lead in Columbia county."

Mr. Paul Latimer, Fairburn, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Campbell county easily."

Mr. W. A. Walker, Cairo, Ga.—"Grady county will go for Dr. Hardman. Judge Harris has no strength at all in Grady."

Mr. Jno. T. Newton, Madison, Ga.—"Morgan county is safe for Dr. Hardman."

Mr. Rush Burton, Lavonia, Ga.—"I think Dr. Hardman will carry Franklin county without question."

Mr. J. C. Folkner, Lula, Ga.—"In this part of Hall county Dr. Hardman will get two votes where both his opponents get one."

Mr. W. A. Dodson, Dallas, Ga.—"In my opinion Paulding county is safe for Dr. Hardman."

Dr. Duke Lee, Newnan, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman has been gaining faster in Coweta county in the last two weeks than either of his opponents. It looks like Dr. Hardman will carry this county."

Mr. J. N. Griffin, Valdosta, Ga.—"I have dependable information that Berrien county will show large majority for Dr. Hardman."

Col. R. L. J. Smith, Vidalia, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman has a splendid chance to carry Jeff Davis county."

Mr. J. F. Lee, Royston, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman's race is in good shape. He will carry Franklin county easily."

Mr. J. H. Jones, Gainesville, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Hall county by an overwhelming majority."

Mr. C. W. Grant, Mt. Airy, Ga.—"I see no need of organizing in Habersham county. Every man, so far as I can learn, is for Dr. Hardman."

Mr. J. J. Williamson, Woodbury, Ga.—"I feel sure Dr. Hardman will carry Meriwether county. Keeps gaining every day."

Mr. J. R. Sewell, Ashland, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Franklin county by a good majority."

Mr. J. B. Williams, Greensboro, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will undoubtedly carry Green county."

Dr. J. A. Summerlin, Hartsfield, Ga.—"From all indications Dr. Hardman will carry Colquitt county."

Mr. W. C. Powell, Pansy, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Lincoln county by a big majority."

Mr. Hoyt Brannan, Dawsonville, Ga.—"I am sure Dr. Hardman will carry Dawsog county."

Mr. Joseph F. Lasserre, Brunswick, Ga.—"Hardman is gaining. Think he will carry Glenn county."

Mr. John B. Hudgens, Jr., Summerville, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Chattooga county easily. Stands leading chance in Floyd and Walker."

Dr. Jeff Davis, Toccoa, Ga.—"From best information Dr. Hardman will carry Stephens, Habersham and Franklin counties."

Mr. J. P. Carter, Naylor, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will easily carry Lowndes county."

Mr. A. H. Thurman, Fitzgerald, Ga.—"Ben Hill county will be found in the Hardman column. Irwin and Wilcox will go the same way."

Dr. A. C. Moreland, Forsyth, Ga.—"Monroe county goes to Hardman."

Mr. J. Kelly Simmons, McRae, Ga.—"If we don't carry Telfair for Dr. Hardman I am badly mistaken."

Mr. J. H. McGee, Lawrenceville, Ga.—"Three weeks ago this county would have gone for Harris. Now there isn't any doubt about Gwinnett going for Dr. Hardman."

Mr. Thomas W. Crawford, Lexington, Ga.—"There will be no trouble about Dr. Hardman carrying Oglethorpe county."

Mr. Thad Adams, Moultrie, Ga.—"All indications point to Dr. Hardman carrying the majority of the counties in the western part of the second district. Colquitt, Mitchell, Thomas and Grady all are strong for Hardman. Berrien county also is for Hardman. He is gaining strength every day."

Mr. H. E. McAuliffe, Milledgeville, Ga.—"The supporters of Dr. Hardman here believe he will get a majority over both of his opponents in Baldwin. Sentiment is growing stronger in his favor every day."

Mr. J. E. Tinley, Hampton, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman has the fight whipped in Henry county."

Mr. J. R. Stapleton, Preston, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will win out in Webster."

Mr. R. J. Dickson, Richland, Ga.—"The chances are good for Dr. Hardman to carry Stewart county by a safe majority."

Mr. N. J. Boswell, Mansfield, Ga.—"I am confident Dr. Hardman will go for Dr. Hardman by a safe majority."

Mr. George M. Dame, Homerville, Ga.—"Clinch is safely in the Hardman column."

Mr. O. L. B. Lester, Hiram, Ga.—"Paulding county can be safely counted in the Hardman column."

Mr. J. R. Kelly, Cordele, Ga.—"Watch Dr. Hardman carry Crisp, Dooly, Wilcox, Worth, Turner, Sumter, Lee and many other south Georgia counties. Harris men coming over conceding Hardman's election."

Dr. G. Y. Moore, Cuthbert, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Randolph by a very safe margin."

Mr. J. M. Copeland, Mr. C. B. Chaney, Valdosta, Ga.—"We consider Lowndes, Echols and Clinch counties safe for Dr. Hardman. Reports from Brooks and Berrien indicate Hardman is in the lead."

Mr. M. J. Hardigree, Whitesburg, Ga.—"My great county of Carroll will go nearly solid for Dr. Hardman."

Mr. J. N. Johnson, Hiawassee, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Towns county."

Mr. W. A. Mitchell, Gainesville, Ga.—"It is now only a question of the size of Dr. Hardman's majority in Hall county."

Ex-Sheriff W. A. Crow, Gainesville, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry all of the counties in the Ninth Congressional district."

Mr. Henry Odom, Covington, Ga.—"Indications are that Newton, Walton and Rockdale will all be safe for Hardman."

Mr. C. F. McLain, Calhoun, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Gordon by a good majority."

Mr. I. N. Johnson, Manchester, Ga.—"Dr. Hardman will carry Meriwether county."

Mr. C. C. Coyle, Marietta, Ga.—"There are more people in Cobb county for Dr. Hardman than can be found for both his opponents."

Mr. L. R. Martin, Atlanta, Ga.—"I have traveled all over Georgia, and Dr. L. G. Hardman is sure to be elected governor."

Mr. John Low Smith, DeKalb county —"Ninety per cent of the men I have talked with are for Dr. Hardman."

Mr. W. B. Rice, a traveling man who has been in every county in the Eighth Congressional district, says that Dr. Hardman will carry every county in the Eighth district with possibly two exceptions."

Mr. Jno. N. Holden, former speaker of the house of representatives, and one of the best informed politicians in Georgia, says that North Georgia is practically solid for Dr. Hardman."

Dr. W. E. Wood, a leading physician of Dalton, Ga., says that Whitfield county is in the Hardman column and that he has reliable information that Murray, Gordon, Catoosa and Chatooga are safe for Hardman.

Mr. James W. Austin, Atlanta, Ga.—"I have had expression from all classes of our citizens from every ward in the city, and from the county precincts, which indicate that Dr. Hardman will carry Fulton county by a handsome majority. I have been gratified to note the spontaneity of the Hardman sentiment in Atlanta. The strong personality of the man inspires enthusiasm and there has been a vast deal of quiet but effective campaigning done here by his friends. If the normal vote of the party is polled next Wednesday Fulton will be in the Hardman column."

"Opposition to Hardman has practically ceased in a number of counties, and these are conceded to him by overwhelming majorities. In other counties where the race has been close, it is now admitted that the Hardman forces have the edge and will carry the county by a safe majority.

As he continues his dignified campaign and his platform and person become better known, Dr. Hardman is winning votes both from the Anderson and Harris camps.

Notwithstanding the fact every confidence is expressed at his headquarters as to the ultimate results, the campaign will be prosecuted with vigor up intil the eve of the primary, and Dr. Hardman himself will continue to speak several times each day on Monday and Tuesday.

The slogan adopted by the Hardman workers at the beginning seems destined to become a fact: "Hardman on the first ballot."—(Advt.)

Crackers Won; "Kircher Day" Was Big Success

Some Seven Thousand Fans Turned Out to See Opening Battle With the Lookouts, Everett Bankston Made First Appearance in Cracker Uniform

By Innis Brown

Some 7,000 fans delivered a telling argument Saturday afternoon in favor of George Kircher's being allowed to put on his comedy coaching stunts on the base lines. This argument consisted in their journeying out to the park to watch George put over his funny stuff. It was "Kircher Day," and the best crowd that has seen a game at Ponce de Leon since opening day was there to see the Crackers get a decision over the Lookouts in the opening game of the last series of the season between the two clubs. The score was 6 to 5.

Kircher was there with all his funny stuff rolled into a package for quick delivery, and he got it over in fine shape. He uncorked all the stuff in his repertoire and the crowd sat back and yelled. He walked a tight rope, shot "craps," ran his automobile, and put on a realistic pantomime of a street car conductor taking up fares on a trolley car. What is more his stunts never in the least riled the Lookout players, although he created considerable merriment by imitating Darlis Street in doing the receiving for the visitors. The crowd was in a good humor throughout the afternoon and the umpires never had the least bit of trouble in handling the situation.

Concerning the game itself, it can hardly be said that it was a jam-up affair. As a matter of fact, it looked for a time, in the early innings as though the Crackers were going to force a victory on the visitors. But sequential and timely hitting by the local crew later on succeeded in reversing the count, and the home people rushed across the finish line leading by a single lap.

DENT VS. SLINE.

Ed Dent was chosen to oppose William Sline for the Moosemen. While he was touched up rather freely, spotted places in his support led him into most of his trouble. The majority of his distress came in the first round. Johnson beat out an infield tap, and Ens shored him up with a bunt. Jacobson grounded to Bisland and Bizzy threw to Dunn so far ahead of Johnson that Jack dug back for third. He landed safely, when Dunn's chuck to Holland was wide. Johnson scored, when Eibel dropped McConnell's throw on McCormick's grounder. Jacobson went to third and McCormick to second. The two scored on Coyle's single to center. Dunn potted Mickey trying to steal and performed a like service for Flick a moment later after Dent had given the visiting second sacker four wide ones.

The Crackers threatened to count in the second, when Kircher doubled to left center and was shoved up by McConnell's bunt. Holland beat out a tap to Graf for a hit, but Kircher held third. Eibel walked filling the bags, but Dunn pitted a short fly to Jacobson and Coyle retired Dent single handed. Beginning the next inning, Tommy Long poled a triple to right center and scored while Ens was chucking Bisland out at first.

Then in the fourth, business picked up sharply for the home boys. Holland hit one through Ens and Eibel singled to right on the hit and run, sending Harper to third. Dunn drew four bad ones, filling the bases. Dent came to time in great shape with a triple over Jacobson's head, clearing the bags. He counted a moment later when Long drove a sharp single to center. The Bears added another in the fifth on doubles by McConnell and Holland.

EIGHTH WAS DANGEROUS.

Doubles by Coyle and Flick counted for the Moosemen in the sixth and they assumed a more threatening aspect still in the eighth. With one down McCormick, Coyle and Flick singled in succession, filling the bags. Dent appeared to have Graff struck out, but Pfenninger couldn't see it, and he was finally walked forcing McCormick home with run No. 5 for the visitors. The bases were still full and Street was up. Bisland scored further damage by the feature fielding stunt of the day. Gaho grounded to Bizzy almost directly over the second base. Bizzy Rivington grabbed the drive, tagged second forcing Graff and threw to first in time to head off Street.

In the ninth round Pat Graham was sent in to hit for Ross who had reached Sline leading the last half of the seventh. Pat drove a long one over a third attempt on Johnson and lifted to Long. Dent retired Jacobson's hot grounder in time to nip him at first.

Everett Bankston, the recruit outfielder obtained from the Cordele club, appeared in the line up having reported Saturday morning. He was stationed in right while Kircher moved over to center and Jenkins sat on the bench nursing an injured leg. The youngster failed to get a hit though he started a fierce race to left on his first trip to the plate which Graff intercepted. He walked Sline out and drew a base on his next trip while his other two trials produced a fly which Ch. Gleckler pulled in and a knotty grounder which Ens handled in time to catch the batter by a step.

Bisland had an old time day down at short. He handled thirteen chances, several of which were very difficult indeed. His work in pilfering the double play in the eighth with one down, retiring the side saved the day for the Crackers. At the same time his running gave Amby McConnell, who was having a fairly busy day, four or five more chances without a slip and also slammed out two hits including a double and a sacrifice in his four trips to the plate.

Welchonce Will Be Placed on Ineligible List for Rest of Season With Full Pay—Large Crowd Expected to Attend Wednesday's Benefit Game

By Innis Brown

Harry Welchonce, captain and centerfielder of the Crackers, will not appear in the team line-up again this season. Such was the announcement made a few days ago, after a consultation by a quartette of local physicians, who had made a thorough study of Harry's physical condition. According to these physicians, he has a tubercular infection in one of his lungs, and it would be foolish for him to try to continue playing under the circumstances.

The baseball association has according ingly asked that permission be given by the other clubs to place Harry on the ineligible list for the rest of the season, under full pay. Replies from the other seven clubs are expected shortly, and the request will no doubt be granted. As soon as these matters are settled, and all details straightened out, Harry will probably go to the North Carolina mountains, or possibly to one of the western states seeking a higher and drier climate.

But before he leaves town, his team mates and local fans are going to put on a performance to show their appreciation of his work with the club. On Wednesday when the Memphis Chicks play the first game of their final series with the Crackers for the season, a benefit for Harry will be put on. The baseball association will turn over a liberal part of the proceeds from the game to the captain. For nearly two years now, since first he joined the team, Harry has been a mainstay of the club. Last season his hitting and fielding did as much as the work of any one man toward landing the pennant. This year his work has been hardly up to the 1913 standard, but he has been handicapped by a bad leg, which has been troubling him all season. Harry has been a favorite with the fans and players alike, and his many friends will be sorry to learn that he will be unable to finish the season.

Boston Scored Winning Run in Tenth Inning Round—Tyler and Mathewson Pitch

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Boston reduced New York's lead to three and a half games today by taking the third straight game of the series, 2 to 0, the winning runs being scored in the tenth inning.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Mathewson and Tyler, the local star, faltering in the last inning, when Boston scored two runs on Smith's single, Main's sacrifice, Gowdy's second triple, and a wild pitch. The champions filled the bases in both the ninth and tenth innings, in the tenth with none out, but failed to score. The second largest crowd of the season saw the game.

Yankees Lose Tennis Trophy To Antipodeans

Norman E. Brooks, Captain of Australasian Team, Defeats Norris Williams and Wins Dwight L. Davis Cup for His Country—15,000 Spectators Cheer Williams

(By Associated Press.)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. Aug. 15.—After a twelve months' stay in the United States the Davis cup, the trophy that carries with it the world's tennis team championship, has resumed its international travel.

On the turf courts of the West Side Tennis club here today, the Australasian team, challengers, clinched its claim to the bowl by winning the third and decisive match of the tournament from the United States team.

Norman E. Brooks, captain and leader of the antipodeans, and R. Norris Williams, second, America's second ranking player, were contestants in the final battle, which marked the passing of the cup. Brookes defeated his youthful companion, 6-1, 6-2, 8-10, 6-2. The victory added to those of Wilding over Williams, Thursday and Brookes and Wilding over McLoughlin and Bundy in the doubles yesterday gave Australasia three out of five matches.

Following this contest McLoughlin defeated Wilding 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, but the result had no international bearing.

With the score in matches standing two to one in favor of the challengers, Williams plainly was nervous when he took the court with Brookes. The Australasian veteran of many Davis cup battles was calm and determined. Brooke's strokes and tactics did nothing to allay Williams' nervousness and the latter's efforts to hold his opponent in check during the first two sets were pitifully weak. He made a game rally in the third set, but it was his final rally. Brookes, profiting by his opponent's tendency to stroke the ball beyond the court boundaries or in the net, quickly ran through the fourth and deciding set.

The erratic young American really beat himself, for he netted approximately three times as many shots as Brookes and drove the ball as fast as the first also counted heavily against him, for he had ten double faults to Brookes' one. When stroking the ball in top form, however, he was Brookes' master.

The 15,000 spectators tried to cheer Williams on to victory and as a result brought about one of the most ludicrous exhibitions ever witnessed in an amateur sporting event in this country.

All through the third set every brilliant stroke by Williams was cheered until the uproar, a typical American case of rooting could be heard far across the Long Island sound. Brookes, unable to handle Williams service and returns, appeared peevish and several times dropped his racquet and place his hand over his ears.

When Williams finally won the set and the crowd really broke loose, the Australasian threw his racquet on the ground and sitting down on the sand box held his head in his hands.

It was thought he was crying. He eventually got up and walked into the club house. He appeared to regain his poise when upon returning he was given a great round of applause by the thousands whom he had acutely accused of unsportsmanlike action.

The only satisfaction the representative American gathering gained from the day's play was the manner in which national champion McLoughlin pushed Wilding as well as Brookes off the world's championship singles pedestal and mounted it himself as the world's greatest individual tennis player.

Having defeated Brookes in straight sets Thursday, McLoughlin tore into Wilding and gave the towering Australasian a crushing defeat. He served and and hammered away at Wilding's returns with cyclonic force until the latter either was run off his feet or left standing flat-footed by the lightning strokes of his master.

Then McLoughlin would vary his game and by cross court or softly placed strokes leave Wilding floundering yards away.

After two of the most sensational sets ever witnessed on American tennis turf McLoughlin showed signs of losing the third to Wilding. But with a rest he was himself again and quickly completed his task of demonstrating his claim to the world's tennis title.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 15.—In a battle of southpaws, Curley Brown baffled the Mobile batsmen, while Townsend was hit timely and gained a third successive decision for Birmingham 8 to 0. Brown yielded but four scattered hits, the first being registered after five hitless innings by Dobard. Birmingham scored three runs in the second inning and increased the total as the battle progressed. The fast fielding of the Baron infield featured. In the eighth Ellam hit a home run with Covington on the bases.

Futurity to Be Run August 29

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The historic futurity will be run here on August 29. The event, which was formerly the feature of the Coney Island Jockey Club summer meeting, is worth $5,000 and the subscriptions. The added money is contributed equally by the Saratoga Association for the Improvement of the Breed of Horses and the Owners' Fund. With ten starters the race will be worth $20,620, by far the richest fixture decided on eastern tracks this year. Fifty-six 2-year-olds are eligible. The total nominations for this famous classic were 391, of which 335 have been declared since the closing of the event, January 2, 1912.

Among the list of eligibles as announced by V. E. Schaumburg, secretary of the Coney Island Jockey club, is Vanitie, by Ogden-Veil, which was sold by J. E. Madden recently to English horsemen, who will race the colt in the English Derby, for which it is eligible. Madden leads the list of owners with eight nominations, while Harry Payne Whitney, August Belmont and Parker Whitney are next in order.

Mr. Belmont has three representatives of Rock Sand, while Mr. Whitney's entries include one by Rock Sand and two by Hamburg. In addition to six sons of Ogden, Mr. Madden has one of Rock Sand's get to carry his colors.

Old-Time Stuff Ruins Pirates

Failure of Clark to Speed Up Methods and Men is Cause of Team's Poor Showing

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—After watching the Pirates in their recent games a veteran baseball man of this city expressed the opinion that they are likely to stay down near the cellar for a while. He figures that Clarke's team has become thoroughly demoralized from the unexpected buffets that dragged it clear down to the bottom from a commanding position.

"From what could be seen in their visit to Greater New York the principal fault of the Pirates is an absolute lack of pitching ambition," he says. "The staff has an air of disregard for the work in hand. Any team will look bad behind weak twirling.

"Clarke has made the very common mistake of clinging too long to old men and old ideas. His is not a modern aggregation, because it has sacrificed speed to hitting power, and speed is an absolute essential to present-day success.

"Clarke, however, should not be censured so much as his old-time patrons are inclined to blame him. His has been a most glorious career at the head of the Corsairs. It is the first season his club has not figured prominently to the very end of the race.

"No doubt Clarke appreciates his errors more keenly than do his critics. That he is one of the greatest managers the game has known cannot be denied. Rome wasn't built in a day, and a baseball club cannot be reconstructed in a month or a season.

"John J. McGraw passes for a wily general. But it took McGraw just six years to rebuild the old world's champions of 1905 that went to pieces in 1908. The Giants of that year figured to outsprint the field as easily as the Athletics did in the American league this season. It took Connie Mack five years to mould another pennant winner after McGraw showed him to such disadvantage in the world's series of 1905.

"Clarke is not down to stay, and there is no reason why a fine fellow of his accomplishments should be kicked while he is down."

European War Hurts Baseball

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Baseball has been a heavy loser this year because of its own troubles with the Federal league war, and it is going to be a heavier loser because of the European war. How organized baseball will stand the two troubles that have overlapped will be an interesting and vitally important development that must be awaited by thousands of persons.

Already many occupations in this country have been seriously affected by the cutting off of raw material for manufacturing. The concerns involved will have to close down because of a lack of work. The waterfront is already filled with idle men, who have been deprived of their income by the tying up of the foreign shipping trade. And so it will go.

That the big leagues are in no danger of collapse for this season is almost a certainty, but that some of the minor leagues will be crippled, or even crushed is equally certain. One New England town already reported that it has 10,000 men out of work because the industries which did land stuff here from abroad. That sounds like the doom of whatever ball team that town has, and in the smaller leagues the death of a franchise usually means the crumpling of the circuit.

The general tightening of money, with the tendency on the part of all hands to hoard, will have a wide-reaching effect on the minor leagues this year's season, but for next, and the era of excessively high salaries in the pastime will come to an end through no fault of either the players of the magnates.

Pitcher Barron, an asset of Washington, who was loaned to Newport News, has been released by Manager Spratt. Barron was hit hard in most of the games he started for the Shipbuilders and he now goes back to Washington with "Thanks."

Pitcher Lewis, who lost out with the blowing of the Virginia Mountain league, has been signed by Newport News.

Columbus 3, Jacksonville 3

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 15.—Columbus and Jacksonville battled through eight long innings this afternoon on a muddy diamond and when Umpire Moran called the game at the end of the eighth inning, on account of darkness, the score was tied up, 3 to 3. Lawrence was being frapped freely in the fifth inning and Manager Fox put in Hawkins, who held the visitors down to three hits. It was necessary to constantly change balls of account of the wet ground.

Charleston 2, Savannah 0

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 15.—Charleston shut out Savannah here today in the final of the series 2 to 0. The feature of the game was the battling and pitching of Rube Eldridge who held the visitors to four hits and secured three hits out of three times up himself. In addition to this he stole second base. Two passes, two sacrifices, one a long fly, scored the second run. Savannah was knocked out in the first inning one-hand catch by Mayer also featured.

WELCHONCE WILL BE PUT ON INELIGIBLE LIST

standard, but when circumstances are considered it is all the more remarkable.

Harry has not been himself since the very opening of the present season. On the first trip, he was stricken with an attack of fever, and kept out of the game for two weeks. If the truth has been known at the time, he should have remained out much longer. But the team needed him, and he was not the man to fail it. Not during the entire season has he been at the best. Frequently his condition has been such that he has played on nerve alone, and nothing but a spirit of loyalty to Manager Smith, and the club kept him up and going.

It is commonly supposed that there is little real sentiment in professional baseball. This may be true of some phases of it. It may even be true of of some players, but not of Welchonce. Ever since he joined the club Harry has been a popular local favorite, and he has shown his appreciation of this feeling on part of the fans, by giving them absolutely the best he had. When he has missed a game, it has been because of illness, which absolutely prevented him from playing.

Leave it to him now, and were he able to get out there on the field, he would be in there taking his regular place. The other day when the physicians had completed their examination, and announced to him that he would be able to play again this season, his eyes filled up with tears. He remembers the gallant stand made by the home team last fall, when they overhauled seemingly impossible odds, and beat the Gulls out for the flag. Like every other member of the team, he believes that the stunt can be repeated again this year, and it made him sad to think that he could have no part in the fight.

But few of the fans who attend games and applaud Harry's playing know him personally. They know him only as a hard working, conscientious player, who is always giving the club the very best he has. But those who do know him well, see in him a good, clean sportsman ,a true friend, and a gentleman. It is possible that Harry's health will never permit him to play in this climate again. If such be the case he will go down in the history of the Atlanta baseball team as one of its prime favorites for all time. But before any decision on this question can be reached, local fans are going to show Harry in how high esteem he is held. Wednesday should bring out near a record crowd to Ponce de Leon, provided weather conditions are favorable.

Hupp Appoints New Managers

Announcement has been made by the Hupp Motor Car Company of the appointment of W. C. Howard to the position of assistant sales manager, and Charles E. Buck as assistant advertising manager. The two appointees have had wide experience in their respective lines of work and will assist Sales and Advertising Manager F. J. Mooney, in the activity of building up the Hupmobile selling organization.

The appointment of Mr. Howard as assistant sales manager was made in recognition of his unusual ability while acting as traveling sales representative for the Hupp Motor Car company. He is rated as one of the most successful salesmen in the automobile industry and was instrumental in building up Hupmobile business throughout the middle west. Wide experience in sales work will enable him to cope successfully with the tasks of his new position.

Mr. Buck, who formerly was connected with the service advertising department of the Peninsular Engraving company, Detroit, has had wide experience in the advertising field. His initial how to automobile work dates back some years ago when he was newspaper correspondent in the east, which he later dropped to take on agency work with the J. Walter Thompson company. In his capacity as Detroit representative of that concern he made a great number of friends among advertising publishing companies throughout the middle west. Mr. Buck will assume his new duties at once.

Premier Co. Changes Location

Moved from 451 Peachtree street to 550 Peachtree. E. T. Bussey, manager of the Premier Sales company, says that larger quarters were required to handle their cars to any advantage. They are local distributors for the Premier, Jeffery and Ford cars in Atlanta, and have made great progress in the automobile field.

Since Harry Spratt took charge of the Newport News outfit he has played at second, short and third base and he has fielded all of these positions in fine style. He is not hitting, however, as he did when formerly in the Virginia league, for his stick is only around .260.

Pitcher Hall, of Norfolk did not accompany the Tars to Roanoke because he was suffering with a black eye, which he received in Newport News last week when he was struck on the optic with a ball.

Mullen Needed Grit to Stick

Young Yankee First Sacker Has Made Good for Manager Chance in Face of Great Odds

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—In ball players there are some times evidence of greatness other than the mere ability to hit hard, field cleanly and throw accurately. One of those qualities is possessed by Charley Mullen, the young first baseman who has suddenly sprung into popularity with the New York fans. He has had to fight his place ever since he first put foot on the Polo grounds, and has won. Discouragement beset him every way he turned, and with all that he stuck it out, playing better ball every day until Frank Chance at last has become his champion.

When Young Mullen was traded to the Highlanders by the Lincoln, Neb., club for Happy Hank Williams, he was heralded as a wonderful hitter and a finished fielder, the New York fans smiled one of those "same old stuff" smiles and awaited developments. They really expected him to blow up before the end of a week as others had done before him.

At the start Mullen fell down in his hitting, and when he did begin to pick up the news was spread broadcast that the Highlanders had bought Dick Hobitzel from Cincinnati and would put him in the game immediately. Little sympathy for the young fellow was expressed at first, but when, instead of becoming discouraged, he began to improve, the gang started to root for him. The Hobitzel talk subsided only to be followed by an announcement that Clarence Kraft, the man of strike fame, was to have the first base job for the Highlanders. Again, Mullen failed to let the discouragement affect him, and practically won both games of a double header that afternoon. That display of gameness was appealing.

The fans were with him hook, line and sinker this time and made such a protest against what they considered unfairness that the Kraft deal also fell through.

Very few players have had to face the test that has been put up to the westerner and come through with such flying colors. Today he is probably the most popular man on the club with the fans, as was evidenced by the ovation given him on each of his trips to bat.

Majors Never Made Bid for Slugger Kirby

Secretary Colsson of the Gulls Tells How Orleans Fans That None of the Big Fellows Would Make an Offer, Claims Player Hits Booze

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15.—Southern league magnates and fans who extended their sympathy to stockholders of the Mobile club on losing a chance to dispose of Outfielder Kirby to a major league club for a reported price of $10,000, may recall their condolences. The Mobile club did not lose a bean when the outfielder took a leap over to the St. Louis Federals, for at least this is the way it is figured over the Gulf league, according to Charley Colsson, secretary of the club.

"You've got the wrong idea," Colsson corrected a number of fans after a recent visit here when the Kirby sale was mentioned. "Do you know, the Mobile secretary continued, "we didn't lose a single cent, for we had a offer for Kirby and, in fact, we couldn't induce a club in the American league to even give him a try-out."

Kirby, according to Colsson, offered to go to any major league club the Gulls would send him, but refusal of the "big sixteen" to give him a tryout gave the Federals a chance to land the player.

"We even telegraphed Ban Johnson, explaining our case," Colsson continued, "and requested he write every club in his league so that the player might be saved for organized baseball, but to our surprise, no one wanted to give Kirby a tryout. So when he jumped, we figured it out that we didn't lose anything, and if the truth is known our club has been better off since he left."

Kirby's chance for a berth in the National and American leagues, according to Mr. Colsson, faded on July 4, when the slugging outfielder dropped off the wagon in Chattanooga. Kirby is supposed to have a terrible thirst and he wasn't satisfied going out himself, but persisted in calling some of the youngsters Bris Lord has to accompany him.

Colsson tells a fearful tale of Kirby's batting average in the Southern league, and if it is straight goods it won't be hard to figure with the Federals or any other club. In addition to figuring themselves even on the transaction, Colsson shows where the Mobile club is made out without the services of Kirby, for in his argument he points out the fact that all of the players were sore at the outfielder for hitting the tumbler with water on the side, and since the loop-the-loop thing came off the team has been playing better ball.

The $4,000 bonus Kirby is supposed to have received is also a joke, says Colsson, Kirby received $100 and a $100 raise of salary to accompany Milly Doyle, whom the Federals sent after him.

Giants Secure Promising Hurler

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—In Pitcher Royce, of Hamilton college, the Giants have secured one of the most promising youngsters outside of the professional arena. Those who have seen Royce in action say that he may turn out to be another Mathewson. He is a finely built, intelligent fellow who wants to succeed in the big leagues, knows how to work from the nick of time McGraw got him in the nick of time as four other major leagues were bidding for him. Royce's father is the postmaster at Liberty, N. Y.

Pitcher Humphries fanned fourteen of the Roanoke team in one of the games Monday. The Norfolk shipbuilders hung a strike out record for the Virginia league for the season.

Jackson Keeps Batting Lead Of A. L. Hitters

Cleveland Slugsmith Has Rung Up Average of .358—Ty Cobb Picks Up Since Returning to Game—Now Hitting .350

In spite of the fact that Ty Cobb has boosted his batting average eight points since his return to the game, Joe Jackson still continues to lead the procession with the stick in Johnson's league. Joseph has swatted for a mark of .358 in games played up through Wednesday. Cobb is eight points behind him. Old Sam Crawford leads in total bases with an even 200. Maisel has bested Eddie Collins a little in base stealing. He has 41 against 39 for the Athletic star. Frank Baker continues to lead in home run drives with 9 to his credit.

WORK OF BRAVES PROVES STALLINGS GREAT LEADER

By Hugh S. Fullerton

This year of 1914 has brought to the front three managers of baseball teams—Branch Rickey, Charlie Herzog and George Stallings—and the greatest of these in Stallings.

The astonishing improvement in the tail-end teams this season has been due almost entirely to the seleection of brainy, capable managers, for the material with which they have worked is poorer than in any of the last ten years.

Counting the Federal league, Bill Phillips, Joe Tinker and Otto Knabe must be added to the list of men who have proved themselves capable and efficient in the handling of men and in directing and leading them in games.

One day last season an owner was complaining of his manager. I offered to name for him six men who could take his club and make a winner of it, provided he would let them do it. The men I named were James Tilden Sheckard, now manager of the Cleveland association team; Jack Hendricks, manager of the Indianapolis association; Jesse Burkett, Fielder Jones, Kid Gleason and Charlie Herzog, then a private. He passed them all by and chose a go-between who today is the joke of the league.

The only manager who has fooled me this season is Bill Carrigan. I expected him to make a frightful splash of it, and am rejoicing that he has done wonderfully well. Carrigan has broadened, developed and is showing a lot of force and initiative. The big thing he has learned is how to squelch a fellow who seeks to take advantage of him.

But Stallings is the big noise of the season. To me he is one of the wonders of baseball, and he has been held back from fame by matters outside baseball. When Stallings was manager at Detroit Ban Johnson made violent charges against Stallings, read him out of baseball, called him all sorts of names and accused him of actual crimes.

Stallings must have been chuckling, for while President Johnson was reading him out of baseball he had a contract already signed to lead the Yankees in 1909. Stallings stiffened the team, pushed it up to second place, stuck in the fight to near the finish and finally finished fifth. Then two signal tipping scandals in succession put him bad again Chase put him in worse, and at the end of his contract he retired and went to Buffalo.

Stallings came back to the majors to take the hopeless, tail-end Boston Braves. Last year he startled the league by leading the team into first division by a spectacular spurt, and this season he has stunned them by an unprecedented climb from last to second place in a month.

Stallings' personality has much to do with it. He is a giant, 6 feet 3 inches, 215 pounds, a magnificent head, a handsome face, graceful, easy carriage and the most wonderful set of teeth in the world.

Off the field, Stallings is quiet, restrained and masterful. On the bench, he is a maniac, raving, abusing, threatening, storming at everyone, and the minute it is over he puts an arm around the fellow he has roasted hardest and tells him how he was pulling for him.

In private life Stallings is a planter. He owns a big plantation a few miles out of Macon, Ga., where his team trains.

Sale of Ford Car Increases

That the Ford Motor company's announcement of its reduction in prices, coupled with a profit-sharing plan for the prospective benefit of the retail buyers has lifted the people "off their feet" is indicated by the huge volume of correspondence that has overwhelmed the Atlanta office.

While the Ford company's announcement of its new profit-sharing plan—a plan for the benefit of new buyers only—was clearly stated, it is evident that many wish to be assured on two or three points. Sixty dollars is cut off the price of every car at once, and this reduction is not contingent on any production figure, although there is no guarantee that present prices will not be advanced, so that all orders are accepted for immediate delivery only.

The profit-sharing plan, by which each buyer who purchases a Ford between August 1, 1914, and August 1, 1915, is to receive from $40 to $60 as his share of the season's profits, is an entirely separate and distinct proposition and is contingent on the sale and delivery at retail of 300,000 new Ford cars between the dates named.

Three hundred thousand cars is a stunning production, and some people who are not fully informed concerning the huge character of the Ford business fear the figure may be in excess of the possibilities. It is necessary to recall in this connection how the Ford output has grown from year to year in order to understand that 300,000 cars will be only a normal growth. It must be remembered that from August 1, 1913, to August 1, 1914, the Ford company manufactured 221,888 cars, and the season before that something like 185,000. With every new Ford buyer interested in the company's profits as soon as he buys, it is a conservative estimate to base the new profit-sharing plan on a production of 300000 cars.

The Ford company further explains that the new plan is but the fulfillment of a promise. It was the purpose of the company when it was organized to build a car for the people in the largest and broadest meaning of that phrase. It was the avowed policy of the company to govern price according to production, based on market prices to buy and build. History proves the truth of these statements. Ford prices have been steadily reduced as business grew. Many will remember that when the prices were reduced last August it was declared that there would be a still further reduction in another year if production and buying prices warranted. Production, and the market price of materials, has warranted that step and the promise has been kept—more than kept, because in addition to the promised reduction comes the amazing profit-sharing plan for the benefit of new buyers, if we can sell and deliver 300,000 new Fords between August 1, 1914, and August 1, 1915.

Large Demand For New Cars

That the disturbed condition of Europe is showing absolutely no effect on American conditions, so far as the demand for its automobiles is concerned, is obvious to anyone who visits the mammoth Detroit plants of the Studebaker corporation which are as busy and as far behind orders as at any time in their history.

Furthermore, Sales Manager Ollier confidently predicts that the present condition is bound to maintain indefinitely.

"In all Studebaker history we have never enjoyed so great an August business," declared Mr. Ollier. "Our dealers have been simply begging us for cars to supply their immediate demands. Hundreds of them have come to Detroit personally, with their salesmen, and have driven away cars, taking them directly to their homes, and thereby securing delivery to their customers without the delay of freight shipment

"One morning this week I found on my desk telegrams ordering immediate delivery of $540,000 worth of Studebaker 'Four' and 'Six' cars. And this was only slightly larger than the regular demands which we receive daily.

"The dealers from whom these demands come, not only have buyers waiting for every car they can secure, but are anxious to lay in a stock of cars enough to enable them to take care of their fall business.

Velie Motor Co. Enlarges Local Branch

The Velie Motor company is enlarging their local branch here at 453 Peachtree street to twice the former space. Mr. F. B. Ludwig, local branch manager, states that they will also erect a machine shop in the rear of the building, 50 by 85, so as to give better service to Velie car owners. They will also enlarge their stock room and carry a complete line of parts. Service is the watchword at the Velie Motor company.

Beals Becker Real Kingpin Hitter in N. L.

Philly Outfielder Stands Next to Meyers and Grant, Who Have Played in Only Few Games—Herzog Leads Base-Runners

Although both Grant and Hi Meyers stand above him in the averages, Beals Becker is the real leader of National league batters. Both of the former have played in only a few games, while Becker has worked as a regular practically all the season. Beals is hitting .334. Becker's teammate, Sherwood Magee is leading in total bases with 181. Buckk Herzog is the best base runner with 38 thefts. Vic Saier with 13 is the home run king.

Liebhardt and Lord Tied for Batting Honors in Southern

Mobile Pilot and Memphis Hurler Have Percentages of .330, Lord Has Played in Three Times as Many Games as Liebhardt — Hogg and Brown Are League's Best Hurlers

After a week of activity on the part of Southern league batters Manager Briscoe Lord of the Gulls and Pitcher Liebhardt of Memphis are tied for the leadership of the league with percentages of .330. Although Liebhardt has the same percentage as Lord the Mobile pilot has played in three times as many games as he has. Moose McCormick is but five points behind the leaders.

Dave Callahan, the Vols' star outfielder, seems to have formed a monopoly on base stealing. He has pilfered forty-nine bases. Barbare of New Orleans is Callahan's nearest rival. The Pelicans' shortstop has beat the catchers' throws thirty nine times this season.

Hogg, Brown and Townsend are the leading twirlers. Hogg has won 18 games and lost 7 for a percentage of .720. Brown has won 15 and lost 7, and Townsend 14 and lost 7. Hogg and Townsend are with Mobile while Brown is the property of Birmingham.

Grand Circuit Meet At Kalamazoo Closes

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 15.—There were five events on the card today for the closing day of Kalamazoo's grand circuit meeting, but thrills weer lacking The weather was ideal, track fast and all conditions pointed to fast time, which was lacking throughout. The sole feature occurred in the 2:12 trot. The judges were dissatisfied with the showing made by Bonington in the third heat, so they removed Driver Dickerson and put Billy Andrews up. Bonington won the next two heats easily.

Buick Motor Co's. Manager Attends Big Meeting

Mr. George D. McCutchen, local branch manager of the Buick Motor company, is in Chicago to attend the meeting of the Buick Motor company's branch managers and to secure cars for the southern territory. Last season the Buick company was unable to supply the demand for their cars, and it is Mr. McCutchen's desire to be able to supply his dealers with more cars this season. The 1915 model is on display in their showrooms at the corner of Peachtree and Harris streets, and is causing quite a lot of comment among auto enthusiasts.

Evans Passes Benny Kauff in Batting List

Comedian Steve Has Average of .362, Kauff Continues Sensational Work on Bases, Has Stolen 46—Kenworthy Hits Most Homers

By virtue of a boost of his own average together with a falling off on part of Benny Kauff, Steve Evans has replaced the Hoosier slugger as leader of the Federal league batters. Comedian Steve is rapping the ball at a .362 clip, while Kauff is seven points behind him. However, Kauff easily retains base stealing honors with a total of 46. Kenworthy of Kansas City leads in homers with 13, while Kauff tops all the rest in total bases with 202.

Here are the figures:

The European tourist will henceforth see his own country.

In any event, 1915 cannot be crowded with any more excitement than 1914.

In spite of all the expert assistance of the great war correspondents in the world, the fighting drags on.

No Cause for Pessimism.

In this time of world stress and tumult, the people of the United States have peculiar cause for thankfulness and faith. Though their interests cannot escape the first shock of Europe's vast war, they are granite proof against further peril or harm. Far removed from the struggle across the sea, their industries will go forward undisturbed; their soil will continue to yield its bounty and factories to turn out rich merchandise. Indeed, the United States stands today as the only great nation whose natural resources and productive enterprise are free to serve the needs of the world; and since Europe's millions must still be fed and clothed, the adversity of foreign lands, lamentable as it is, becomes the opportunity of American. "From the nettle danger we pluck the flower, safety."

Had these conditions befallen some years ago before our financial system was reorganized upon a sound and scientific basis, we should have reason for alarm. But happily the new Banking and Currency law was enacted betimes, and the safeguards it provides against panics, the means and agencies it offers for business assurance, will soon be in actual operation. We now have an abundance of monetary resources and furthermore these resources can be so mobilized as to meet particular and extraordinary demands. In the very outset, then, we are forearmed against financial injury from the European crisis.

In addition to this, plans are swiftly maturing for the development of an American merchant marine whereby our products can be carried to the eager Old World markets, and our commerce continue unchecked. In response to President Wilson's appeal, the House and the Senate have passed a shipping bill removing the drastic restrictions that have prevented the registry of hundreds of merchant vessels under the American flag. Minor differences between the measure as it passed the House and later the Senate must be adjusted, but that is a simple matter; and in the near future there will be ships aplenty to keep open the lines of trade between the United States and Europe.

Nothing short of the destruction of Great Britain's navy can close the markets of England or of her allies to American commerce. Daring and aggressive though Germany is on land she will scarcely venture a test with the enemy at sea. It seems evident that the German fleet is hugging its own shores as closely as possible; and the probability is that it will remain hemmed in or in the event of a decisive battle be crushed. The ports of England and France, Russia, Holland and neutral nations will thus be open to American trade. Liverpool will continue receiving cotton, and the demand for our food products will be almost Europewide.

It is noteworthy that England's wars have never interfered with her cotton manufactures. The British embassy at Washington states that sixty per cent of England's cotton mill operatives are women and that there will be no dearth of labor in this industry. A large part of the South's cotton crop is sold to England; it is estimated that at least three-fourths of the usual crop will find a ready demand in the mills of that country and those of Canada and the United States. Indeed the only serious problem in this connection has been that of means to transport our products; and plans for an adequate merchant marine.

The South has especial reason for assurance and cheer. The movement initiated by Senator Hoke Smith to protect cotton interests in the war crisis is swiftly approaching success. Legislative measures to this end have been introduced, with every promise of adoption. The national Government may be counted upon to give financial aid in carrying the cotton surplus and to provide means for reaching foreign markets.

There is no cause for pessimism in the South, or in any other region of the United States. So great a war as that raging in Europe was bound to bring a momentary shock and depression. But the economic conditions and resources of this country are sound. We are buttressed with a banking and currency system that is fully sufficient to finanical needs. We are blest with the most abundant food harvest America ever knew. We are at peace with all nations; and when the Old World Powers end their struggle, bleeding and forspent, our strength and treasure will be unimpaired. Business may well go its ways unalarmed, and face the future with courage.

There is comfort in the knowledge that Georgia's wheat crop is also a record breaker.

Colonel Roosevelt should consider that war candidates are not so popular just now.

Coincidences will happen, and General Stein is one of the great German military leaders.

A Campaign of Slander and Deceit.

A KNOT of grudging politicians has conducted for weeks past a campaign of deceit and slander against Senator Hoke Smith. Their chief motive has been private interest sharpened by personal spleen, and to this they have joined the treacherous intent of discrediting the Democratic Administration. They could find no issue to justify their appearance; Senator Smith's record was unassailable, while that of the national Administration loomed out as the most fruitful and splendid in American history. The State's interests at Washington were manifestly secure, and were being vigorously upbuilt. There was no ground or reason or right on which these politicians could stand.

They proceeded, accordingly, to fabricate issues. Having no facts, they resorted to falsehoods, and based their cause solely upon plans to deceive the people. Search their utterances, and you can find no reference to any matter that is of vital concern to Georgia or the nation. But at every step you will find untruths and cowardly slanders. They care nothing and apparently know nothing of the crisis through which the South's cotton interests are passing. But they are cudgelling their imagination for absurd charges against the man who is doing his utmost to protect cotton interests in this crucial hour. They have done nothing to promote or safguard agricultural affairs. But they are attacking with every conceivable kind of falsehood the public servant who has labored faithfully and effectively for the farmers' welfare.

While Senator Smith is at his post of duty supporting the Democratic Administration and producing definite results for the public good these spiteful politicians are covertly attacking the Democratic Administration and maligning the man who is loyally at work. They can point to nothing they have done that merits public support. They can suggest no constructive policy for public affairs. Their only plan is to defame honest character and discredit useful achievement.

They have charged Senator Smith with permitting the appointment of negroes to federal office when the records show that just the contrary is true. They have persisted in the charge, after it was proved beyond question to be false. Who that has any regard for truth or honor or political decency would stoop to such slander and cling to it in the face of official records disproving it?

They have charged him with efforts to curtail the parcel post, when the Postmaster General himself declares: "Senator Smith has been, and is, one of the most intelligent friends of the parcel post; in fact the people are indebted to him for material assistance in embodying in the law provisions which will enable the Postmaster General to make this splendid service so beneficial to the great producing class (that is the farmers) of our country." They knew, when they made it, that this charge was groundless; and yet in their rabid desire to vent personal spite and promote selfish ambition, they foisted it upon the people.

They have charged Senator Smith with delaying the appointment of a United States district attorney for South Georgia. Yet the records show, and his colleague admits, that Senator Smith has approved every nomination made, and in no wise has sought to interfere with the filling of this office.

So, from day to day, and week to week their campaign of deception and abuse has snaked its slimy course. They have scrupled at no falsehood or hypocrisy. To the rural districts of the State, they have sent circulars headed, "Joseph M. Brown Scores Labor Leaders," while in towns and cities they have distributed circulars headed, "Joseph M. Brown Corrects Misstatements of His Position On Organized Labor." In the circular sent to the country people, labor organizations are described as "a menace to property and life." In the circular sent to city voters, occurs this remarkable statement: "In not one single public or private utterance I have ever made, have I indicated any opposition to organized labor." Both circulars bear the signature of Ex-Governor Brown, both were sent out in his behalf and were intended to deceive the voters of country districts and cities alike.

But the people will not be deceived, either by slander or hypocrisy. They know the record of Senator Smith, his loyalty to the Democratic Administration, his leadership in national affairs, and his service to Georgia. They know that he has secured the enactment of an agricultural law which means hundreds of thousands of dollars to our farming interests; that he had a decisive part in the framing of the law which protects cotton growers against Wall street gamblers; that he chiefly was instrumental in securing for Georgia the regional bank which makes this State the financial center of the Southeast; and that some of the most valuable provisions of the banking and currency law were inserted at his instance. They know that he has the full confidence of the Administration and of his colleagues in the Senate. They know that he was the author and is the leader of the legislative movement to save the South's cotton from disaster in the crisis brought on by the European war. The people know what he has done and is doing and that they can depend upon his ability and earnestness to uphold the interests of the State. Believing in fair play the people resent the calumnies which have been heaped upon Senator Smith while he has been at Washington doing his duty.

The day of reckoning is at hand and Georgia citizens are ready to choose between truth and falsehood between service and slander, between statesmanship and trickery.

Their choice will be overwhelming. They will repudiate the enemies of the Democratic Administration, and uphold its loyal friend. They will vote their crushing condemnation of slander and trickery and their patriotic approval of the Statesmanship that means so much to the welfare of Georgia.

The Cotton Conference.

We publish elsewhere a timely communication from Mr. John D. Walker, calling for a conference of farmers and business men at the State capitol on Monday forenoon, August the seventeenth, to discuss plans and means for meeting Georgia's cotton crop emergency. The need of co-operative thought and action in this crucial period is so manifest that Mr. Walker's appeal to that end should find a cordial response throughout the State.

The meeting he has called will in no wise conflict with the efforts now being made at Washington to secure aid from the federal Government; on the contrary, it will help that movement by stimulating and organizing local sentiment.

It should be clearly understood, moreover, that this conference has no political purpose whatsoever. It has been called solely in behalf of the agricultural and business interests of Georgia; and anyone attempting to divert it from this rightful course will be promptly discountenanced.

Mr. Walker truly describes the present situation when he says: "The great danger is that many of our farmers not being fully advised of what is being done to aid them will conclude that they must look out for themselves as heretofore and will proceed to sell their cotton at ruinously low and inadequate prices. To save this unnecessary loss and sacrifice, the best business men of Georgia must combine for the good of farmers, the State and themselves." Indications are that the meeting Monday will be largely attended. Certainly, it is to be hoped that every part and every interest of the State will be represented.

If sea service is resumed much faster, we shall soon be able to choose exactly the sort of ship we want.

What Good Roads Means to Farmers.

Particularly striking evidence of what good roads mean to farming interests is furnished by a report from the United States Department of Agriculture on the result of highway improvements in Spottsylvania county, Virginia. In 1909, it seems, the citizens of that county voted a bond issue of a hundred thousand dollars to build and maintain forty miles of firstclass road. Two years later the shipment of agricultural products from Fredericksburg, the county seat, amounted to seventy-one thousand tons for the twelvemonth, as compared with an annual average of only forty-nine thousand tons before the highways were improved. This gain of more than forty-five per cent in the community's agricultural exports within a period of two years is ascribable chiefly to the increased facilities and cheapened cost of hauling which good roads made possible.

In every field of activity the county has produced more and has sold more since the highway bonds were issued and applied. Dairy products, for example, increased from one hundred and fourteen thousand pounds in 1909 to two hundred and seventy-three thousand pounds in 1911, an advance of one hundred and forty per cent. Wheat increased fifty-nine per cent, tobacco thirty-one per cent, forest products forty-eight per cent.

Of peculiar importance is the fact that within this period the expense of wagon transportation was reduced as steadily and rapidly as the volume of transports was enlarged. Experts of the Department of Agriculture found that before the forty miles of improved road were built the average cost of hauling was twenty cents per ton-mile, and that after the improvements were made this cost fell to twelve cents per ton-mile. This saving of eight cents, when applied to the bulk of the county's outgoing products, represents an annual economy of forty-one thousand dollars. Thus the county's original investment of one hundred thousand dollars for better roads is yielding an annual dividend of forty per cent. Commenting on this result, the Courier-Journal aptly says:

"While this saving does not take the form of cash put directly in the farmers' pockets, it is as a matter of fact as real a source of profit as an increase in the price of wheat. As an example the experts of the Department of Agriculture cite the fact that in another Virginia county, Dinwiddie, where peanuts are one of the staple crops the average load for two mules on a main road was about 1,000 pounds before the road was improved. After its improvement the average load was found to be 2,000 pounds, and the time consumed in hauling the larger load to market was much reduced. This is the explanation of the extraordinary rise in the total output of agricultural products in a county with a good road system."

What good roads have done for farming interests in Spottsylvania county, Virginia, they have done, and will do, for hundreds of other counties the nation over. They stimulate production, increase land values, give rural districts advantages comparable to those enjoyed by cities, they enable the farmer to reach markets more quickly and more easily and thereby increase the net value of his crops.

It is estimated that the cost of wagon transportation in the United States amounts to some eight hundred million dollars a year. The average cost of hauling by wagon in the United States is approximately twenty-five cents per ton-mile whereas in countries like France and England where the development of public highways has been carried almost to perfection, this cost is only ten cents per ton-mile. To be sure, the vast extent of the United States makes our road problem far greater and more difficult than that of the comparatively small nations of Europe. Yet, a fair measure of improvement would save millions to our people. It has been computed, indeed, that good roads throughout the country would save more than five millions a year in the hauling of the cotton crop, ten millions on wheat and nearly thirteen millions on corn.

There is no field of activity to which our State governments or the Federal government can more profitably give attention. It is cheering to note that there is now pending in Congress a bill which provides for national aid to the States in highway improvement; and that the sound principles of this measure have promise of early adoption.

Nature's First Law

(New York World.)

The men who are cornering food may have to face new laws as well as old ones. In his note to the attorney general yesterday the president asked for information as to existing laws and for an opinion as to what additional legislation may be needed.

Extraordinary wrongs or perils call for extraordinary remedies. When Europe, confronted by war, attempted, to draw upon our gold excessively we stopped specie shipments. When old-world investors in a panic undertook to throw back upon this market hundreds of millions of securities the stock exchange was closed. If we cannot reach the gamblers in food in one way we must do so in another.

The president's statement that the increase in most food prices is unwarranted is very conservative. It is altogether artificial and arbitrary. The precision with which it was brought about from coast to coast proves that combination exists and that it is directed by master minds. Was the colossal gouge in meats, flour and sugar, by which big business profited on paper by hundreds of millions, the signal which caused every retailer of food in the country to mark up everything else in his possession?

In the case of meats, flour and sugar, federal authority may easily be invoked, whereas in the cases of local dealers state authority should be adequate. Under the commerce clause of the constitution the nation is able to meet this issue so far as it relates to interstate transactions. Under the police power of the states, cities and towns, as Mayor Mitchel well says, may challenge it with equal courage. These are sovereign powers. They rule the world, in republics as well as in monarchies.

Recently the American people witnessed a commission of seven men fixing railroad rates for transportation companies serving millions of people and representing investments of thousands of millions of dollars. New York, among other states, has just enforced a law which compels employers to notice and to receive distinguishing results from death or accident resulting from industry. Everywhere the public welfare is being more and more emphasized and ruthless private greed more and more condemned.

Those who corner food in the nations of Europe that are at war are treated as public enemies. In Germany, Austria and Russia, in extreme cases, government has seized all supplies, just as in this country a thousand times government has appropriated lands by right of eminent domain. Even in England, government is fixing the price of food. A nation at war that can be starved at home by speculators is defeated before it fights.

Our gamblers and extortioners are attempting to apply to a nation at peace the oppressions which nations in conflict will not endure. The crime which they commit here is worse than that which has appeared abroad, for in this country it is wholly speculative, whereas in Europe is to a large extent economic. This country is glutted with food. Europe is not. If necessary to promote the welfare of our people, we may and should forbid the exports upon the promise of which the impending robbery is based.

Political economy is a dismal science which was designed to intensify and excuse such conditions as now prevail. So-called natural laws, such as that of supply and demand, have always been urged upon those who languish and die as a timely excuse for their wretchedness. The first law of nature is self-preservation, and nations as well as men must on due provocation appeal to it.

Before we starve, Europe must starve. Starvation in Europe means peace. Starvation in the United States means war!

Twilight Lure

Dim mist of shadows, lurid with the light
Of setting sun, kissed back from yonder hill:
One pleading note of lonely Whip-poor-will
To welcome back her own beloved night.
Shadow and sheen, the old love-ites excuse for their wretchedness. The first law of nature is self-preservation, and nations as well as men must on due provocation appeal to it.
And sheen, the old love-ites excuse for their
The window lights my weary footsteps thrill
And hearthstone lure awakens new delight.

A thousand years and never yet has failed
The evening's dowered gift of ease and rest,
No shade of night, but every star has sailed
Its sea of ile to islands in the west,
And ne'er a twilight, but somehow I hear
Love's call from warm uplifted lips of her.

—H. E. HARMAN.

The Whirligig of Time

A most dramatic figure reillumined by this war is the Empress Eugenie.

A little while ago, the story was, that she was reproved by a gardener of the Tuileries Gardens for plucking a flower. No incident could have been more pathetic in its setting of sadness against former joy.

Can it be that the aged lady who was empress of France, who, for a brief time of trouble, was the regent of France, is to live to see the French national revenge for the war that humbled France and that wrecked her husband's empire?

The future cannot hold for Eugenie even the promise of restoring the imperial glory in which she shared. If France triumphs at all, a republican France will triumph where an imperial France lost. In the most improbable event that the Bonaparte family may be again cast up into power (if the whirligig of Time thus brings in his revenges), still it will not be the Louis Napoleon branch that succeeds. That withered dead when Eugenie's and Napoleon III's son, the young prince imperial, died fighting with the British in Zululand in 1879.

The individual imperial glory is never to be revived for the once mistress of the Tuileries Gardens. But France is stirring now to restore the French nation's glory, dimmed in the Franco-Prussian war. It is not impossible that the Empress Eugenie may live to see that restoration.

Human Wreckage

He came to us like a specter out of the crystal freshness of a perfect morning. His costume was comical, his hands and face smeared with coal dust. A burlesque audience would have promptly accorded him a laugh.

He was panhandling, clumsily. In his eyes was agony and on his lips unspeakable grief.

Some of us had known him when he moved as other men, belonging to our world, sharing our traditions, our peculiar affectations, the work that is our own. His appearance brought a chill, a disturbing anxiety. Whom has destiny marked down for the next spectacular fall? we inquired, each of himself.

He spoke a long time about "going to the source of things." "You learn much en route," he said. Diffidently we gave small coins to him as though it was our shame and not his that he should beg.

Thus one unmanned, by some occult external reason is so easy and so silly. One goes up, another down—Kismet.

That rush of work closed in over the memory of his visit. Yet the memory of his picture in strong colors, will come up at times and we will wonder where and how he is existing. He belongs out there, in the alleys, on the docks in evil bars, and nothing can bring him back. Life, having twisted and battered him so cruelly, will not let go but continues to drag him, helpless, through his private hell.—Detroit News.

Quips and Quiddities

Two little boys, brothers and inseparable comrades, look so much alike as to arouse frequent comment.

"Are you little fellows twins?" recently asked a pedestrian, meeting them in the park.

"No, sir," the oldest answered, after a moment of thought, "we're Methodists."

"A great, big, able-bodied man like you ought to be ashamed to ask a stranger for money," said the well-to-do citizen.

"I know I ought," answered Meandering Mike. "But, mister, I'm jes' naturally too kind-hearted to tap 'im on de head and take it away from him."

THE NEW BANKING LAW

XIII.—NOTE ISSUE.

By Frederic J. Haskin

Note issue was one of the most important questions before the legislators when framing the new banking and currency law. For years there had been complaint that our currency was inelastic, that the supply of money in circulation was in nowise regulated by the needs of business. The need of a money supply which varies with the demands of trade is easy to understand. When times are brisk and merchandise is continually changing hands, there is need of more coin and bank-notes than in seasons when there are few buyers.

The currency issued by the United States government remains practically a fixed quantity from year to year and from season to season. The only other source of currency supply is that of the circulating notes issued by national banks against their United States bonds bearing the circulation privilege. These notes have proved unsatisfactory as a means for regulating the money supply. On the one hand, there has been no adequate machinery for their retirement. On the other, there has not been sufficient inducement connected with their issue to influence the national banks toward the endeavor of meeting excessive demands for cash by increas issues.

Moreover, the increase and decrease in the amount of national bank notes has followed the fluctuations in the price of United States bonds securing them rather than the needs of business.

* * *

Therefore, the problem before congress was to eliminate the national bank notes without causing business disturbance, and to substitute for them some more suitable form of note issue. This problem proved to be one of the most difficult of solution, and many conflicting plans were considered by the lawmakers. The plan most favored by bankers appearing before the committees of congress was the unification of note issue. They proposed that the United States government should retire its bonds from this branch of banking altogether, and that the privilege of note issue should be given exclusively into the care of a central banking institution.

As finally determined in the act, provisions are made for the gradual retirement of the national bank notes and for the substitution therefor of a United States bond-secured note issue by the reserve banks. Lastly, to provide for an elastic currency, which will be safe, and contract and expand in relation to business demands, the issue of federal reserve notes, based upon commercial paper, has been authorized. This commercial paper has been chosen as the most fitting index of the nation's need of cash, and provisions made for regulating its supply entirely by the selected index.

There is a minimum below which the country's money supply may not fall without inflicting serious injury to business. This minimum was placed by Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, in his testimony before the senate committee on banking and currency, at between $1,500,000,000 and $1,500,000,000. These amounts, according to Prof. Sprague, are needed in circulation among the people directly aside from the amounts held in the vaults of the banks or in the United States treasury. Taking figures for December 1, 1913, we had a money supply in the United States of $3,767,082,704. Of this $332,832,914 was held in the vaults of the treasury as assets of the government, leaving $3,434,249,789 in the banks and in the hands of the people.

Of our three billions of currency, $756,944,194 was in the form of national bank notes. Such a supply of money could not be withdrawn from circulation, probably, without serious injury to business. Any plan, therefore, looking to the retirement of national bank notes must needs provide for the substitution of some other form of money in like amount to that withdrawn.

* * *

The first steps toward the organization of our currency were reserved to two years after the passage of the act, or to begin on December 23, 1915. From this date, it was provided that national banks might retire their circulation in whole or in part, and this privilege was to extend for twenty years, or until December 23, 1935. The act, however, does not compel national banks to discontinue their note issues. This is left entirely optional with them. They may increase or decrease their notes under the old regulations, if so minded. They are freed from the requirement of the old law to purchase a specified amount of United States bonds before commencing business.

The machinery provided for the national bank note retirement is the sale by the treasurer of the United States bonds held by national banks to the reserve banks and the redemption of the note issue secured by these bonds out of the proceeds. The reserve banks purchasing the bonds will replace the notes withdrawn with their own notes issued against the acquired bonds.

After the second year of act's passage, the law provides that any member bank desirous of retiring in whole or in part, its circulating notes shall file with the treasurer of the United States its application for the sale of its United States bonds, held in trust at Washington, and the application of the proceeds to the redemption of its notes. These bonds are to be sold at par and with accrued interest. Such applications are to be filed at least ten days before the end of every quarter, or before March 31, June 30, October 31, and December 31.

The law further provides that the treasurer shall allot the bonds so put up for sale among the several reserve banks, requiring each reserve bank to purchase them at par and with accrued interest and to take such proportion of the total offered as its capital and surplus bear to the total capital and surplus of all the reserve banks. Finally, the law provides that the reserve banks may not purchase more than $25,000,000 of these bonds in any one year. At the maximum speed allowed by the act, it will be impossible for the banks to retire their $748,173,000 of United States bond secured note issues in twenty years by the method of selling these bonds to the reserve banks. However, it is not at all certain that all national banks will care to retire their issues. Even if the returns upon their circulating notes are small, there is an amount of prestige and advertisement in being a bank of issue which may decide them to continue in this branch of banking.

The circulating notes that are to be issued by the reserve banks are in every way exact substitutes for the national bank notes. These bills are to be obligations of the federal reserve bank issuing them, and they are to be issued and redeemed under the same terms and conditions as national bank notes. They are not to be confounded with the federal reserve notes, which are to be obligations of the United States, issued through reserve banks, and issued to supply an entirely different need. The federal reserve notes do not come under consideration in connection with the retirement of the national bank notes.

The reserve banks may issue their notes only against the security prescribed for the issue of national bank notes. Note issues by the reserve banks, however, are not limited by the amount of capital stock of the issuing bank. Another point of departure in the conditions of note issue by reserve banks may possibly be made by the exemption from taxation of the reserve bank notes. Circulating notes issued by the national banks are subject to a federal tax, while the act provides that "federal reserve banks, including the capital stock, and surplus therein, and the income derived therefrom, shall be exempt from federal, state and local taxation, "except taxes upon real estate."

Besides the simple transfer, through purchase, of United States bonds having the circulation privilege from national banks to the reserve banks, and the substitution of reserve bank notes for national bank notes to the amount of the transferred bonds, there is a second way by which the reserve bank note may be brought into circulation. The new law provides that the reserve banks may take out their own circulating notes upon the deposit of any United States bonds, with the circulation privilege.

* * *

It will probably be distinctly advantageous if the reserve act, in time, brings about the concentration of note issue in the federal reserve banks.

WHAT GEORGIA EDITORS SAY OF LONG TERM SENATE RACE

GOD SPEED, SENATOR.
(Jackson Argus.)

Senator Hoke Smith has showed his influence and power in the congress as well as his statesmanship, when he called together the representatives of the southern states to confer as to how they could save the cotton crop. They propose to buy ships to carry the cotton, and to finance the crop so that we can get around 15 cents for it. God speed the efforts of this able senator.

HATRED AND MALICE.
(Milledgeville Union-Recorder.)

If there is ever a useless political fight made in Georgia, it is the campaign waged in Georgia, it is the effort that is now being made by ex-Governor Brown to defeat Senator Smith.

Senator Smith has proven himself in every respect faithful to the duties of his office, and has represented Georgia in the United States senate with distinction and ability. He is recognized throughout the country as one of the leaders of the democratic party, and has taken a conspicuous part in shaping the legislation of the present administration. His effort to defeat him at a time when such men as he has proven himself to be, is certainly to the helm of the government. There is no reason for it except a motive born of hatred and malice for a man that they are unreasonable to tear down. They are obliged to realize that the patriotic service he is now rendering the party, as a senator, entirely entitle him to re-election.

The people of Georgia are going to reelect Senator Smith, and he will certainly be given a public vote of confidence, that will stamp their disapproval of the methods that are being used to defeat him.

FOR HER OWN SAKE.
(Augusta Herald.)

The place of Senator Hoke Smith is in Washington. It is the only place where he is a mistake for the senator to leave Washington. It is also unnecessary for him to make speeches with the object of a speech during the campaign.

The people and voters are thoroughly familiar with the record of work and usefulness that Senator Smith has made in Washington. No senator has worked harder or has done more labor for the constructive work for the people of the south and of the nation. The great mass of the people of the state are familiar with this and they are determined that Hoke Smith shall be retained where he can do most for the people of Georgia.

This is no time to swap horses, especially a good horse, a strong and willing horse capable of doing such magnificent work as Senator Hoke Smith has demonstrated.

Georgia will return Hoke Smith to the senate by an overwhelming popular vote. She will do this for her own sake. It will be a calamity to deprive the state and the nation of such services at this juncture. Georgia will not make this mistake.

PROTECTING COTTON GROWERS.
(Montezuma Georgian.)

Hoke Smith is credited with the appropriation of $500,000,000 to protect the farmers and their cotton from the European war. Senator Smith stands ready at all times to protect the south, the country from disasters, and his thousands of friends and supporters are always ready to send him to the United States senate. They get in return one dollar for every half dollar they expend on this great statesman, and there is no doubt but what he will be elected to the long-term senatorship.

FARMERS NOT FOOLED.
(Vienna News.)

A prominent banker in Dooly county, who supported Governor Brown in his campaigns for governor against Hon. Hoke Smith, was heard to remark the other day as follows: "Well, I tell you, I have always supported Mr. Brown, but I believe we ought to vote for Hoke Smith this time, as he is making a strong effort to help the southern cotton grower through the United States government by devising a plan whereby the farmer can hold his cotton at a cheap rate of interest until the European war is settled and the market becomes normal again." Why certainly. It is very fortunate indeed that the south is so ably represented in the national house of representatives and senate. And the farmers are not being fooled either by the campaign of slander and misrepresentations that are being circulated against Senator Hoke Smith by the political speakers and campaign literature. Even some of Mr. Brown's most hearty supporters have been heard to remark, "that while they were going to vote for him, they believed that Hoke Smith should be elected." And that's the way it is all over the state. In every county you can see reports in the papers that now-prominent supporters of Mr. Brown are now for Senator Smith. Bringing it down to the last analysis, it is a question of which is the ablest and best man for the office. And it will be answered on the nineteenth of August by an overwhelming victory for Senator Smith.

GHOULISH.
(Macon News.)

The ghoulish resentment of the private correspondence of the lamented deceased for the exploitation of partisan interests in a political campaign, as Georgia now witnesses, is the most contemptible case in the annals of Georgia politics.

The men who were the intimate friends of the late Senator A. O. Bacon, and who loved him for the men which his letters have been put, and they are certain that if he were alive he would not countenance the use to which it was curried but the principle of the entire transaction.

However, as stated, there is not one life in the correspondence which reflects discreditably upon Senator Hoke Smith. On the other hand, the fact is brought out that Senator Smith, yielding to the desires and insistance of a senior colleague, declined to run counsested to the appointment of a man who had been his inveterate political foe. It must be remembered that the letters of agreement between the two senators Mr. Smith had the right to make objections to Mr. Bacon's appointment, and he did make objections to the man who he contemplated for office within the southern district of Georgia. Mr. Smith did make such protests, and when they were overruled by Mr. Bacon that was an end of the matter.

Mr. Smith, with the influence at the White House, could have blocked any appointment indefinitely, and the fact that he did not adopt such a course speaks his obliging disposition in the premises and his willingness to yield to his senior in years and in office.

The dragging of the name of the honored dead into the mire of a political campaign has met with righteous scorn and disgust and will undoubtedly have the effect of a boomerang upon those guilty of this invasion of the grave and transcension of the bounds of decency.

FALLEN VERY FLAT.
(Thomasville Times-Enterprise.)

The Times-Enterprise is pleased to announce that, despite certain hints which have been aptly disseminated in the county, there is no concert of action of determined attempt to cut down the majority of Senator Hoke Smith for re-election. Mr. Smith unquestionably will receive his usual large majority in Thomas county, and if all things fail now, it will certainly not be his record of previous elections.

There has been an attempt to invade south Georgia for the purpose of aiding the campaign of ex-Governor Brown. The speeches of Hon. Joseph M. Brown and address at Moultrie and Cairo by Hon. Grover Edmondson, and one at Bainbridge by Solicitor General Hardy Ingersoll, Imperial and fair accounts of the three meetings show that the attempt to make Brown votes was a fiasco, to mildly voice it. Each of these named became convinced that Senator Smith has some men who will vote for Brown in this section of Georgia, and that is without doubt their right, but they are going to be fewer than ever before in the history of his political career.

Mr. Smith has admittedly pre-eminent in the state, and a commanding and impressive figure after two years' service in the senate of the United States. He has gained the confidence and the respect of the administration and has earned the hearty and loyal support of his colleagues in the senate. Whatever he has done has been for the best interest of the people as he viewed it, and with the express view of assisting and abetting the pronounced and now triumphant principles of platform with the Democratic party and exemplified in the acts of President Wilson and the Democratic congress.

The attempt in Georgia to discredit his work, to impugn selfish ends to his motives, is to the last degree contemptible and to belittle his worth to Georgia and the nation has fallen flat. Mr. Smith is a man who commanded attention, and he deserves respect. He has labored for Democracy and for Georgia and the success of the party, as he viewed it, and now terms to Georgia people to broaden his sphere of activity and lengthen his career for usefulness with the full term in the United States senate.

The old factionalism is fast disappearing, and the dying embers of political hatred flare and flicker in the isolated sections and before the general election for the senate, the first time that the people of the United States have had a direct privilege, the Democratic party of Georgia will have stamped the seal of approval upon the great work, and given him an opportunity to continue it.

USEFUL.
(Dallas New Era.)

Senator Hoke Smith is a leading, useful, experienced senator of the United States, is recognized as one of the ablest men on the Democratic side of the chamber in the high, responsible positions on committees.

$500,000,000 FOR COTTON.
(Walton News.)

Senator Hoke Smith has amended the Aldrich-Vreeland currency law, placing $500,000,000 available to the cotton people to finance and handle the crop until the present stringency, caused by the war conditions has passed away.

This will enable the planter without selling a bale of his cotton at the reduced prices, to use his warehouse receipts as collatera, and draw 75 per cent of the value of his cotton, and hold it till the European troubles have been adjusted.

Senator Smith is chairman of the special cotton committee of the senate, and says the whole influence of the treasury department of the United States, backed by the big bankers and merchants of New York, will back the movement to carry over the surplus crop of cotton. Senator Smith advises the people to hold their cotton and not sell it at a sacrifice.

To be sure, in view of this interest upon the part of Mr. Smith, the farmers will vote for him the 19th of August.

HOW IT LOOKS.
(Thomasville Press.)

The general opinion is that Senator Hoke Smith will be overwhelmingly elected over Mr. Brown.

THE FARMERS KNOW.
(Augusta Chronicle.)

There is the greatest praise for the work that is now being done by Senator Hoke Smith. The farmers of Georgia know by his work that he is their friend. And an effective one, at that.

REBUKING A SLANDEROUS CAMPAIGN.
(Macon News.)

There are two developments this week in the Smith-Brown senatorial race of more than unusual interest and importance.

The first is the complete refutation of the charge that Senator Hoke Smith has been tolerating a negro in the office of recorder of deeds in Washington. Mr. Smith shows that this negro has been in office since 1893, and that a white man now occupies the place. Notwithstanding that this is a fact that can not be refuted, one of Brown's campaign managers are circulating the chrarge that the negro is yet in office.

The second is the exposure of the duplicity which ex-Governor Brown is employing in an effort to "work both ends against the middle" in the labor question. To the farmers he has sent a circular containing a bitter denunciation of union labor. To the union men he has sent another circular declaring that he is a foe to organized labor and protesting his hearty friendship with the laboring people. Such demagogic tricks as this deserve the most condign rebuke from the people of Georgia, and there is no doubt but that he will be so rewarded.

The lagging of the Brown campaign has been unmistakable for a dozen different ways, but most strikingly in the Albany incident. There Hugh Dorsey and others called Mr. Brown a liar when he appeared on the scene and no audience had assembled to hear him he took the matter back with a smile.

The people of Georgia long since tired of outrageous slander and libel in their politics and campaigns, and the manner in which they will undoubtedly visit this year, on August 19, upon those guilty of such reprehensible tactics will go a long way toward insuring decency in the campaigns of the future. The reelection of Senator Hoke Smith will be a vindication of his policy of staying within the job in Washington, minding the people's business, and not devoting his time to participate in a campaign the like of which is in progress in this state now.

CARING FOR THE COTTON

It is likely to throw the Joseph M. Brown contingent into fits of disappointment, still it is at the same time quite certain that Senator Hoke Smith will not come to Georgia; "in a wild effort to save his seat." He remains on the important job in Washington of caring for the south's cotton crop, etc., and the people will attend to that little matter of retaining his seat.

YET TIME
(Columbus Ledger-fl)

"Little Joe" Brown might save himself yet by quietly retiring from the race. Certainly the former governor has seen the handwriting.

TOO BITTER
(Cuthbert Leader.)

The Leader has a high regard for Joseph M. Brown, but we disapprove of the bitterness shown in his attacks on Hoke Smith.

AN UNFAIR FIGHT
(McDuffie Progress.)

While Senator Hoke Smith is in Washington working "hand in glove" with the administration to find the best means of preventing any loss to the cotton growers of the south by virtue of the impending European war, Joe Brown is on his "Cherokee farm" writing cards trying to discredit the One Man that is doing most for Georgia.

If the people of this state fail to reward the unfair and unequal fight that is being made on Hoke Smith, they will deserve no better representation in this great time-making body of the nation than by a man who, feeling that he was head upon by Hoke Smith, calls in the language of a feigned democracy, upon his intellectual equals to avenge the crime of his "wounded pride" by deposing this statesman and destroying his public usefulness.

We do not mean to say that other political fights are not unfair and unequal, but none of them, in vital importance to the people of the entire state, can compare with the fight involved in this race, and backed as Joe Brown's candidacy is by desperate and unscrupulous allies—with everything to gain and nothing to lose, it behooves the people of the state to see to it that the franchise of the people is not made a weapon of to be used for the avenging of personal grievances.

NO TIME TO SWAP HORSES
(Metter Advertiser.)

We cannot imagine a more foolish thing for the voters of the entire state to do at this time—a time of crisis, than to swap off experienced senators and congressmen for inexperienced ones, as there has ever been a time in the history of our nation when experienced men were needed in both the senate and senate it is now. With all of Europe in war, and with the possibility of the United States being dragged into it, and with the possibility of panic, and with a threatening cloud of financial ruin hanging over us, we can not afford to act so unwise as to take from the senate and congress men of experience and ability and put in inexperienced men, no knowledge of the affairs under the present administration would be worse than folly, and a calamity that would be a disgrace to this government in the most embarrassing conditions it has been placed in since it threw off the burdens of England.

Let those who think for themselves, men who take in consideration the crisis and the signs of the times rise up and do some real sober thinking and send back to the senate and congress men who have the experience, and the knowledge of affairs. Don't swap horses at this time. It matters not how much candidates may appeal to you for a change, and how much some good fellows may appeal to you to kick, some fellow out in order that he may get his head in the pail, just remember that this is no time to make a change. Will the people of this district and this state take a sober thought along this line? Will our good farmers, upon whom the nation depends, and upon whom the panic will fall the heaviest, and who will be hit the hardest by the crisis, take into consideration the fact that if the war in Europe continues there must be provision made by congress and the senate to take care of the cotton and other farm products, and in order to do this we need the services of experienced men? What can you expect in the way of provisions for the financing of our vast cotton crop in the south if we should leave the senate and congress men of experience and place there men with no experience and no knowledge of the affairs of the present administration? This is certainly a time for our people to exercise good sound judgment, and we believe they are going to elect men of knowledge and experience.

A HOPELESS CASE.
(The Albany Herald.)

In a labored editorial in its editorial of Friday, the Macon Telegraph still seeks to discredit the senior Georgia senator, and published voluminous correspondence between Senator Smith and the late Senator Bacon, said correspondence dealing with the appointment of Dr. Joseph S. Davis to the United States marshalship for the southern district of Georgia in particular, and with Georgia federal appointments in general. In view of what has already appeared in the Herald and its Macon contemporary in this connection, there are but two points we now care to make.

First, the very correspondence which the Telegraph publishes proves beyond dispute the fact that Mr. Davis was "politically objectionable" to Senator Smith. It was Senator Smith who removed the obstacles which lay in the way of Mr. Davis' appointment, and that despite the force of Mr. Smith's perfectly natural objection to Mr. Davis, the latter could never have secured the office he now holds unless Senator Smith had not only waived his objections, but lent his interest and influence at the White House in Mr. Davis' behalf.

These things the Telegraph ignores. These interesting facts are important in the least consequence, because they do credit to Senator Smith's magnanimity —a quality which the Macon paper contends he does not possess.

And, second, in the slime correspondence references is made by Senator Bacon to the fact that the editor of the Herald was Senator Smith's enthusiastic supporter in the latter's last race for governor of Georgia; but this did not prevent the Macon Telegraph from meanly insinuating that the editor of the Herald subsequently bartered his influence to Senator Smith in exchange for the latter's interest in Mr. Davis' appointment. That we have been assailed referred to as "contemptible journalism"—a term which we have had no occasion to modify.

We are not greatly surprised that the Telegraph seems to be incapable of appreciating the difference between legitimate argument and slanderous reflections upon a contemporary.

The Macon paper can ignore the common courtesies and proprieties quite as efficiently as it can ignore facts and nurse the dying embers of political hatred. It does not forgive, and we have never known it to admit error.

That is why good sound conservatism with the Telegraph has been found impossible by all its contemporaries.

A DAINTY DISH.
(Macon News.)

Thomas E. Watson, who is fighting the inevitable re-election of Hoke Smith to the United States senate, is trying desperately to inject a religious issue into the campaign.

Hugh Dorsey, who is supporting Joe Brown for the senate, is seeking to drag into the campaign the ignoble prejudice engendered by the Frank trial.

Joe Brown, who is opposing Hoke Smith for the senate, is endeavoring to stir up strife between employer and employe, between the money men and the working class, between capital and labor.

Isn't that a dainty dish to set before the king?

HALL PUTS IT WELL.
(Bulloch Times.)

The statement of Hon. Joe Hill Hall in another column, giving his reasons for supporting Senator Smith for reelection, is well put. It is the reasoning of an unbiased mind and is worthy the consideration of every Georgia Democrat. There are men in Georgia who may feel that they owe their faction the duty to oppose Senator Smith for anything that he may offer for. There are men in Georgia who have a score to settle with Hoke Smith, and who, because Joe Hill Hall is one of this class, its has never trained with the Hoke Smith faction. He has taken upon himself to work against any man who can be offered for governor of Georgia, and, as he says in his card, he would not vote for him personally. But it is like Mr. Hall says —there are interests that are greater than Hoke Smith and Joe Brown. The Democratic party of the nation is, in a sense, on trial in Georgia. Mr. Brown and his faction opposed the nomination of President Wilson, and Governor Brown has never been in accord with him. His promise to uphold the administration in an earnest one—his sympathies are not in that direction. Georgia owes it to herself to give the best support to Wilson and Presidential policies and his administration. The question is, can she do it better by the election of Hoke Smith? The question is easily answered.

JUST FIGHTING SMITH—THAT'S ALL.
(Cartersville News.)

From listening to the speakers here Saturday one got the impression that it was a case of being for Brown.—Hall's observation.

This is a conviction that is entertained in the state. The support for Brown is unanimous, and includes the irreconcilables, the men who shut their eyes, refuse to recognize the great work that Senator Smith has done, and is capable of doing. Washington, and kindred are more intent on satisfying their almost insane prejudices than considering the welfare of the party and of the nation.

Fortunately, though, this class of people is dwindling, and it began to dwindle two years ago, has been losing in numbers and influence steadily, and is capable of doing little harm on August 19. The primary will unquestionably give to Senator Smith a magnificent endorsement and practically guarantee him the nomination by a large majority in the convention.

Of those who vote for former Governor Brown it is a safe assertion that a very large proportion will not cast their ballots in his interest because they really wish to see him in the senate, or because they regard him the most able, most experienced, or best adapted man to represent Georgia in that body. Their votes will largely express their feelings of personal spite toward Senator Smith, their adherence to an old factional feeling that has lost its meaning and is cherished without rhyme or reason.—Savannah Press.

WHY THEY ARE FOR HIM.
(Columbus Enquirer-Sun.)

Because Senator Hoke Smith's record in the United States senate is remarkable for faithful service to the people of Georgia. He has won high leadership in his party, and broad influence in the senate, by his devotion to the common country. But most important of all he has won fruitful victories for his own state and section, and unparalleled benefits for its citizens. He has secured legislation that will mean millions of dollars to the farming interests of Georgia. He has originated or aided the passage of bills that are vastly beneficial to the state's educational welfare. He has stuck constantly to his duties, has worked hard and effectively and has produced definite results for the good of the entire commonwealth.

In fact Senator Hoke Smith is recognize everywhere as one of the senate's great leaders. He has played a distinctive part in all the important debates of the senate, and in establishing the wonderful record of the Democratic administration. He has served the nation and has served Georgia supremely well.

A better record no senator could have made, and higher praise no senator could have earned.

COUNTRY NEEDS STRONG MEN NOW.
(The Cochran Journal.)

If ever this country needed strong men, broad men and wise men in the congress and United States senate, it is now. We want men of action, men who can do things. Men wise enough to conceive the plans and able to execute them promptly. At this moment we need the counsel of the wise and the steady judgment of the strong.

We cannot afford to send men to the United States senate at this particular time, unless we feel they are able to cope with the situations. There may have been a time in this country when we could tolerate men who publish speeches in the Congressional Record, and mailed them out to their sleepy constituents to dream over, while the speeches were never made on the floors of the house and the applause noted at the end of nearly every period were manufactured by a single voice or heard by a ynliving man.

We need men now more than ever who can think on their seats in the senate and say something that will catch the attention of statesmen, and able to do something that will render a service to their country. Let us rise above every consideration of petty politics and support the man in whom we believe will render the best service to our country.

THEIR BEST FRIEND
(The Empire State.)

The talk we hear in the farmer vote for Joe Brown is for political consumption only. Hoke Smith is the best friend that the public ever had. He's out and is doing more for them than any man in the south, and very few farmers are ignorant to the fact. Eight years ago the laboring people were misled and voted against Smith as their enemy and for Brown as their friend and they were badly blundereed. But they will not be able to work the farmer that way.

It is the "country counties." In them Senator Hoke Smith has the greatest strength. The farmers are not the fools that Watson and Brown take them to be and they will vote strongly to keep Senator Smith, the farmer's friend, in the United States senate.

WILL BE REMEMBERED
(Darien Gazette.)

Seantor Hoke Smith was a warm advocate of that splendid measure, the parcel post, and has a bush a heap to do with making it a law. We should remember this on election day.

A DOWNRIGHT CALAMITY.
(Cartersville News.)

It is rather refreshing to notice the way in which former Joe Brown papers are treating Hoke Smith's candidacy and shows rare patriotism. They may still love Joe Brown, but they know it would be a downright calamity to Georgia to take Hoke Smith out of the senate. It is said that over 200 papers that formerly supported Joe Brown are now for Hoke Smith.

A RECORD ACHIEVEMENT.
(Milledgeville News.)

What a record of achievement! What other senator can point to such achievements even though he may have served a score of years in the halls of national legislation?

And all of this is but a part of what the senator has done for the people of the country.

He has upheld the hands of the president in all of his policies. The president has leaned upon him, and sought his counsel at critical junctures.

His latest service has been to take the initiative in securing governmental aid in protecting the farmers of the south from the disaster that threatens them because of the war in Europe. The patches from Washington state that Senator Smith called a meeting of the senate and committees of which he is chairman, both the president and Secretary of Agriculture McAdoo will see to it that the cotton crop is taken care of and the farmers will find a market for their product open to them, both in this country and Europe. It is believed that satisfactory prices for the south's staple will result.

These facts the farmers of Georgia and of Baldwin county, should carefully consider. They are not theories, or promises, or rosy-hued figures, or newspaper cards, but facts.

The farmer has a friend at Washington, able, experienced, energetic, keen, with an unequalled record of achievements, and who has the ear not only of the administration, but of congress.

No state in the union can boast such a man. The glory of his deeds is the glory of Georgia.

Is it not a pity that Georgia could not re-elect him by acclamation? He deserves it. He would honor herself by such an act.

But—there are some republicans, who did not support Governor Brown, disappointed politicians, who never die. They spit a little venom, and leer—because they have axes to grind, and no enemy to punish.

The farmers of Baldwin—and of Georgia—are going to march up to the polls on the day of the primary election, and engage they will send to Washington will be a friend there for yet greater efforts in their behalf.

NOTHING TO FEAR.
(Macon News.)

Now that the first fears are over, the south is beginning to see that the European war is going to play a comparatively small part toward cnecking the prosperity and production of the country.

The prompt action of the government in providing money for the banks to loan the cotton growers, and the assurance that there will be ample transportation facilities, will greatly relieve fear for cheer, and will also restore confidence in business circles generally.

It should be a most considerable gratification to Georgians to know that of their fellow citizens and public servants, Senator Hoke Smith is the head of the senatorial committee which is looking after the interests of the south in the present emergency. His prompt and energetic manner in which he took hold of the matter, the people in the south were not long kept in a state of uncertainty.

Incidentally, the prominent position and influence which Senator Smith commands in the United States senate and in the estimation of the administration fairly interests it. He has already demonstrated than in the present emergency.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.
(Columbus Ledger.)

The Columbus Cheering House association reflected the sentiment of a great majority of the people of Georgia in that resolution passed at its Saturday heartily commending Senator Hoke Smith on his activity in behalf of the farmers cotton interests, which were suffering to some extent from the European war scare. Local bankers, realizing the importance of the government to prevent loss to the cotton growers and factors, not only indorsed the action of Senator Smith, but urged that other Georgia representatives in congress co-operate with a view of bringing about speedy results.

Senator Smith is the man of the hour in Washington. He can be counted upon to act when the interests of the people are involved.

DANGEROUS TO CHANGE
(T. R. Powell in Gwinnett Journal.)

I do not usually take much stock in political speculations, but this I can say, that at this time attempt to dictate to the voters of Georgia what they shall do under conditions staring us in the face I write this in the nature of a question, for that we will have a settled in a few days. Are we going to let feelings and past recollections control us, or are we going to consider present material interests and stand by Hoke Smith who is laboring daily trying to pull us through at a time when we are practically alone and need his help most? If we have not thought of this, would it not be a thing like when we were about to fall into a pit or run against a snag? I confess that there is some national legislation now pending that I cannot quickly grasp and so far as we people who live in the cotton belt are concerned, we will be seriously affected by the handling of our cotton which is now upon us cannot be set aside. I think we should trust to God and to the wisdom of our leaders to pull us through. POWELL.

STILL SAILING
(Coffee County Progress.)

At last account the Joe Brown "special" was gliding peacefully up Salt creek with sails and gaze steadily set to the bosom of the creek, and that it was expected to arrive at the headwaters early on the 4th or 5th of Sept. 19.

NO REASON.
(The Madison Madisonian.)

The Madisonian esteems the Walton Tribune as one of it smost valued and valuable exchanges. Its editor, Earnest Camp, is one of the most level headed members of the Georgia press. Like the people of the Madison district, Editor Camp was a loyal supporter of Hon. Joseph M. Brown for governor, and yet Mr. Camp fails to see any reason why Mr. Brown should be elected senator.

HAS TO BE A HUSTLER.
(Columbus Enquirer-Sun.)

Opposition to the election of Senator Hoke Smith refer in a sneering way to what they term his press agent. This is due to the fact that the Georgia senator has been very active in behalf of the cotton growers of the south. If they will read the news a little more closely and endeavor to eliminate some of the bias in their minds they will conclude that it takes a very lively and energetic newspaper man to keep track of all the good work the senator is doing.

EDITORS STAND COMMENDED.
(Walton Tribune.)

Editor Walton Tribune:

I sincerely trust that the good people of Walton county will stand by Senator Hoke Smith and give him a majority at the polls next Wednesday, as I feel that his defeat will be little short of a calamity to Georgia, the south and the nation. I reside in Washington and know something of the high standing and popularity of Senator Smith. He is always at work for the best interest of his people, if one of the president's right hand men and enjoys the confidence and esteem of the whole administration. He is generally regarded as one of the strongest men in the United States senate, a proven friend to the farmer, and a statement of unquestioned integrity and ability, who is in shape to do more for his state than any other man who could be named.

I cannot but feel that the defeat of Senator Smith now would not only be a great injustice to him, but would set backward the hands of the clock as it relates to the advancement of Georgia and the entire south.

Very truly yours,
ERNEST BRASWELL.

Mansfield, Ga., Aug. 10, 1914.

Dear Mr. Camp:

I was greatly pleased with your patriotic editorial in last week's Tribune on the long term senatorial race. Knowing that you have always had much high regard for Mr. Brown, personally, I count it as a stroke of genuine love of state and nation for you to vote for Mr. Smith, whom you have fought with such telling blows all these years. As I have told you before, I admire your moral policy of taking one side or the other, even though I were on the opposite side, Hoke Smith is doing great work for the nation, and especially for our section.

Sincerely,
A. C. ADAMS.

The editor of the Tribune appreciates deeply the kind words of Mr. Adams, as well as those of the many other good friends who have either written or called on us personally since our last issue. Our editorial of last week was endorsed not only by the original Smith men, but by many who have always supported Governor Brown in all of his previous campaigns. A number of these have called to tell us so and among the several letters of appreciation received is a strong one from Editor Braswell, of Mansfield.

Of course the supporters of Governor Brown in this race are sure that a large majority of them will give us credit for being honest and sincere in the course we have chosen to pursue.

By remaining in Washington attending to his duties and exerting his best endeavors in the effort to hold the commerce of the nation together and secure the farmer of the south a fair price for his cotton, Senator Smith unquestionably deserves the thanks and gratitude of the entire people.

COMES OUT FOR SMITH.
(Cedartown Standard.)

The principal interest of the present campaign in Georgia centers around the fight for the two senatorships.

Hon. Hoke Smith is a candidate for re-election for the full term, and is opposed by his old-time foe, ex-Governor Joseph M. Brown.

The editors of this paper have always been "Joe Brown men," but several months ago—in the interests of peace and harmony, as we then saw it—declared in favor of Smith.

In declaring for Senator Smith we followed our custom (broken only once, when we supported our home man, Hon. H. W. Everett, in his race for congress against Judson Clements) of supporting the man who was doing good service at the national capital in preference to one who had no experience. The New England states have wielded an influence out of all proportion to their size simply by keeping the same men "on the job" as long as they did good service, and one of the most expensive habits a state or section has is the "passing around" of offices like those of United States senator and congressman. The longer an able man stays in one of those positions, the better work he can do for his state. We know that Hon. Hoke Smith has rendered magnificent service in Washington, and we do not think it would be fair either to him or to Georgia to displace him now. We still cherish our high opinion of the ability of "Little Joe" Brown and our warm regard for him, believe he made a mistake in allowing himself to be influenced by the personal animosity cherished against Hoke Smith by himself and by the men who got him into this race.

WORKING FOR THE FARMERS.
(Washington Reporter.)

Senator Hoke Smith says that it is more important that he stay in Washington and talk for the farmers on the bills affecting their interests than to come to Georgia and talk to the farmers about his candidacy.

LEADING FOR COTTON.
(The Augusta Chronicle.)

The congressmen are working hard for cotton, and Senator Hoke Smith is the lead. The cotton farmers are sure that their interests will be cared for.

Take Jacobs' Liver Salt

Keep Alimentary Tract Flushed by Taking Jacobs' Liver Salt Occasionally. Brings the Bile.

The heavy meat diet has a large percentage of waste and leaves a mass of undigested, fermenting food to generate poisons and cause auto-intoxication, constipation, indigestion, biliousness and rheumatism. If one indulges in meat, then occasionally before breakfast take Jacobs' Liver Salt to flush the alimentary tract and wash away this fermenting food and the poisons that liver and kidneys may proceed with the natural daily elimination necessary to keep the system clean and healthy.

Jacobs' Liver Salt is the greatest known liver stimulant. It flushes the whole alimentary canal, loosens packed and clogged waste and causes natural elimination without force. Take it on arising or when you feel badly, and in an hour you are in splendid condition. Never gripes or nauseates.

For constipation, biliousness, sour stomach, Jacobs' Liver Salt is better than calomel; it acts just as surely, but quicker and is not dangerous nor risk. Calomel forces and always weakens. Jacobs' Liver Salt tones the system; it clears away nausea and sick fogginess like a crisp frost clarifies the air. Jacobs' Liver Salt is the tonic a man takes if he desires to put him on his mettle for a big day. Best regulator for everybody. 25c and 50c at all druggists. MERCHANTS' MEETING CLOSED WITH GREAT BARBECUE THURSDAY

After Two Weeks of Festivities Dixie Dealers Return to Homes Loud in Praise of Atlanta Hospitality

MANY RETAILERS HERE FROM ALL SOUTHEAST

Bought Generally of Wholesale Offerings and Expressed Themselves Highly Delighted With Atlanta's Market

The big barbecue at the waterworks park on Thursday, at which about 1,500 people were present, brought to a close the two weeks' festivities of the Southern Merchants' assembly.

The cue was spread on long tables under the trees on a rise commanding a view of the waterworks lake. It was an ideal spot, high and breezy, with beautifully kept terrace lawns.

The great crowd gathered at the entrance gates at 1 o'clock and were soon thereafter admitted to the tables which J. Lee Barnes had spread with deliciously cooked mutton and pork and appetizing Brunswick stew. At the signal the crowd fell to with a will and never was a more delightful feast enjoyed anywhere.

The barbecue committee consisting of J. R. Little, R. K. Rambo, W. O. Stamps, Meyer Regenstein and W. H. White, Jr., were generally congratulated on the big success of this the greatest and closing event of the merchants' meeting.

Despite all war talk, there was a large number of merchants present during the two weeks' celebration. They represented all sections of the southeastern territory. Many of them had never patronized the Atlanta market before but declared, after their visit here and inspection of the offerings of Atlanta wholesalers, that this is the place for them from now on.

The program of entertainment this year was more extensive and more elaborate than ever before and the visiting merchants had a rare good time. They all returned to their homes, declaring that Atlanta's brand of hospitality can not be surpassed anywhere and that they will surely return next August and bring their neighboring merchants with them.

The two convention sessions of the assembly proved to be especially enjoyable and interesting. At the first one J. W. Vaughan, of Cartersville, presided, and speeches were made by Governor John M. Slaton, Mayor Woodward and Harvie Jordan. The second session was conducted by R. O. Crouch, of Griffin, and optimistic talks with reference to the fall outlook were made by Sam D. Jones and J. K. Orr. Mr. Crouch also delivered a helpful address on the proper training of retail salespeople.

The wholesalers had many buyers among the visitors and express themselves as entirely satisfied with the trade they enjoyed under present conditions.

LITTLE EXPRESSES THANKS FOR BARBECUE AID

J. R. Little, chairman of the barbecue committee of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, desires to express his especial thanks to the Atlanta Brewing and Ice company for the liquid refreshments which they donated on the occasion of the merchants' barbecue last Thursday.

Mr. Little declares that he is also indebted for their aid in helping him make the feast the success that it was to every member of his committee, namely, R. K. Rambo, W. O. Stamps, Meyer Regenstein and W. H. White, Jr.

The picture at the top, left, shows a group of lady visitors at the tables. In the top picture at the right is shown the crowd being admitted at the gate. In the lower left hand corner is a group of fleet arrivals are giving expression to the jolly mood of the occasion. The barbecue smile is very evident on the faces of the three visitin merchants in the lower right hand corner.

HOTEL INSPECTION BILL GOES OVER ANOTHER YEAR

Travelers and Hotel Men Preparing for Quick Action at Next Session

The hotel inspection bill advocated both by the traveling men and members of the Georgia Hotel association was crowded out at the end of the legislative session and will have to go over until next year.

This measure was of great general importance and desired by all the traveling public, but the legislature saw fit to dilly-dally along with numerous local bills until it was too late for the hotel bill to get a hearing.

The travelers are in no wise discouraged, however, but will renew the fight for better hotel regulations with still greater vigor next year.

"We are already preparing for quick, decisive action at the very beginning of the next session of the legislature," said H. A. Shackelford, chairman of the hotel committee of the Georgia-Florida division of the United Commercial Travelers. "We are sure that this measure meets a large public need, and we are determined that it shall pass before another year rolls round."

SMITH CLUB ISSUES LETTER TO TRAVELERS

Calls Attention to Statement Made in Reply to Traveling Men's Letters

To the Traveling Men of Georgia:

In response to the many letters which you have been sending in to the Traveling Men's Hoke Smith club, we are addressing you an open letter which will be found in the regular news columns of The Journal today.

We take this method of replying to you because of the impossibility of reaching you at this late date by personal letter, because most of you will be on the road Monday morning. We expect to address similar communications to you each day in The Journal from now until election time.

Very truly yours,

NOTED BLANKET SALESMAN PAYS HIS FIRM VISIT

M. J. Kent, the famous blanket salesman of the Rosenfeld company with headquarters at New Orleans, was in last week for the first time in three months. Mr. Kent has been having a good business not only in blankets but on all lines of the company's business.

CAPITAL CITY FORCE TO MEET AUGUST 29

Will Hold All-Day Sales Conference--T. B. Lewis Will Give Luncheon

On Saturday, August 29, the entire sales force of the Capital City Tobacco company will meet for an all-day conference. All the travelers will be in and these, together with the sales force, will go over the stock, familiarizing themselves with the new goods, and new values, and will in this way line up everything for a brilliant fall trade.

T. B. Lewis, the sales manager, will preside and will tender the force a delightful luncheon.

The Capital City Tobacco company has been enjoying a splendid business throughout the summer and its fall trade is opening up fine. From the heads of the firm throughout the entire organization there is a spirit of progressiveness and the determination is evident to make the coming fall the best in the company's history.

MONTAG SCHOOL SUPPLY ORDERS BEING DELIVERED

"We have had a fine house trade during the past week on all our lines," said J. C. Mathews, of Montag Bros. "Orders for school supplies have also been piling in. One order we received called for 16,000 tablets. Our school line consists of tablets, school satchels, drinking cups, composition books, note books, pencils and pens. The opening of school is now only a month away and the retail dealers are ordering their supplies at once."

H. R. CALLOWAY REACHED NEW YORK WEDNESDAY

H. R. Callaway, of Ragan-Malone company, who was in Europe when the war broke out, arrived last Wednesday in New York on the steamship Philadelphia. He was in Hamburg, Germany, whence he had expected to sail, when hostilities began. He succeeded in getting out of Germany on perhaps the last train allowed to leave that country before the war began. He reached London, whence he sailed home.

Food Products of All Kinds Showing Decided Advances

"So far as we have been informed the only imported products on which prices have not been advanced are Lipton's teas and Pompeian olive oil," said W. O. Stamps, of Fain & Stamps. "We have received advices from both of these concerns telling us that the average shipments would be made as usual and at the same prices. Practically all other imported food products have scored sharp advance.

"Among food articles generally on which prices have risen on account of the foreign war are sugar, which has risen from about 4 9-4c to about 5c; rolled oats, which advanced about 8 per cent; syrup, 2c per gallon; meal, 5c a bushel; flour, 75c a barrel; coffee, about 3c a pound; teas generally 3c to 5c a pound; vinegars, 21-2c to 3c a gallon; canned milk, 25c a case; quinine, 5c an ounce; and paper and paper bags have also experienced a sharp rise."

ATLANTA JOBBERS GET GOVERNMENT LETTERS

Ask Information as to Rise in Price of Food Products

The wholesale grocers of Atlanta are in receipt of a letter from Hooper Alexander, United States district attorney, asking information as to the rise of prices in the various food products and seeking their co-operation with the government in trying to ascertain if the advanced prices have been due to any combination in restraint of trade or other unlawful methods.

The letter constitutes a part of the program instituted by President Wilson a few days ago to seek the causes for the almost unheard of increase in the cost of food products of all kinds.

MR. AND MRS. J. BARNES ENJOYED MERCHANTS WEEK

Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes, of Douglasville, Ga., were among the merchants' assembly visitors at John Silvey & Co.'s. They were here throughout the second week and Mr. Barnes during his stay bought fall goods for his stock. Frank Whitman of Silvey & Co., was the salesman. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes both report having highly enjoyed their stay in Atlanta.

C. W. M'CLURE RETURNS FROM N. Y. BUYING TRIP

Tells of Trade Conditions as Affected by the European War

C. W. McClure, of the McClure Ten Cent company returned last week from a two weeks' buying trip to New York city.

"When I first reached the New York market," said Mr. McClure, "I found that buyers generally, as well as manufacturers and dealers were pursuing what might be called a "watchful waiting policy." Trade seemed to be moving at a rather slow pace; but when the war situation became more and more acute, trade began to liven up considerably.

"Buying became active especially in certain lines in which it was seen there would be a shortage due to the cutting off of the supply of European goods because of the war. It was astonishing how many manufactured articles and materials were found to be imported from Germany and other European states now involved in the conflict. Because of this situation trade in many lines received a decided stimulus.

"I think as soon as the future of cotton is definitely known, business will go right ahead with accelerated speed in many respects. We have just got in two carloads of dolls, imported direct from Germany, and consider ourselves fortunate in receiving them at this time."

Monster Sign Will Decorate Top of New Deere Home

A monster sign will decorate the top of the new building of the John Deere Plow company at Nelson street and the Southern railroad. The sign is an immense bronze deer, which, together with its supports and lettering, will be twenty-five feet high and sixty feet long. The design is the well known jumping deer which is familiar wherever the John Deere products are sold or advertised. The sign will face the plaza of the Terminal station and because of its size and striking effect will be seen all over Atlanta.

BANKS WHITEMAN HAD GREAT TRADE LAST WEEK

Gets New Car and Had Most Customers at His Firm

Banks Whiteman, of John Silvey & Co., from southeast Georgia, is the proud owner of a new car, and he certainly made good with it these past two weeks, hauling his trade. He had by far more customers here than any of the boys. His French chauffeur and car were moving all the time.

CROUCH DELIVERED SPLENDID ADDRESS ON SALES TRAINING

Presided at Second Convention Session of Southern Merchants' Assembly and Spoke on Vital Trade Topic

NO MERCANTILE SUCCESS WITHOUT TRAINED CLERKS

Declared That Retail Sales People Must Be Taught to Think and Sell Goods so Well They Will Sty Sold

The address given below was delivered by R. O. Crouch, of Griffin, Ga., at the second convention session of the Southern Merchants' assembly on last Tuesday night. Mr. Crouch is one of the leading retail merchants of Georgia, and his address on the training of retail sales people was heard with interest by every one present. Mr. Crouch presided at the second session. His address in part follows.

Today the entire business world recognizes the vital importance of the salesman and saleswoman.

When modern business developments brught "One Price" and "Money Back," it was thought that anybody could sell goods on that principle—without either knowledge of goods or training.

Today merchants and manufacturers are alive to the error of that theory, and the era of education has begun.

It takes far more training and brains to stimulate a desire for commodities that have not been used before, and for articles that are not really needed, than it did in the old days to get the best of a customer when he or she was dickering for something that was actually needed.

To me, the salesman holds the same position, in the distribution of the world's products, as the hand on the watch does to the telling of time. Of what use is all the skill of the watchmaker, the delicate adjustment, the finely tempered steel, and the carefully set jewels that hold the action so perfectly, if there are no hands on the face of the watch to tell the time that all these facilities are combined to indicate with absolute accuracy.

Of what use is the great Ford factory, with its wonderful facilities for speedy work, and its marvelous products of a thousand cars a day, if salesmen are not constantly selling the cars at the same prodigious rate.

The hand of the watch is the only thing that the user sees.

The salesman is the only person that the consumer sees.

The sale depends upon the knowledge, skill, tact, courtesy and all-round ability of the salesman. All the brains, knowledge and genius of the organization never comes in contact with the customer.

Of course, a pound of sugar might be sold by a slot machine.

But, with slot machine stores, ten thousand industries would go to smash, and hundreds of towns and cities would be filled with people out of work. Yet, indeed, of course, would have only slot machine service except for the special providence which gives a certain percentage of salespersons the intuition to teach themselves.

No store, however small, should be without its school for the day—in business hours, or after them.

The law may not permit you to work your people after hours, but it certainly will not forbid you to teach them the things that will enable them to earn more, and sell more.

ON THE FIRING LINE WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

SERIOUSNESS OF WORK.

First, teach salespeople the seriousness of the work.

Impress Mary Jones1 with the fact that if she sells that suit, dress pattern or hose, the man who makes that kind of suit will earn that much more, and, if she doesn't sell it, he may lose his job, or earn less than his family needs for their support. Explain to her that every time she sells a suit she helps the farmer who raises the cotton, the people who pick it, the railroads that carry it, the mills that card and weave it, the dyers, finishers, wrappers—the people in the factory where the suits or dress is made, as well as the people who make the linings, the buttons, and all others who contribute to its production and handling in any way.

Don't you think that Mary Jones will be a different woman, after her eyes are opened to the vital importance of selling the goods that depend upon her to be sold, in order to have so many people make a proper living?

After the seriousness of the work is realized, other lessons may be taught. The ground must first be prepared, after you stimulate the imagination and ambition of your people selling may be taught.

Of most importance, I consider the qualities that must be drawn out of the salesperson—courtesy, tact and pleasant manners.

If these cannot be taught, the other lessons may be omitted. The material is not worth any labor, for salesmanship.

The salesperson's manners must be agreeable to the customer. He must be earnest and intelligently helpful—never familiar, and never rude under any circumstances—no matter what the provocation.

Neatness in dress and absolute cleanliness of person are vital.

Every salesperson must be a bureau of information about the store.

The customer has a right to expect it, and the management should never permit a salesperson to go on duty, before being thoroughly taught store routine. The ignorant answer of a new clerk discredits the entire store, and asking other clerks annoys their customers and wastes more time.

Salespeople must be taught to know their merchandise.

They might as well be ignorant of the English language, as not to be able to give an intelligent reply about the goods they sell.

Every salesperson should become an expert in the goods he sells.

This is necessary to have the respect of customers, to influence sales, and it is part of the thing sold, to know how to use it.

But salespeople are not mind readers, and must be taught.

Yet how few stores, or their buyers, ever take time to explain the goods to the people that must sell them.

Every manager should fix stated times when he will demonstrate to his people the use, the value, the construction, the quality, and the comparative value of everything in stock; and the exactly the arguments that sold him the goods may enable his people to sell them to the public. This will make goods sell twice as quickly, and with infinitely greater satisfaction to the customers.

Salespeople should be thoroughly educated in the store policy.

The essential points should be printed on cards, and always in the possession of salespeople, for continuous study. They should be frequently catechised on the subject, not only to know the words but to understand the meaning. This education is a great work, but any ignorance of a salesperson reflects upon the whole store.

AFTER LEARN TO THINK.

Salespeople must be taught to be thoughtful.

People who succeed are people who think. In no profession is it more vital to keep the mind awake, than in selling merchandise.

When a customer asks for something out of the ordinary, in the way of service it is so easy to say, "We can't do that." Such words should be forbidden by salespeople. They should always refer such things to a manager. But they must think, in order to know what to do.

The thoughtful suggestion of other merchandise is often really helpful to the customer, and leaves a pleasant memory of the thoughtful sales person, in her mind, even when an actual sale has not been made.

Then there will be far less goods to be brought back to the store to demand money back, and to be reduced in price, if goods are thoughtfully sold, in the first place.

Probably every progressive store on the continent is worrying about goods returned.

One of the most hopeful ways to cure this evil is by teaching sales people to sell their goods so intelligently and thoroughly that they will stay sold.

W. P. FAIN CAUGHT BIG FISH ON A TRIP OFF ST. SIMONS

The picture shows the thirty-seven-pound drum caught by W. P. Fain of Fain & Stamps while he was on a several days' fishing trip off St. Simons Island. He sent the fish to his firm before his return and they had a merry time speculating on whether Mr. Fain actually caught the monster or bought him from some native fisherman. On his return, however, Mr. Fain finally convinced the members of the house force that the fish was really his own catch. W. O. Stamps is seen on the left holding the fish and Emil Dittler is on the right.

MONTAG DOLLS AND TOYS ESCAPE BATTLE SHIPS

Reach Atlanta Via Savannah From Germany--Holiday Goods Scarcity Likely

Montag Brothers are congratulating themselves upon the safe arrival of their shipment of seven cars of dolls and four cars of toys, which reached Savannah from Germany just in time to escape seizure by foreign war vessels.

This is beyond a doubt one of the biggest consignments of dolls and toys ever received by a southern firm, and is in all likelihood the last shipment of such goods that will be received from abroad this fall.

Merchants expecting to handle Christmas goods this year are urged to make their purchases early, as only the early buyer can be sure of getting a supply of such imported goods.

The big Montag line of holiday goods is now on display at their home sample rooms, 10 to 20 Nelson street, Atlanta, at the Molton hotel, Birmingham, Ala.; the Jefferson hotel, Columbia, S. C., and the Edwards house, Jackson, Miss.

J. C. Matthews, of this company, advises dealers to visit the sample room nearest them during the coming week.

DIXIE CO. BUSY WITH VINEGAR SHIPMENTS

Down at the Dixie Pickle & Preserving company on last Friday when the Firing Line representative called, everything was bustle and hustle, getting out big shipments of vinegar. The vinegar season is now at its height and the Dixie company has been doing an especially fine trade on this line.

ORR CO. GETTING MANY PALM BEACH SHOE ORDERS

Will Be Delivered in Spring, Biggest Season Ever Expected Next Year

"We are receiving quite a number of orders now for Palm Beach shoes to be delivered next spring," said J. K. Orr of the J. K. Orr Shoe company. "Our factory was among the very first to put the Palm Beach shoe on the market, which we did a year ago last summer. With the rise in popularity of the Palm Beach suit, the Palm Beach shoe has attained a wide sale this season and a still greater demand is in prospect for next spring. In fact manufacturers of Palm Beach clothing have already sold large orders for delivery next spring and summer.

"The Palm Beach suit and the Palm Beach shoe will cause a tremendous added demand for cotton. In fact, when cotton is made into Palm Beach suits it becomes worth about 50c a pound. This will offer an opportunity for Georgia raised cotton to be made into finished products, much to the advantage of the cotton industry here and elsewhere.

"The Palm Beach shoe is a blessing to the shoe manufacturers and dealers because it permits the use of canvas and other material than leather, except for the soles. With leather at the high price it is now, it can be seen how this benefits the shoe market.

"Palm Beach shoes wear fully as well as leather shoes, many of them lasting two seasons. We look forward to this trade with a great deal of interest for the next season."

O. T. CAMP WITHDRAWS FROM COUNCIL RACE

O. T. Camp, president of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, who has been a candidate for councilman from the third ward, has withdrawn from the race. Mr. Camp states that his duties at the pure food show to be held here in September under the auspices of the Grocers and Butchers' association will take up all his time. He says he hopes to be able to offer for council at some later time.

WAR SENDS SUGAR ON SENSATIONAL ADVANCE

Product Nearly Doubles in One Week--Due to Prospective Shortage From War

The most interesting feature of the wholesale grocery market last week was the sensational advance of sugar from 4 3-4 cents a pound to about 8 cents. The advance was due to the European war and places sugar at the highest figure at which it has been known for a generation.

The increase in price is due to the prospective shortage of the supply, a large per cent of which has heretofore come from Germany, France and Austria, where the sugar beet industry is very extensive.

Most of the wholesalers had a good supply of sugar on hand, but of course not enough to meet the demands of their trade for any great length of time.

The rise in the price of sugar is having a number of indirect and and at first unlook-for results. The preserve and jelly trade is feeling effect and of course candy in all its various forms will be affected also.

TRAMMELL'S FRIENDS ARE ACTIVE IN HIS BEHALF

Says He Has Always Been Traveling Man's Friend, Confident of Re-election

The friends among the traveling men of Paul B. Trammell, candidate for re-election as railroad commissioner, are very active in his behalf. They declare that he has always been the friend of the traveling men and has seen that they received justice in their contentions for better mileage and railroad regulations in this state.

They are enthusiastically for him for re-election and are confident his services will be indorsed by the people and that he will be returned to his place on the board.

ON THE ROAD AND IN THE OFFICE WITH ATLANTA'S BUSY ARMY OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

D. T. Heery the price man of Lamar-Rankin company, will leave Monday for his two weeks' vacation.

T. W. McHan, of John Silvey & Co., left Saturday for South Carolina to resume his season after two weeks' stay in the city.

P. H. Jeter, of Georgia railroad, traveler of John Silvey & Co., was busy until Saturday morning with several stay-overs.

"We have had a very satisfactory business indeed throughout the two weeks of the merchants' assembly," said R. K. Rambo, of John Silvey & Co. "In fact, the last week of the assembly proved to be a rushing, stirring time with us."

W. M. Whiteley, for many years southern representative of the Havana-American Company, with headquarters in Atlanta, but who was promoted and transferred to Texas on the first of the year, was back in the city last week on a visit to W. B. Carlton and E. F. Malone, of the Capitol City Tobacco company. Mr. Whiteley has charge of the entire state of Texas for his company, and its trade on Principe de Gales and Preferencia cigars has shown a big increase since he took charge of the territory. Mr. Whiteley enjoyed his visit to Atlanta, where all his old friends were particularly glad to see him. He stopped over here on his way to New York on business connected with his firm.

C. D. Harris, of the Capital City Tobacco company, will be away this week on his vacation.

K. D. Brobston, the east Georgia salesman of the John Deere Plow company, was in the city last week. Other travelers of this company present were E. F. Geiselman, Central of Georgia salesman, and J. B. Moore, special traveler.

C. T. Gause, of Montag brothers, is now at the Jefferson hotel in Columbia, S. C., with the display of his holiday lines. He is assisted by S. F. Hein and A. Montag.

H. E. Gillespie, city salesman of the Lamar Rankin Drug company, will be back on the job Monday after a pleasant vacation.

Leopold Haas, cashier of Montag brothers, is spending his two weeks' vacation at Mountain City, N. C.

C. C. Jeffries, the patent medicine expert of the Lamar-Rankin Drug company, was ill at his home last week.

J. H. Huff, who travels the nearby territory for the S. P. Richards company, came in Friday for the first time in several weeks.

"Advertising in the Firing Line certainly brings results," said E. F. Malone, of the Capital City Tobacco company. "Our new chewing gum, 'Frozen Mints,' which we have been advertising, has been having a wide sale. Only today I received a letter from a customer away over in South Carolina near the North Carolina line, saying, 'Send half a dozen boxes of that new gum you are advertising in The Journal Firing Line.'"

L. L. Dettelbach, otherwise known as "Billy Sunshine," the genial traveler of the Rosenfeld company, attended the big merchants' barbecue at the Waterworks last Thursday. Billy is always bright and happy, but on occasions like the merchants' feast he is certainly at his best. With a big dish of barbecue in one hand and a large glass of liquid refreshment in the other, his smile was as broad as the horizon and more than ever he was voted entitled to the neckname by which he is known throughout the Southern states.

W. B. Waterhouse and W. T. Cooley, city salesmen of the Brower Candy company, turned in an unusually large amount of business last week. The company is now installed in its elegant new home at 187-89 Edgewood avenue and the two city men were determined that they would signalize that event with an especially good showing.

There seems to be no use for a Georgia mule to try conclusions with that new automobile of R. H. Bickerstaff, of the McCord-Stewart company. It appears that one tried it not long ago with disastrous consequences—to the mule.

E. C. Bell, of the Brower Candy company, will be on the job again Monday, after a pleasant vacation. W. M. Wallace, of this company, is looking forward eagerly to his vacation, but states that it will have to be next summer, as he sees no prospect now of being able to leave his desk.

Donald McKle, of the H. L. Singer office force, left last Thursday for a ten-day vacation. He did not state where he was going, but it is presumed he will take a trip in that trimmed racing automobile of his.

W. S. James, of the McCord-Stewart company, was in off the road several days last week suffering from a slight injury to his leg.

"Late as it is in the season we are still selling large quantites of fruit jars," said J. J. Simmons, of Kelley Brothers company. "It has been one of the greatest fruit jar seasons ever known."

F. B. Florence, of E. L. Florence & Co., who has written interestin eulogies on the potato and the watermelon for the Firing Line, is now prepared to write another eulogy—this time on Georgia barbecue. Mr. Florence attended the merchants' barbecue Thursday and declared that the 'cue served on that occasion was the best he ever threw lip over, or words to that effect.

E. M. Hudson was one of the late arrivals at the merchants' barbecue Thursday, but not too late to find enough to feed upon sumptuously. He was discovered soon after his arrival with a tray in each hand filled with stew and 'cue.

H. L. Singer, of the H. L. Singer company, was asked last Thursday about the war and its effect on trade, but was too busy selling an opening bill to discuss either wars or rumors of wars.

H. Y. McCord, Jr., of the McCord-Stewart company, returned last week from a vacation camping trip on the Coosa river, in Alabama. He insists that it was all a mistake about his spending the time fighting mosquitoes, but on the other hand says he had a thoroughly delightful outing devoted to te pleasures of fishing, swimming and boating.

W. R. Simpson, of Jones Brothers & Co., was ill for several days last week at Jacksonville, Fla. J. S. Lee, of this company, was working the trade last week at Tuscaloosa, Ala., while W. A. Martin was rendering a good account of himself at Spartanburg, S. C.

J. J. Simmons, of Kelley Brothers company, returned last Monday from a vacation spent at his old home in Henry county. "I had a great time," said he. "I made the trip through the country in my automobile, and while I was away I went fishing, attended a big revival, and feasted every day on fried chicken, peaches and watermelon. I feel fit as a fiddle from my period of rest and recreation."

B. C. Fowler, city salesman of the Capital City Tobacco company, was among the top-liners in the July business.

"We have had a very satisfactory trade, indeed, throughout the two weeks of the Merchants' convention," said W. T. Spalding, of Gramling-Spalding company. "We found the latter week very much the better of the two."

Among the visitors and patrons of John Silvey & Co. las week were Mr. Kenny, of Kenny & Smith, Tempie, Ga., and Miss Brown, of the Brown Mercantile company, of Boston, Ga.

H. M. Cornelius, of Altoona, Ala., was among the merchants visiting here last week, who had never before made a trip to Atlanta. Mr. Cornelius was delighted with the city and the market here and bought a large bill of goods from R. R. Jackson, Silvey's Alabama salesman.

S. T. Elnig, of the Huguley Oil company, will spend Sunday at the Seminola hotel, at Jacksonville, Fla.

The following travelers of Gramling-Spalding company's force will be on the road next Monday, after having spent two weeks profitably at the house during Merchants assembly: F. H. Baker, south Georgia traveler; J. P. Womble, West Point and Central road traveler; and W. G. Baskin, who covers north Georgia.

C. Ivey, of the Huguley Oil company, was detained all last week at Augusta, where his wife underwent an operation. He will remain with Mrs. Ivey throughout this week, but hopes that she will be so far recovered that he will be with the trade again the week fololwing.

Among the travelers having an especially good business during the past week at the M. C. Kiser company's, were A. M. Diehl and E. C. Watson. They together with the rest of the Kiser force will be on the road next week with their spring samples.

G. A. Zellner, of the Huguley Oil company, will spend Sunday at the Plaza hotel at Macon, Ga.

"All our travelers will be out on the road next week with new spring samples," said C. J. Sullivan, of the M. C. Kiser company. "We sold a number of opening bills and our travelers were successful in meeting a number of their customers here and selling them satisfactory orders. Our house trade was unusually good."

PROMINENT SALESMAN KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Edgar Barrett Struck Last Sunday, Sitting in Cottage at Blue Ridge

EDGAR BARRETT

Edgar Barrett, a prominent traveling man and member of U. C. T. Council No. 18, was killed by lightning at Blue Ridge, Ga., last Sunday afternoon at 4:20 o'clock. Mr. Barrett, together with his wife, was spending his vacation at Blue Ridge and was killed while sitting in his cottage at that place.

He traveled out of Atlanta for Gillespie, Shields & Co., of Knoxville, Tenn., and was for many years traveler for the A. M. Robinson company of this city. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace Abernathy Barrett, his father, A. N. Barrett, of Clarkston, Ga.; two sisters, Miss Estelle Barrett and Mrs. M. A. Thebaut, and four brothers, C. D. Barrett, D. L. Barrett, J. W. Barrett and O. C. Barrett.

He was widely popular for his many estimable qualities and his death brings deep sorrow to a large circle of friends.

DEERE CO. INTRODUCES NEW GRAIN DRILL

Will Make Planting of Grain in Corn and Cotton Rows Easy

The John Deere Plow company has just put on the market a new farm implement. It is known as one-horse fertilizer grain drill.

This new implement is not only a most useful and satisfactory farm tool, but its introduction to the trade just now is most timely. By reason of it, grain can be planted between the rows of corn and cotton when the latter are being cultivated or laid by or even when being harvested, without any damage to the crops, and likewise can be properly fertilized.

With the price of wheat and all kinds of grain going up owing to the war situation, the farmers of the south will turn their attention more and more to these crops, especially in view of the fact that the marketing of cotton will for some time be uncertain. This situation will call for a large increase in the acreage of grain crops, and the new John Deere drill is destined to supply a present need.

In this way the transition from the raising of cotton to grain can be accomplished quickly and satisfactorily. It will mean fine oat crops and wheat crops in the spring.

H. E. Jessup of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., starts Monday on the road for two weeks.

J. F. Fingder of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., will take his second week's vacation beginning next Monday. He has already had one week of play time.

L. T. Stallings of Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., accompanied by his wife, is spending two weeks at Highlands, N. C.

W. P. Streater, Georgia road traveler for E. L. Adams company, will be back on the road Monday after being away on vacation during the past week.

G. W. Woods, of Gadsden, Ala., was among the merchants' assembly at M. C. Kiser company's store last week. It was Mr. Woods' first visit to Atlanta, and he was delighted with the city and with the entertainments tendered the visitors.

The Market Value of Sitting Steady

News columns, editorials, corner groceries and cabinet councils have been full of Market Talk the last couple of weeks. War and the financial situation have been the whole conversation.

Reams of advice have been printed---wise and otherwise.

Uncounted plugs have been chawed while hickory-shirted strategists worked out the whole matter to their own satisfaction.

While they whittled unlimited sticks, the sages of the cross-roads have been saving the country and doping out the things that ought to be done.

The men highest up have been devoting gray matter and experience and keen attention to the problems confronting Buyer and Seller.

Out of the maze of all that has been said and done emerge very clearly these Main Points:

Don't get panicky. Just be calm. Sit steady. 'Tend your business. Soon be sun-up.

Now, folks, you are reading an advertisement---not a bunch of theories or an esssay on economics.

But just here we want to call your attention to the Market Value of sitting steady and keeping close to home in the buying of your goods.

We of the United States have the best and most stable government on earth.

And glory be---it's a government that is attending to ALL sections of the country!

It is looking out for us down here in the South with our cotton and it's going to pull and scotch for us just as heartily and as steadily and as successfully as heart could wish.

All it asks, and all common sense suggests, is that we just keep cool and be getting ready for the bigger, better business that is BOUND TO COME!

But, mark you, sitting steady doesn't mean sitting listless and hopeless and limp.

It means a stiffened backbone and a firmly set jaw.

It means attention to business and redoubled zeal in meeting the present wants of your trade.

You may have to buy smaller. But it is a great time to try out the value of the CLOSE-TO-HOME market.

There's a brilliant opportunity opening up to the manufacturers of the South to develop their foreign trade and lots of eyes are turning to the South American business and its possibilities.

That's all right. It's coming. BUT---

What we want first of all is the trade of our own immediate neighbors---you Georgia merchants in every town in this state!

Every retailer in Atlanta ought to patronize Atlanta manufactured goods.

What we want is the orders of you folks who have been thinking that you had to go to the North and East for your supplies.

We have the stuff---the service---the spirit.

Can't we supply you?

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

THE unsettled condition on the continent is the topic of the hour and on every side persons are seeking news of friends and relatives marooned in Europe. The fact that an unsual number of Georgians, many of whom are Atlantians, are abroad this summer lends an additional value to each piece of news that can be obtained. In several of the parties are numbered many of the most popular members of Atlanta society and their possible whereabouts have been eagerly discussed at the informal gatherings of the week and at the clubs. Mr. Burton Smith is in receipt of intelligence that will be received with sincere thanksgiving by many an anxious heart. Within the past few days a list of Americans in Europe has been carefully tabulated and placed at the American embassy in Paris. In almost every case the correct addresses have been appended so that upon arriving at the French capital and consulting the record the traveler can at once locate friends. This will be of especial value to those unexpectedly detained and who are in need of financial assistance.

CORDIAL interest was manifested in the engagement of Miss Madge Bannigan and Mr. Philip L'Engle, which was announced in The Journal during the past week. The formal announcement of this popular young couple was made at the summer home of the parents of the young bride elect at Providence, during the visit of Mr. L'Engle to Rhode Island. Miss Bannigan is very well known in the city, having been a frequent visitor and delightfully entertained during her stay with Mrs. Rees Marshall. Mr. L'Engle is very popular in the club and social life of the city and has many friends who were keenly interested in the news of his engagement and approaching marriage.

MISS HELEN LEWIS, OF VALDOSTA.

One of three charming sisters who have been entertained at a series of little parties during their stay at the Georgian Terrace.

Mrs. Haden to Entertain Visitor

Mrs. Charles Haden will entertain at tea, followed by an informal dancing party Monday afternoon at the Piedmont club in compliment to Miss Sarah Belle Banby, of Montgomery, Ala., who is the guest of Miss Mary Murphey.

Equal Suffrage Bridge Party

The bridge party given by the members of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage league was a very pleasant event at Wednesday and assembled a large number on the wide verandas of the Druid Hills Golf club.

The prizes awarded at each table proved handsome souvenirs of the afternoon for the fortunate ones who made top score. Besides the individual prizes at each table there was a special trophy for the highest score and consolation, and the lady making the lowest score received a pretty gift by way of compensation. A number of parties were given and following the bridge a very pleasant half hour was enjoyed by the members and their friends. In response to a request Mrs. Whiteside made a very graceful little address and answered a number of questions. The rain did not dampen the enthusiasm of the large number who attended the auction bridge party.

Mrs. Wynne at Equal Suffrage Meeting

Mrs. Mamie Folsom Wynne will speak at the meeting of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association Wednesday afternoon at the Hotel Ansley. Her subject will be "The Militant Methods of Our English Sisters." Mrs. Wynne has spent much time in England and her lecture promises to be a very interesting one.

Mrs. Martin Gives Pretty Card Party

Mrs. Robert Grier Martin entertained twenty friends at cards Friday afternoon, in honor of her guest, Miss Nena Martin, of Greenwood, S. C.

The tables were arranged in the reception hall and parlor, which were decorated with quantities of garden flowers and handsome palms and ferns.

Miss Nell Wimbish was awarded the prize for top score, and Mrs. Luther Johnson cut the consolation prize. Miss Martin was presented with a pair of silk hose.

Mrs. Martin received wearing a pretty summer toilet of yellow embroidered crepe, and the honor guest was gowned in pink taffeta.

Timely Literary Notes Regarding Books and Their Authors

The departure of many famous war correspondents on the Lusitania for the scene of battle has been a theme of interest in literary circles. The readers of Will Levington Comfort's last few stirring novels are well acquainted with the perils by land and sea of the war correspondent and the almost unsurmountable difficulties which best the endeavor to get news through to his paper.

Famous Newspaper Men Off to War

Sailing out of New York for the war, risking capture by German vessels, two of the most famous novelists and newspaper men in the country—Irvin S. Cobb and Samuel Blythe, are now making for London, intending to get as far into the continent as possible. Neither will cover the actual news, but the two, who are close friends, will combine in a great series of articles on the human side of the war and the terrible wreckage of the aftermath. Probably no men living are better qualified to present the picture of what war today actually means. Though Mr. Cobb started as a humorist, he has also by "The Escape of Mr. Trimm," "The Belled Buzzard" and other well known short stories proven himself a great writer of fiction while Sam Blythe, whose "Who's Who and Why" department is the most popular feature in the Saturday Evening Post, is the author of two novels, "The Price of Place," and "The Fakirs," the latter to be published in the fall. Curiously enough Mr. Cobb has just recently returned from Europe, where he prepared a lively and amusing account of European travel to be published in a couple of months, under the title of "Europe Revised." He will probaby see Europe still more revised!

Baroness Orczy Finds Complications in War

One of the most puzzled of all the millions affected by the European war is Baroness Orczy, author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "Unto Caesar," etc. Though she is in private life Mrs. Montagu Barstow, the wife of an English gentleman, with a beautiful estate, she is by birth a sympathizer with Austria-Hungary. Her father was Baron Felix Orczy, one of the greatest noblemen of Hungary, and from her uncle, Baron Cherubin Orczy, the baroness inherited great holdings in Hungary. Consequently, if her own England wins then her own Hungarian estates are likely to be endangered. However, it may be possible that the interest in war and swift action shown in her novels will enable her to get through the crisis more easily than many victims of the strife. That interest is not lessened with passing years. Indeed, this coming fall, the baroness is to have out a new novel of swords and hot riding, "The Laughing Cavalier."

English Girl-Author May be Marooned.

The probable future movements of T. Tennyson Jesse, the pretty English girl who has made so pronounced a success as an author, are causing some anxiety to her friends, in view of the war. Miss Jesse left New York on July 30 for Haiti, intending to sail from there for London. As the author of "The Milky Way," a joyous tale of wayfaring and love, Miss Jesse, who is the great-niece of Lord Tennyson, would naturally be supposed to be typically feminine and not anxious for danger. But as a matter of fact she came to New York via the West Indies, cruising from island to island, and on the way suffered shipwreck and was threatened with barricade in an island invaded by smallpox. Not content with this, however, she is making another try at Haiti, which she was not able to get into earlier, because of a revolution on that island.

During her stay in New York Miss Jesse was given the opportunity to see several unusual sides of New York life, her explorations including two visits to the famous Tombs prison, where both Thaw and Becker were in durese at various times, and a little journey through Sing Sing, to say nothing of a night tour of the Bowery with a band of detectives.

Famous Anti-War American in Europe.

Among the thousands of Americans marooned in Europe by the war there are, by an irony of fate, two of the most distinguished opponents of war in this country. They are Andrew Carnegie and Charles Edward Russell, the famous newspaperman and Socialist, whose "These Shifting Scenes," recently published, gives an inside view of the drama of the newspaper game. Mr. Russell, who has been Socialist candidate for governor of New York, had sailed for Europe to attend the International Socialist Congress, as one of the most important American delegates, before the war news broke, and he is now somewhere in Europe.

GRAY HAIR

Darkened—Sure Pop—So Evenly No One Can Tell.

Simply apply, like a shampoo, Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer to hair and scalp. Apply night and morning. Soon the gray disappears and the hair becomes beautifully dark, so evenly and completely (even to edges where hair joins the scalp) that no one can tell you use anything. Q-Ban also makes the hair lustrous, soft, fluffy, thick and abundant and stops itching scalp and dandruff. Q-Ban is a clean liquid and will darken your gray hair and make you look young. 50c for a big 7-oz. bottle at Edmondson's Drug Stores, 11 N. Broad or 106 N. Pryor streets, Atlanta, Ga. Skirts and Suits Made to Your Measure.

New Fashions in Fall Blouses

NINETY-SEVEN new fall blouses in twenty-three different styles have just arrived. Exclusive models, every one—plain and striped chiffons over chiffon or net, solid color taffetas and crepe de chines, Roman stripe and plain taffetas and messalines. In general they are distinguished by

Roll Collars — Rows of Buttons
Contrasting Collars — Long Set-in Sleeves
Vestees — Clever Color Touches

—But of course you will want to see each blouse with its own beautiful detail. Prices range $5.95, $6.50 up to $15.

New Fall Dresses & Suits

—The dresses largely follow the Basque fashion as illustrated. Entirely of silks and satins or an accordion pleated skirt with wool serge coatee effect. $25 to $65.

—In suits, the latest arrivals show coat lengths clear to one's ankle, though other coat lengths are "good," particularly the Redingote, fancy Cutaways and Basque effects. Blue, black, brown and green are the favored colors. $19.75 to $85.00.

Clearing Summer Dresses

Forces down prices on every summer dress in stock. Upwards of four hundred in all—a third of them having arrived as late as July 19th. It is plain, then, that styles are as new as the materials are fresh and crisp. Pay one of four prices:

120 Dresses, at $2.95; values to $10
98 Dresses, at $5.95; values to $20
130 Dresses, at $7.95; values to $25
87 Dresses, at $13.50; values to $35

All Auto Coats Are Reduced

—Variously of linen, pongee and mohair. Plain and belted styles.

Were $3 to $23.50; Now $1.95 to $10

New $2.50 Blouses at $1.69

—Upwards of 200—all fresh and new from regular stock. In China Silks alone there are more than a dozen styles—all white, white with colored stripes; white embroidered in colors. More than a dozen styles also in white crepes, voiles and lingeries. Choice $1.69.

The Search for New Goods

—has taken ten of our buyers to New York, where they are planning their Fall campaigns. Already here and there the departments hint of Fall. As to

Imported Goods

—we are glad to say that the greater part of our direct imports are already in bond. These goods were bought to sell at a certain price and—in justice to our customers—this price

Will Not Be Raised

even though New York importers have advanced their prices from 10% to 35%. Local Custom House receipts for a long time have shown that M. Rich & Bros. Co. are the largest retail IMPORTERS in Atlanta—a fact worth noting when buying foreign goods under present WAR conditions.

All Girls' Colored Dresses Formerly $1, $1.25 & $1.50 79c

MOTHERS, here's an opportunity. You can choose any colored dress in stock for girls from 4 to 14 years old at 79c—former prices were $1, $1.25 and $1.50.

—About 300 dresses in all, in ginghams, chambrays, madras and percales. Broken sizes account for the clearaway price; but excepting 8 and 10, we have every size. In the same lot are fifteen fine white lawn dresses for girls 12 to 14, formerly $1.25 and $1.50. Choice 79c. (Juvenile, Second Floor.)

Imported Silk Cords

—Silks with slight or heavy cords will be in high favor for Fall suits and capes. One of the smartest is the

Faille Francaise at $3.50

—Possesses graceful draping qualities, withal the body is firm enough to tailor. Rich, lustrous surface. 42 inches. Black and leading colors.

Corded Bengalines $1.75 & $3

—Black and leading colors; the $1.75 is a domestic quality; we may not be able to get any more of the $3 number. 36 inches.

New Stripes & Plaids

—Many women are using them to freshen a summer suit or blouse; the Fall fashions favor plaids and stripes for entire blouses and trimmings. Black and white stripes from ¼-inch to 2 inches; plaids and Roman stripes that rival the rainbow in picturesque colorings. $1.50 to $2.50. 36 inches.

(Silks, Main Floor, Left Annex.)

La Banelle Corsets Are Fashioned With Exquisite Grace

—Yes, we know corsets are advertised elsewhere at cut prices—the La Banelle is not that kind of corset.

—Because these advance models are in the very NOW of FASHION—they will be just as STYLISH this fall.

—Made of fine imported materials; free and supple, establishing grace and poise, the La Banelle is essentially the ideal corset for summer.

—La Banelle corsets are hand finished—note the fine lace and embroidery work, the satin covered stays and other points.

La Banelle Corsets are $5 to $25.

Our Alteration Department

—gives skilled attention to everything pertaining to corsets—cleans, alters and repairs them to your satisfaction and charges very little for the service. If you have bought a corset elsewhere and it is unsatisfactory, we can doubtless alter it to suit.

$1.50 Stamped Linen Pillow Cases $1.19

—Real Irish linen pillow-tubing, this identical quality retails everywhere at 75c a yard. The $1.19 price is for the pair (2), hence the stamped pillow case costs less than the usual price for the linen tubing alone. Full regulation 42x36-inch size, stamped for scalloping, solid or eyelet embroidery.

79c Stamped Crepe Gowns 59c

—White, pink or blue crepe gowns with choice of round or square neck styles. 59c scarcely covers the price of the material.

(Main Floor, Center.)

50c Shirt Waist Sets at 25c

—Set of six buttons with link chain—a clever style now in vogue. Buttons are variously of pearl, turquoise or coral.

Wash Goods at Wilted Prices

The season wanes; shelves must be cleared; we slash the prices! Choose from thousands of yards at half price & less

12½c Lawns & Batistes 5c

—Every 12 1-2c and 15c colored lawn in stock included. About half a thousand yards in neat floral and stripe patterns.

25c Pique 15c

36-in. White Pique, with neat colored stripes—

25c Staples 19c

25c fine zephyr ginghams, neat plaids, stripes and checks. 32 inches.

25c neat shirting madras; colored stripes on white grounds, 32 inches.

25c black and white shepherd check suitings. 36 inches.

50c Crepes & Voiles 15c

—Beautiful flowered crepes—silk striped voiles—solid color crepes—every yard that formerly sold at 50c a yard is included. Hundreds upon hundreds of yards; choice 15c.

19c to 29c Crepes, Suitings, etc. 10c

Here are all the crepes and voiles that sold at 19c and 25c as well as 29c. Nippon suitings, 12 1-2c and 15c ginghams and many odds and ends.

White Goods in the Sale

Furniture Savings That Count

—Real savings, of course, depend upon first prices.

—A 10% discount here may mean more real savings to you than a 25% discount elsewhere.

—In as much as we have only two sales a year—in February and August—our first prices the rest of the year must be low enough to compete with the stores that hold sales from four to ten months in the year.

—It is from our first fair prices that these discounts of 10%, 20%, 30% and 40% have been taken. The result is such values as these:

Guaranteed Pure, Long Staple Cotton Felt
The Only Bonded Mattress Dealers Offer

The Gholstin Sanitary Felt Mattress

Is guaranteed to be the best mattress possible to produce at any price. It is made of purest long staple cotton woven into layers of indestructible, sanitized felt. Each layer is placed with exactness one upon the other so that perfect uniformity is secured. This felt is encased in the best ticking—plain stripe or fancy.

We agree to forfeit $100 to any purchaser who can find other than staple cotton felt in The Gholstin Sanitary Felt Mattress.

Ours is the oldest, largest and best equipped mattress factory in the south. We permit none but skilled employees to make The Gholstin, because it is built by hand and requires expert knowledge.

We do not renovate or make over mattresses. We have no way of knowing to what contagious disease an old mattress may have been exposed. We advise you to be sure that the factory which makes your mattress is sanitary. In addition to supplying our customers the best mattress possible to make we safeguard their health.

The Gholstin will never lump, pack down or become hard. Given an occasional sun bath it will last a generation.

Ask your dealer. He should be able to supply you. If not write us.

WEDDINGS

Collings-Little

A pretty home wedding was that of Miss Jessie Elizabeth Little, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Little, of Decatur, and Mr. James Kent Collings, of Virginia, which took place Wednesday evening, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was lovely in a gown of net and real lace combined with duchess satin over white silk. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies. The conventional wedding veil was discarded for a head dress of brilliants worn with an aigrette.

Miss Leo Little was here sister's maid of honor, and was gowned in pink crepe de chine. She carried bridesmaid roses tied with pink tulle.

Miss Ruth Harrison, the only brides maid wore white embroidered voile over pink silk. She carried bridesmaid roses tied with white tulle.

Mr. John Christian was best man, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank Quillian.

An informal reception followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Little was assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. H. T. Huff, Mrs. S. A. Wilson, Mrs. R. E. Collings, Mrs. C. T. Harrison, Mrs. J. Frank Kelley, and Mrs. G. F. Lange.

Mrs. Frank Stephenson, Miss Wilhemina Collings and Miss Ruth Hopkins, presided at the punch bowl.

The out-of-town guest were Mrs. C. T. Harrison, Miss Ruth Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Collings, of Macon, and Mr. Pierce Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. Collings left immediately for a trip through the east, and before returning will visit Mr. Collings's mother in Abbington, Va. Upon their return they will make their home in West End.

Hodges-Pounds

The wedding of Miss Jessie Pounds and Mr. Fred Hodges was solemnized on Sunday, August 9, at high noon at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. O. McArthur, in Americus. Mr. and Mrs. Hodges will be at home after September 1 at Jakin.

Smith-Burel

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Burel announce the marriage of their daughter, Clara Estelle, to Mr. Roy Smith, on August 11, at the home of Dr. L. O. Bricker on Euclid avenue, Dr. Bricker officiating.

Moreland-Ruden

The marriage of Miss Claudia Moreland and Mr. M. O. Ruden was solemnized Sunday evening at the bride's home in West End.

Only the immediate family were present.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruden are at home for the present at 53 York avenue, West End.

Robson-Parker

The wedding of Miss Emma Robson and Mr. Beach Parker of Atlanta, will take place at the home of the bride in Sandersville. Rev. A. D. Dooley will officiate. After their return from their wedding trip Mr. Parker and his bride will make their home on Candler street.

Hill-Cogburn

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Cogburn announce the marriage of their daughter, Etta, to Mr. Hugh Alexander Hill on Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, August 16, at the Baptist parsonage at Marietta.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill will be at home in Marietta after August 23.

LOVELY YOUNG MOTHER AND SON

MRS. FRANK RIDLEY AND HER LITTLE SON, FRANK RIDLEY, THIRD.

Mrs. Ridley, who is a lovely member of the young married contingent of LaGrange, is a frequent visitor to the city and is always delightfully entertained upon the occasion of visits to her sister, Mrs. Harvey Hill. Before her marriage Mrs. Ridley was the beautiful Miss Mable Hood, of Baltimore.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest didn't know what to believe. First came Peter Rabbit with the strangest kind of a story about being chased by a terrible creature without legs, head or tail. He said that it had come down the hill where Prickly Porky the Porcupine lives in the Green Forest. Jimmy Skunk, who, you know, is not afraid of anybody or anything, had been sent to call on Prickly Porky and ask him if he had seen any strange creature such as Peter Rabbit had told about. He had said that he hadn't seen any stranger in that part of the Green Forest, and Jimmy had straightway returned to the Green Meadows and told all his friends there that Peter Rabbit must have had something the matter with his eyes or else was crazy, for Prickly Porky hadn't been away from home and yet had seen nothing unusual.

At the same time Unc' Billy Possum was going about in the Green Forest telling everybody whom he met that he had called on Prickly Porky and that Prickly Porky had told him that Peter Rabbit undoubtedly had seen something strange. Of course Jimmy Skunk's story soon spread through the Green Forest and Unc' Billy Possum's story soon spread over the Green Meadows, and so nobody knew what to believe or think. If Jimmy Skunk was right, why, Peter Rabbit's queer story wasn't to be believed at all. If Unc' Billy was right, Peter's story wasn't as crazy as it sounded.

Of course all this aroused a great deal of talk and curiosity, and those who had the most courage began to make visits to the hill where Prickly Porky lives to see if they could see for themselves anything out of the usual. But they always found that part of the Green Forest just as usual, and always, if they saw Prickly Porky at all, he seemed to be fast asleep, and no one liked to wake him to ask questions. Little by little they began to think that Jimmy Skunk was right and that Peter Rabbit's terrible creature existed only in Peter's imagination. About this time Unc' Billy Possum told of having just such an experience as Peter had. It happened just as it did with Peter, very early in the morning, just as he was passing the foot of the hill where Prickly Porky lives.

"Ah was just passing along, minding mah own business, when Ah heard a noise up on the hill behind me," said Unc' Billy, "and when Ah looked up there was something coming straight down at me and Ah couldn't see any legs or head or tail."

"What did you do, Unc' Billy?" asked Bobby Coon.

"What did Ah do? Ah did just what yo'alls would have done—Ah ran!" replied Unc' Billy, looking around the little circle of forest and meadow people listening with round eyes and open mouths. "Yes, sah, Ah done run, and Ah didn't turn around until Ah was safe in mah holler tree."

"Pooh!" sneered Reddy Fox, who had been listening. "You're a coward. I wouldn't have run! I would have waited and found out what it was. You and Peter Rabbit would run away from your own shadows."

"Yo' don't dare go there yourself at daybreak tomorrow!" retorted Unc' Billy.

"I do, too!" declared Reddy, angrily, though he didn't have the least intention of going.

"All right. Ah'm going to be up in a tree where Ah can watch tomorrow morning and see if yo' are as brave as yo' talk," declared Unc' Billy.

Then Reddy knew that he would have to go or else be called a coward.

"I'll be there," he snarled angrily, as he slunk away.

INTERESTING WEDDINGS

Richardson-Williford

Mr. John Walter Richardson, of Fortson, and Miss Eudora Williford, of Parrott, were married Thursday afternoon, August 13, at "Lake Eula," the country home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Williford.

The parlor was effectively decorated with ferns and cut flowers.

The ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. L. W. Colson.

The bride was lovely in a dark blue taffeta traveling suit, the short coat opening over a blouse of lace. She wore a hat to match.

After a luncheon to the wedding guests, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson left for Warm Springs to be the guests of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Richardson.

Beckham-Pringle

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—A quiet home wedding was that of Miss Annie Pringle and Mr. James Robert Beckham, of Albany, which took place Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pringle.

The house was decorated throughout with quantities of beautiful flowers. In the room where the marriage ceremony was performed there was a profusion of pink and white roses.

Only the immediate relatives witnessed the marriage ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Osgood F. Cook. There were no attendants.

The bride wore a handsome traveling suit of blue cloth with small hat to match. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckham left shortly after the ceremony for a trip of several weeks to New York, Canada and other points of interest. Upon their return they will make their home in Albany.

Johnson-Dunson

LAGRANGE, Ga., Aug. 15.—Mr. Forrest Johnson and Miss Eleanor Dunson were quietly married by Rev. R. H. Blalock Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for Atlanta in an automobile, where they will remain several days.

Castleberry-Haire

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—A pretty home wedding of the week was that of Miss Hattie Haire and Mr. Willian Jackson Castleberry, which took place at five o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Haire.

The ceremony was performed in the front parlor, where a profusion of pink flowers were used for decorations against a background of green ferns.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Outler.

The bride wore a pretty gown of Copenhagen blue chiffon taffeta with hat to match and carried a bouquet of carnations and ferns.

A reception in honor of the bridal couple was given in the evening by Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Castleberry, to which a number of friends were invited.

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO THE WORLD OF WOMEN

The part to be taken by titled American women in Europe during the present unsettled conditions has been a subject of much speculation.

The London Daily Telegraph's Budapest correspondent, telegraphing under date of Friday, says the Countess Szechenyi, formerly Gladys Vanderbilt, of New York, has placed her palace at the disposal of the army and that 600 reservists are now quartered there.

The correspondent adds that the countess intends to organize a Red Cross corps and use the palace as a hospital.

Gold and Silver Articles in Suffrage Melting Pot.

So many gold and silver articles were received Saturday at the national-suffrage headquarters that Dr. Anna Howard Shaw thought she would have to hire a safe deposit vault. The articles were intended for the melting pot.

The idea originated when the campaign state committee, of which Mrs. Medill McCormick is chairman, appealed to all suffragists to give gold and silver articles to be turned into gold and silver coins for the work in the seven states—North and South Dakota, Montana, Nevada, Nebraska, Missouri and Ohio—where woman suffrage will be voted on the coming fall.

Suffragists over all the United States are responding. "Oh, I hadn't thought I could give old things," said one woman looking at the articles at headquarters, "I have lots of stuff at home like this that I could send."

The collection includes battered and bent rings, pins, eyeglass frames, the tops of silver mounted bags, the tops of nail polishers, coins that have been attached to bracelets, etc.

"Since the war in Europe has started," said one prominent woman suffragist, "it is lucky that we have this melting pot idea started, too, for women who will not be able to get any money from their husbands because of the fear of stringency in the family purse will be able to sacrifice their treasures, and we must have the $50,000, no matter how many European countries are at war."

American Women Meet Hardships on Continent

A dispatch from Paris says that belated travelers are still arriving at the French capital with stories of long delays and great hardships.

Mrs. Philip Lydig, of New York, who came from Vichy in an automobile with a doctor and two nurses, had to pay 6,000 francs for the trip. She was stopped time and again by soldiers who demanded to see her papers.

Everywhere she says she was treated with courtesy during the entire trip. This was specially so when it was explained that she was an American going to Paris. On one occasion a soldier even shared his bread with the party.

The Baroness von Andre, who also arrived ,says that she was insulted by Germans time and again and robbed. She reached the French frontier in a state of terror, according to her own story, and not knowing what to expect.

The experiences of the Baroness von Andre are not so bad, however, as those of Mrs. Ann Webster and Mrs. Norah Davis, two Americans, who were caught within the German borders with their three children when war was declared.

The party had railroad tickets and plenty of cash. Both the tickets and money were taken from them by soldiers, who used the most insulting language.

It was impossible to secure any sort of conveyance without money, and they were forced to walk twenty-five miles to the French border. They met with every sort of discourtesy on their way, Mr. Townsend says. German peasants refused them food and shelter, although they were palpably in need of both.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

PARIS.—Shoes are not what they used to be over here. Only on the tennis field does one see low shoes tied around the instep and ankle with ribbons. Naturally there are women who prefer this method to any other, especially when the shoe is almost heelless and is difficult to walk in unless it is kept on the foot in some fashion.

But the majority of women have adopted the pump with the wide strap across the instep and a fancy buckle at the side of this strap.

It is the same shape that is called the Castle pump in America. It is the successor of the high heeled slipper with many cross-straps which was tried out in America but never won success. Here in Paris they have always liked it, just as they have always disliked the English-American pump with its broad flat heel and bow of gros grain ribbon to finish the vamp.

The Americans over here are also wearing this high-heeled slipper with a strap across the instep, but it does not go especially well with the typical American foot which is long and thin. It is becoming to the woman who has no instep for the band of leather across the foot, breaking the length, and heightening the arch, is effective, and made more so by the addition of a smart buckle in silver or cut steel.

Still the Roman Boot.

Hellstern is still selling the ornamental Roman costume and professional dancers are not the only ones who wear it. It has been adopted by women who find difficulty in keeping on the strappy evening slipper and who prefer the high boot with its straps of ribbon across the front, to the flat slipper with the strap.

That ornamental high shoe, and the uppers of brocaded gold and silver cloth which began their career in America in June, are seldom seen here, although the corsuture is made of bullion cloth, and for professional dancers, the straps in front are caught with small jewels where they cross.

Black velvet slippers are not as much in fashion as they were last summer, but all light colored stockings are preferred to black ones. On the street, no matter what the color of the gown, and when the slipper is black, the stockings are white, stone color or pale tan.

Preferably pale grey stockings are more fashionable than any others. They are oftener worn than white ones by ultra smart women. The deep cream ones are used in connection with dark blue gowns, and with plaid gowns where the dominating tones are blue and green. Rarely does one see plain black stockings with slippers. They are considered exceedingly commonplace.

THE WEEK IN RETROSPECT

MONDAY afernoon there was a large attendance at the meeting of the Atlanta Writers' club at the Carnegie Library. The unusually interesting program prepared was one that gave pleasure to the assembled members.

Miss Innis Wood, of New York, who is well known as a writer of very charming short stories, was the especial guest of the afternoon. She gave an informal talk on writers and styles of writing, and her address was replete with clever anecdotes of many of the best known writers of the day.

The original play read by Mr. Milton McGovern was heard during the afternoon, and the strong plot followed with attention through its interesting development.

Mrs. Thomas Peters spoke on topics of the day.

Mr. William Parkhuret, president, presided.

At the next meeting of the club Miss Mamie Folsom Wynne, who has contributed largely to the leading periodicals, will be the guest of the club. She is the daughter of the late Montgomery M. Folsom, who is remembered for his beautiful southern verse.

MESDS. Bolling Jones, Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, Mrs. Hugh M. Willett and Mrs. J. Lindsay Johnson of Rome, were members of the committee appointed by Mrs. Z. I. Pitzpatrick, president of the state federation, to extend the sympathy of the club women of Georgia to President Wilson in his sad bereavement. These ladies, who are all prominent members of the executive board of the State Federation of Women's clubs, attended the funeral of the beloved wife of the president on Tuesday, in Rome. The delegation from the Georgia federation was extended special courtesy. Seats were reserved for the party and the request made that they would arrange the exquisite floral offerings which marked the last resting place of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson in Rome.

THE marriage of Miss Helen Achenbach and Dr. A. L. Fowler was an interesting announcement of the past week in The Journal.

The wedding was solemnized at Rossyn Ranch, near Rand, Okl., and was witnessed by a number of relatives and close friends.

Immediately after the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Fowler left for a trip of several weeks to Canada and will visit New York and Chicago before returning home.

Mrs. Fowler was a charming visitor of the early spring in Atlanta, when she was delightfully entertained upon the occasion of a visit to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moyer.

A most cordial welcome will await her, upon her return, from many friends made during her stay.

Dr. Fowler is one of the leading physicians in the city and is well known throughout the state as a prominent member of the medical fraternity. After spending several years in Europe, where he made a splendid record at the foreign universities, he has been engaged for some time in the practice of medicine in the city. He is also popular in the social and club life of Atlanta. Dr. and Mrs. Fowler will return home during the early part of September.

THE visit of Miss Alice May Freeman to Mrs. Percy Smedley Darlington in Westchester, Pa., is being marked by a round of entertainments given in honor of this charming southern girl.

The beautiful home of Mrs. Darlington has been the scene of many informal parties while luncheons and teas have been tendered the attractive hostess and her guest in Philadelphia.

The past week was spent at a house party given by Mr. Philip Sharples in honor of Miss Freeman at his summer home in the Thousand Islands. A number of young people from Philadelphia joined Mr. Sharples and his Westchester guests and the merry party made the trip to the Thousand Islands in the yacht belonging to the host. Mrs. Walter Taylor was also a member of the house party. Miss Freeman will remain in the north some time longer before returning home.

A BEVY of charming visitors among the younger set has made the week bright with informal parties planned in their honor. The group included Miss Jane Young of Lexington, Ky., the guest of Miss Anne Patterson; Miss Marie Whitehead, of Albany, the guest of Miss Julia McIntyre; Miss Mary Faith Yow, of Valdosta, the guest of Mrs. Henry L. Dedive; Miss Adelaide Wiseman, of Virginia, and Miss Ruth Shippen, of Ellijay; Miss Nell Cave, of Padueah, Ky., the guest of Miss Grace Bloodworth; Miss Katie May Arnold, of Athens, the guest of Mrs. Luther Rosser, Jr.; Miss Sarah Belle Barby, of Montgomery, the guest of Miss Mary Murphy, and Miss Blanche Divine, of Cartera, the guest of Miss Caroline Blount.

These attractive visitors and their hostesses have been belles at the various club dances of the week, and have been extensively entertained at small parties. The first of the series was the luncheon at which Miss Marion Duncan entertained Tuesday afternoon, at her home on the Pardo, in Ansley Park.

Miss Jane Young was the honor guest of this occasion, the other guests including Miss Patterson, Miss Divine, Miss Cave, Miss Blount, Miss Bloodworth and Miss Emma Lowry Freeman.

Pink and white dahlias were artistically arranged in a crystal vase to form the table centerpiece, and the guests places were indicated by hand-painted cards reproducing the color scheme of pink and white in the dainty flower design.

Wednesday evening, Miss Caroline Blount entertained a number of the college set at an informal dancing party in honor of Miss Blanche Divine, the event proving one of the happiest occasions of the week.

Thursday afternoon, Miss Jane Young was the attractive honor guest at the beautiful luncheon given by Miss Dorothy Arkwright at her home in Druid Hills.

Friday morning Miss Young shared honors with Miss Nell Cave at the bridge party entertained by Miss Ferol Humphries, at her home in the Ponce de Leon apartments.

The handsome prizes awarded at the conclusion of the game included a handkerchief box of French tapestry, and a tapestry pin tray and were won by Miss Ellen O'Keefe and Miss Alice Parks.

A color scheme of yellow predominated in the artistic decoration of the table at which luncheon was served following the card game. Brown-eyed Susans filled a gold basket and the lights in lamera were shaded with yellow silk. The bridge luncheon at which Mrs. W. F. Plane entertained at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue Friday morning, and the bridge party given by Miss Julie McIntyre Saturday morning, were pretty compliments to Miss Marie Whitehead, of Albany; Miss Adelaide Wiseman, of Virginia, and Miss Ruth Shippen, of Ellijay.

BEAUTIFUL ATLANTA GIRL MAROONED IN EUROPE

MISS ELIZABETH MORGAN.

A charming member of the young society set who is being greatly missed during her prolonged stay abroad. A cablegram received during the past few days states that Mr. and Mrs. Morgan and Miss Morgan, who have been traveling on the continent are now in London. Owing to the unsettled conditions they could give no date for their return and may remain in England for some time longer.

Mrs. Black Describes Funeral Of President's Wife

The following interesting and vivid description of the impressive ceremonies attendant upon the consigning of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to her last resting place in Georgia was written by Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, who was one of the committee appointed by the Georgia Federation to extend the sympathy of the club women of Georgia to the president.

When a wife and mother from any household is claimed by the reaper Death, many loving hearts are bowed in grief and tender words of sympathy are spoken, but when the wife of our president was brought back to her old home to be laid to rest it seemed that the whole state and indeed the entire nation desired to show how deeply they sympathized with the husband and the daughters.

The citizens of Rome were singularly successful in carrying out every wish expressed by the president for the conduct of the funeral. Although the streets were crowded with people, the utmost quiet and order prevailed; policemen assisted by active young boy scouts kept the crowds within bounds near the church where the services were conducted and in the cemetery the Lindale guards watched the length of the wire stretched over a wide space surrounding the Axson lot and prevented the spectators from crowding too closely near the grave.

No one was admitted to the Presbyterian church where the services were held without a ticket and the decorations of evergreen and a few cut flowers were of the utmost simplicity.

Exquisite Floral Offerings.

A large floral heart standing beside the bier was the gift of her old schoolmates. The vase of gladioli sent from Knoxville, Tenn., were grown from bulbs that had been given the Woman's club there by Mrs. Wilson, and a very handsome design was also sent from Knoxville.

At the cemetery there were designs bearing the cards of every foreign delegation in Washington, and it was said that there must have been $5,000 worth of flowers near the grave.

The pallbearers bore the body into the chancel through the side entrance of the church. A single wreath of lavender and white flowers lay on the plain gray coffin. A short service of prayer and reading of the scripture followed the singing of the hymn, "Art thou weary, art thou languid, art thou sore, distressed." And there were very few dry eyes in the church as the last words were sung.

The sun had shone brightly at noon, but when the mourners reached the grave a very heavy rain fell but there were hundreds who did not move from their places in the cemetery and their patience was rewarded for the shower was soon over. After the president left the grave, every one pressed forward to see the wonderful flowers, wreaths, and designs of great beauty.

Gift From Atlanta.

Very noticeable among them being Atlanta's gift, a very clever reproduction of the coat of arms in different colored blossoms. There was an enormous wreath of purple asters about two feet around and the congressional design of stars and bars was very handsome.

Temporary stands were constructed to support these numerous gifts of floral beauty.

As members of the Georgia Federation of Woman's clubs, the four women who represented Mrs. Fitzpatrick, the president of the club, namely, Mrs. Hugh M. Willet, Mrs. J. Lindsay, Johnson, Mrs. Bolling Jones, Mrs. Nellie P. Black, on this occasion, were given excellent seats at the church and were very near the president and the family where they sat while the grave was being filled.

It was an honor to have a part in paying a tribute of affection to the woman who represented the highest type of a true, devoted wife, a loving mother, and a club woman whose active work did much towards helping suffering humanity. Surely her life and her example are a clear illustration of the fact that it is possible for a woman to combine her home duties and her duties to humanity in such a manner that one should not interfere or conflict with the other.

The Song of the Thrush

Hush!
It is the thrush that sings,
With throbbing throat and wings.
Floating in lovely time
To these his notes that climb
Up past the topmost leaves
That daring spider weaves
Together with a thread
Silver and dew bespread.
Hush!
It is the thrush!

Hush!
He sings so sweet and clear
For God—not man—to hear
His message sways and swings,
Soft beating, like brown wings.
With lovely rise and fall.
And last, a tender call
To his brown mate below,
"Love, love," he sings, "and O,
The lark has stronger wing,
But God leans down to hear
His weaker birds that sing."
Hush!

—Pall Mall Gazette.

Happenings in Londontown

(By the Countess of Blankshire.)

LONDON, Aug. 15.—There is, I hear, a movement on foot which may result in a very suitable commemoration of the seventieth birthday of Queen Alexandra. It is suggested that the women of England should raise a statue to the queen-mother, and already there is talk of a strong provisional committee being formed. I believe, however, that her majesty is somewhat averse to a statue being erected during her lifetime, but it is hoped to persuade her to agree to the proposal, which is rapidly gaining support every day.

The Prince of Wales has accepted in advance the lord high stewardship of Plymouth, and will take up the wand of office next year, when he attains the age of twenty-one. For several generations the lord high steward of Plymouth has been the heir apparent, King George, having only vacated it on his succession to the throne, but the prince will be the first high steward of the new amalgamated Plymouth, provided the amalgamation of the Three Towns comes about safely.

If outward signs may be trusted, ex-King Manuel of Portugal, and his bride, who was Princess Augustine Victoria of Hohenzollern, are as congenial and happy as newly wedded pairs ought to be. Their friends speak of them as the most affectionate couple in London and observers have become impressed that they are deeply in love with each other. Their happiness is plainly unaffected. It shows in the jaunty carriage of Manuel and his beaming face and in the blushing vivacity of the bride. She is very attractive, with color that sparkles and shining eyes that betoken how roseate the world looks to her. Were she trained in the finest point of acting, the part in which she appears could not be so well carried off as it is in the natural expression of her bubbling and overflowing animation. Those who see the pair are more than pleased with their evident delight in their life together.

I heard a charming story of Queen Mary the other day. Her majesty, who felt tired after the demands of her long Scottish journey, requested one of her ladies-in-waiting to read the newspapers to her. The lady commenced with the foreign intelligence. "No, no," said Queen Mary, "read me the police reports; that is where I learn the pathos in the lives of my people."

Queen Mary takes the keenest interest in gardening, especially to that variety of horticulture that is only possible to the poor of large towns, the cultivation of plants in window boxes and pots. Early spring flowers are her majesty's great delight, and every autumn she plants a number of hyacinths, crocuses and other early-flowering bulbs in pots at her Sandringham home, and instructs her children to observe the different phases of their growth.

The rumors that have been so industriously circulated to the effect that the Prince of Wales will become engaged to the dark-haired Princess Yolande of Italy, may at once be dismissed as absurd. To commence with, the Princess Yolande is just thirteen, but what is of more interest is, she is a Roman Catholic, and the heir apparent to the British throne could not marry a princess who owed allegiance to Rome.

Now that the season officially ends with Cowes, it must be admitted that it has not been distinguished with brilliancy. The chief reason being, of course, the unsettled political situation. For this reason many great hostesses have done nothing in the way of entertaining, and no season can be brilliant or even a fair success when most of the important town houses remain closed. From another point of view, however, the season has been, and is, a huge success, and undoubtedly the Americans saved it from being a complete fiasco. Today there are more Americans here than at any other time during the last three months. They are a little late in starting this year, but when once started coming there is no stopping them; and while it is early for statistics, yet it seems certain that the present year will provide the high-water mark in the number of Americans who have come across.

Princess Mary recently found herself facing an unpleasant situation when two women cousins of Mrs. Mary Hubbard, a tenant in the royal estate at Sandringham, who bequeathed a quantity of valuable old silver to the king's daughter, threatened to contest the will unless the princess surrendered a certain portion of the bequest. Princess Mary has been a great friend of Mrs. Hubbard's and a frequent visitor at her house and the cousins, who are in business in Manchester, declared she had used undue influence in inducing her to leave them—her sole surviving relatives—nothing. The dispute has been settled by the queen, who paid each of the cousins $6,250.

The silver is valued at $62,500.

One hears the suggestion freely advanced that there be some tangible mark of royal appreciation for Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, for twenty-five years the devoted helpmate of the late statesman. It is hard to believe, however, in view of the late statesman's own aversion to titled honors, that his widow would care to accept any offer in this direction. It is known that some time ago she told her friends that she considered the description, "Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain," a sufficient honor. It may be, perhaps, that Mr. Austin Chamberlain will be offered and may accept the title which would have been his by hereditary had his father been so inclined.

Annual Reunion of Wolcott Family

The tenth annual reunion of the descendants of Henry Wolcott will be held September the first in Cleveland, Ohio. The last meeting was in Hartford, Conn., and was attended by over 600 representatives of branches of the Wolcott family, many of whom were from Georgia.

Distinguished names are enrolled on the family tree, prominent among them being General Oliver Wolcott, who lived in the time of the Revolution. He was Governor of Connecticut, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and indefatigable in his efforts for the cause. The published records of the society give the descent of more than 5,000 persons, covering ten generations.

At the gathering in Cleveland the meeting will be held in the Hotel Statler. The address of welcome will be made by Honorable Newton Baker, mayor of Cleveland, and the response by Honorable Harry K. Wolcott, of Norfolk, Va. Mr. Bruce Wolcott, of Baltimore, will act as toastmaster.

Persons desiring further information in regard to the meeting should address Judson Wolcott, Century building, Cleveland, Ohio, or Miss Mary Wolcott Green, secretary, 613 Prospect street, West New Brighton, N. Y.

ATLANTA GIRLS IN WAR MAD EUROPE

ABOVE and beyond the increased prices on Paris clothes and savory spices from the delicatessen shops, Atlanta has the deepest personal interest in Europe right now because some four score of her prettiest girls and best known citizens are marooned in foreign capitals, or are even now fleeing homeward from war and rumors of war, in speeding steamships.

Pleasure-seeking Atlantians sojourning abroad this summer found themselves caught in the war-net before they could even begin to get away, so sudden was the swoop of mighty conflict. As a consequence, there is hardly one country in Europe which does not shelter today some one from Atlanta.

From the wooded slopes of Norway and Sweden southward to sunny Italy, each foreign kingdom held its quota of Atlantians when the battle note sounded. So it is, when Atlanta folk do arrive on home shores once again, they will bring with them almost every possible viewpoint of the clash between the nations.

There are many Atlantians in England and Ireland and in Paris; there are some in Berlin and Dresden and Munich, in Venice and Rome, Switzerland, the Netherlands, cities of Norway, Belgium and Vienna. Apparently, Russia is the only nation concerned in the war in which some Atlantian is not marooned, and one would not be surprised should word come from St. Petersburg before long that an Atlanta man or woman has called for aid on the American ambassador.

But it's rather a sure thing that they'll all get home again safe and sound, even those in the middle mess of things, Berlin and Paris. And the chances are they will be home before long. Then indeed there will be a clacking of tongues, 'all about the war and what they fought each other for." While cables are

STRANGE INDIAN OF EASTERN BOLIVIA

INDIANS FROM THE EASTERN SLOPE OF THE ANDES

LA PAZ.—I am amazed at the discoveries now making in the backwoods of Bolivia. Living in the middle of the South American continent separated from the Pacific ocean by a trackless desert, which belongs to Chile, with a great wall of mountains and plateaus running through it from north to south, Bolivia, until now, has been practically a hermit land. It has no seaport and until within the past generation it had no railway connections with the rest of the world. Today the best part of it is unknown. I refer to that on the eastern slope of the Andes. The discoveries so far have been confined to the high plateau upheld between the two ranges of mountains. This plateau is on the roof of the world. It is a great plain as big as the state of Ohio, situated at a height of from two and a half to three miles above the sea. It is walled in by mountains and is so poorly watered that it produces only the scanty grass upon which the alpacas and llamas feed. It is bleak and barren and the winds that sweep over it are so cutting that I often wear a face mask to protect my complexion. This is knitted of alpaca wool. It covers the whole of my head baring only small holes for my eyes and mouth.

Nevertheless this plateau is one of the treasure vaults of the world containing vast deposits of silver and gold, copper and tin. West of this plateau is the desert, descending into the borax lakes and nitrate fields of Chile, and east of it is the main wall of the Andes, on the other side of which are vast plains that slope gently to the Amazon and Parana river systems.

Bolivia is a wonderful country. It has all told an area of more than 700,000 square miles. You could put New England and all of the middle states and all the southern states except Texas inside it, and there would still be room to spare. Nevertheless, it has only about as many people as Chicago, and its pure whites do not number more than the population of either Memphis, Tenn., or Birmingham, Ala. The country has altogether something like one million semi-civilized Indians and some hundreds of thousands of Cholos or half-breeds. These people all live on the high plateau of the Andes, a region that has all the cities and towns, and that practically includes the whole of Bolivia as the world knows it today.

East of the Andes is another Bolivia. This is the frontier or the backwoods of the country. It is inhabited only by a few thousand savages. Nevertheless it contains half of the area of the republic, and is said to be one of the richest lands of the world. Eastern Bolivia is one-tenth as large as the United States proper. It is equal to six states the size of Illinois, and is one-third larger than either Germany or France. The most of this vast territory is well fitted to be the home of a civilized people. The land consists of fertile plains that slope from the Andean wall toward the east, south and north, and gradually fall to a general level, where the highest points are only about 1,600 feet above the sea. The plain fades away at the north into the Amazon valley, and at the east and south into those of the Paraguay and Parana. The country is in fact a continuation of the great cattle fields of Argentina, Paraguay and Matto Grosso, and it may eventually be one of the great meat baskets of the United States. The land already swarms wild cattle, and great herds are now feeding along the banks of the Pilcomayo and on the borders of the Paraguayan Chaco. There are wild cattle also in northern Bolivia, next to Brazil, very near the tract of five million acres taken up by Mr. Murdo Mackenzie and the Brazil Land and Cattle company. That tract has the best of pasture, and it is already stocked with 150,000 beef cattle.

During my stay in La Paz I have met a number of explorers from eastern Bolivia. I have also gone over the maps with Dr. Manuel Vicente Bolivian, the head of the national bureau of statistics and the best posted man in the world on the geography and resources of this country. Dr. Bolivian tells me that the eastern part of the republic is by far the best part of it, and that it will some day support a vast population. He describes it as well watered by tributaries of the Amazon and Parana, and as having a rainfall well fitted for crops. He has given me a report just received from Dr. Guillermo Velasco concerning the country. Dr. Velasco has devoted many years to the study of this section, and in his report he discusses the extension of railways and the opening up of the mineral resources.

One of the great possibilities lies in the petroleum deposits. Eastern Bolivia has a strip of land running north and south for a distance of 200 miles where the oil oozes out of the ground and where it has been used by the Indians for generations for lighting and burning. A number of oil companies have already been formed for the exploitation of these deposits, and concessions have been granted to Americans and others to develop some of them. Among the foreigners who are interested in the region is the Farquhar syndicate, which has vast properties in Paraguay and Brazil and which has to do with the building of the Madeira-Marmore railroad, far up the Amazon valley. Experimental wells are now being put down, and the prospect of discovering flowing wells is said to be good. The chief difficulty will be the getting of the oil to the market. The distance across country to the Atlantic seaboard in a straight line is considerably more than 1,000 miles, and this will necessitate the pumping of the oil over the high plateau of Brazil. If a pipe line should be run from the lower end of the field down to Asuncion in Paraguay, and thence through the Parana valley to Buenos Aires, the distance would be almost twice as great, but the slope would be gradual and uninterrupted all the way to the sea. Such a pipe line would have the markets of the fast populating country of Argentina on the way, and the oil would command a ready market there for both fuel and lighting.

As to coal, so far none of value has been discovered in this part of the world. There is said to be some in the northern part of the Peruvian Andes and on the coast of southern Chile there are great beds that run far out under the Pacific ocean. The latter mines have been worked for generations, and they still supply a large part of the fuel of the west coast. There is no coal in Brazil sufficiently good to make steam or smelt iron, and so far Argentina, Uruguay and Paraguay have shown no fuel of value. Prof. Forbes, an eminent English geologist, who has done some work in eastern Bolivia, says that an enormous carboniferous deposit probably exists at the eastern foot of the Andes and that geologic conditions lead to that belief. No soundings or borings have yet been made, but one evidence is the petroleum springs thirty miles from Santa Cruz.

As to the gold of eastern Bolivia the Indians have for ages been washing it out from the headwaters of the Beni and the gravel of that stream shows color all the way down to the Amazon. It is believed that a great part of the treasures of the Incas came from the Beni; and the English and American miners are prospecting in that region today. Gold is being found in Matto Grosso just across the borders from eastern Bolivia. They are working placers in the provinces of Santa Cruz and also in Santa Rosa, where during the dry season they bore from thirty to forty-five feet down into the beds of the canals and wash the dirt. Many of the rivers of eastern Bolivia have never been prospected. They have a deep undercurrent and run over slate and granite so that the rough tools and clumsy methods so far used have not proved efficient, except where there are alluvial deposits thrown up by the streams. These deposits are usually about three or four feet wide, and of about the same depth. Some gold is being found in the River Quisere, which is about fifty miles long. The Quisere flows over a bed of quartz upon which is an alluvial deposit containing gold that could be worked by the use of dredges. There are also quartz deposits in the neighborhood of these rivers, and the placer miners report the finding of quartz, visibly incrusted with gold. There is one quartz vein in Santa Rosa, called the Clemente, whose every test shows gold.

The great difficulty, however, is in the getting in of machinery and the reduction of the ores. So far there are practically no means of transportation.

And this brings me to the question of communications. South America is at the beginning of a great railroad era. New lines are being built in nearly all of the republics of the southern half of the continent, and many roads have been projected to open up new territory. There are several already planned and surveyed that will materially affect eastern Bolivia. One is the extension of the Antofagasta railroad which runs from the Pacific ocean across the desert to the great tin mining town of Uyuni, and thence on to the plateau of the Andes, ending here at La Paz. This line has built a branch from Uyuni to the town of Tupiza, and it is now within a short distance of the Argentine railroad system. Only about 100 miles remain to be built, but when this is completed there will be a transcontinental route across Bolivia from the Pacific ocean to the Atlanta. This road will pass through the southern part of the country, and not very far away from the oil fields.

Another possibility of opening up eastern Bolivia lies in the railroads the Brazilians are building into Matto Grosso. They have surveyed lines to connect the Atlantic seacoast at the Bay of Sao Francisco with the cattle regions of Matto Grosso within a short distance of the Bolivian boundary.

The pastures of Matto Grosso will support millions of stock, and they are only about as far from Sao Paulo, the great city of southern Brazil as from New York to Cleveland. The Brazil Land and Cattle company has formed an alliance with one of the large packing companies of the United States and they are now erecting packing houses at Sao Paulo. The cattle of Matto Grosso will be sent there by railroad and will be killed, dressed and frozen preparatory to their export to the United States and Europe. The short extension of this projected road would reach the cattle fields of eastern Bolivia and bring them much nearer the seaboard than our cattle fields west of the Mississippi, from where we have shipped vast quantities of meat to Europe.

Another probability of the near future is that railroads will be built from the Argentine boundary through eastern Bolivia to Corumba, Brazil, with a railway center at Santa Cruz. The latter town lies in the heart of the petroleum territory, and it will eventually be a great railroad center.

A line has been surveyed from there to the Marmore river, which runs into the Madeira and on the Amazon, and in the far future this may be extended through the Amazon valley to Iquitos. Another road has been surveyed from the city of Cochabamba, high up in the mountains southeast of La Paz, to connect with the Santa Cruz extension where it joins the Marmore. All of these lines, with the exception of the southern connection with the Argentine system, are in the future. However, the Bolivian government has decided that the Andean regions and the eastern plains must be united and it is planning railroads to that end. The Argentine government is anxious to build its railroads into its undeveloped territories known as the Chaco, and Paraguay has been invited to extend the railway from Asuncion into eastern Bolivia with a terminal at Santa Cruz.

At the present time eastern Bolivia is practically inaccessible and it cannot be opened up to colonization until railroads are built. There is no way to get into the country excepting on foot or on mule back, and no way to get the crops out. When the railroad is completed to Corumba, the cattle can be driven there and shipped to the markets of eastern Brazil; but just now it is not possible to send them down to Buenos Aires on account of the heavy freight rates of the steamers on the Paraguay and Parana rivers.

So far all of the Bolivian railway building has been confined to the plateau and its connections with the Pacific coast. The most of the cities are still inaccessible except upon mules, and there are towns of twenty and thirty thousand and more that can be reached only by mules. Away from the railroads there are practically no hotels fit for a white man to live in. The country inns are more like stables than anything else, and in the out-of-the-way places it is almost impossible to buy food of the Indians or to obtain quarters in their huts for the night. The beds of the inns are platforms made of stone or sun-dried brick, and the bedding is often lousy and dirty. One should carry a camp bed, and he should be supplied with rugs, heavy boots and a rubber coat or poncho. He should also carry along some provisions.

During my stay here I have gone over the exhibit that Bolivia has prepared for the San Francisco exposition. A large part of this comes from eastern Bolivia. It includes, with other things, samples of fine timber found there. About one-fifth of that whole country is covered with trees. The area is as large as the state of Missouri and the timber is about the finest in South America. Some of it is so hard it will turn the edge of an ax, and a great deal of it takes a beautiful polish. The cabinet woods include ebony, walnut, mahogany, cedar and lignum-vitae. Some of the trees are of great girth and height, and the wood is so heavy that it will not float. It will require railroads or steamers to bring it to the markets. There are also many rubber trees—trees that bear the silk cotton and those producing vegetable wax. Samples of all these products will be sent to San Francisco.

Among the exhibits from the same region are cocoa and tobacco, and also Indian corn. Eastern Bolivia promises to be one of the great corn countries of the future. Corn grows well not only in the low valleys, but everywhere throughout the plains I have described. The samples of corn to be sent to San Francisco comprise twenty-five different varieties, some grains being not bigger than popcorn, while others are as large as the end of the thumb nail and a quarter of an inch thick. This latter kind grows on the plateau, where the elevation is not too great. The color is snow white, and the corn is so soft that it appears to be made of flour pressed into shape. Another variety is jet black, and others are red and pink. It is possible that some of these could be crossed with our American corn to advantage.

Eastern Bolivia may be one of the cotton lands of the future. The people have been experimenting with seed from America and Egypt, and they find that they can grow cotton all the way from eight or nine thousand feet above the sea downward. Indeed, some good cotton is being raised in the depressions of the high plateau of the Andes and on the slopes that lead down into the valleys. Some has been grown even at two miles above the sea. This is the case near Cuzco, Peru. When I called on the governor of that province and asked as to the agricultural development of the Andean region he told me that they were successfully experimenting with cotton and tea. He brought out some cotton bolls which he had produced on his own farm near Cuzco The staple was comparatively short, but the lint was beautifully white and silky. That cotton was planted in January, and it was ready for picking in August. The governor said that tea did very well, and that he believed the mountainsides lining the valley of Cuzco might some day be covered with tea gardens. So far, the bushes have been grown only in a small way. The seed has been imported from Japan and China. The plants are easily grown, and, as the labor used costs only about 15 cents a day, it is thought that the business can be made a profitable one.

One of the reasons for the tea experiments has been the hope that it might take the place of the coca shrub, which is now being grown at comparatively few profits, on account of the fall in the price of cocaine. There are vast tracts in Peru and Bolivia devoted to the growing of this plant, which in its habits is not unlike tea. It thrives in the temperate regions of the western plateaus. It is set out in plantations and the third year after sprouting it is ready to crop. The leaves are then stripped from the shrub and dried flat. They are then put up in bags and brought to the cities where they are peddled out to the natives.

Every farm hand has to have them and an allowance of coca is a part of the contract with all of the miners. The coca leaves are also shipped to Europe and the United States to be manufactured into the cocaine of commerce.

All of the Indians chew coca leaves and the demand for them is enormous.

Among the products of eastern Bolivia are rubber and quinine. Bolivia has been producing millions of pounds of rubber every year and there are rubber camps scattered all along the tributaries of the Amazon. Just now these camps are in a bad way on account of the competition the rubber of South America is having with that of Ceylon and Malaysia, which, although cultivated, can be produced at a far less cost than that of the wild trees of eastern Bolivia.

For a similar reason there is also a falling off in the product of the cinchona tree from which comes our quinine. Quinine is often called Peruvian bark. It first came from Peru, but later from the trees that grow wild in this country. For a long time Bolivia and Peru had a monopoly of the quinine production, and in order to hold it they forbade the sending of cinchona seeds away from the country. However, some were smeaked out and taken to Ceylon and other parts of India. Plantations were started there and within a few years the Indian quinine was competing with that of South America. Later still the seeds were carried to Java, and now Java is producing most of the quinine of the world. In the meantime the prices have steadily fallen. The bark which in 1882 brought something like $2 a pound in Bolivian money now sells for a bagatelle, and the cultivated plantations that were set out here are run at a loss.

Atlanta Girls in War Mad Europe

Other Atlantians abroad are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Morgan, Miss Elizabeth Morgan Miss Louise Parker, Dr. Joseph McLean, Miss Lochiah Alston, Mrs. Daisy Ryan, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Harbin, Mrs. Frank Weldon.

Lobsters, Lobsters, Loads of Lobsters

BANGOR, Maine.—An Oklahoman, after spending a few days at one of Maine's coast resorts, came to Bangor and expressed to a friend keen disappointment because he had not found lobsters there as plentiful as he had expected.

The Bangor man was surprised.

"Lobsters? Why, that's queer; the woods are full of them. Come down to my place at Hancock Point and I'll give you your fill of them," he said.

The westerner asked if there were many down there.

"Many? Why, they're so thick they're a nuisance. Have to sweep 'em off the paths in the morning—they even climb up the porch. Beastly nuisance when you don't care for them, you know."

The Oklahoman, dazed, promised to accompany the Bangorean to Hancock Point next day. In the meantime the Bangor man wired his wife to "buy all the lobsters within ten miles and scatter them about the lawn, paths and porches."

Next day, when the westerner and the joker arrived, the whole place was alive with green and squirming crustaceans. The Bangor man kicked something out of his path.

"What's that?" asked his guest.

"Oh, that's one of those confounded lobsters," was the calm reply. Further on more lobsters wriggled over the walk and the host complained that he should have to climb over a lot of lobsters to reach his own house. On the steps more lobsters. But when he got to the porch entrance he nearly fainted Two monster lobsters were clinging to the trellis. Grabbing one of them, the host remarked:

"They'll be in my bedroom next! Here—this one will make a good broil for you!"

It was broiled and the westerner ate it with a relish. Next day he ate three. When he got back to Bangor he solemnly said:

"I never would have believed it had I not gone down to Bangor and seen it with my own eyes"

THE PASSING OF A GEORGIA POET

WHEN Lucius Perry Hills died in Atlanta last Sunday, and, by his own request, was laid to rest at the National cemetery at Marietta, Ga., with three soldiers of the south and three of the north acting as pallbearers, Georgia lost a great poet.

He was not widely known. Few people had read his poems, fewer still knew the man himself. For although he had lived here for over thirty years, his was a modest heart and he cared more for the knit friendships of the old days, for nature and childhood and long walks under the stars and the blue sky, than he did for crowds and fame.

That was his Creed of Preference, the poem read at the funeral services in accordance with his wishes:

'I'd rather know one honest friend would come and drop a tear
Of heart-felt sorrow and regret upon my humble bier;
Than have a sculptured monument rise towering to the skies
Carved with a glowing epitaph of laudatory lies."

Friends and simple things, that was what he lived for. And yet through his long life-time of seventy years, his had been a varied, even an adventurous career. Little, perhaps, is known of it, for he did not talk much of himself, even to his closest friends, who loved him greatly.

Born in Buffalo, New York, June 16, 1844, he entered the Union army when hardly a boy and served through the long struggle. Soon afterward he came south to live as an employe of the railway mail service.

It was during the early nineties that Mr. Hills became best known as a poet and a lecturer. He had left his government work and spent much time traveling about the country, seeking material for his poems and delivering lectures of a humorous nature.

Letters From Famous Folk.

He published one book of poems, "Echoes," and received many pleasing letters in reference to it from all over the United States. Notable were those from James Whitcomb Riley, Oliver Wendell Holmes, from Sir Henry Ponsonby, written at the direction of Queen Victoria and from Madam Patti, the singer.

As his age increased, his interest in worldly things lessened. He was much out of doors, taking a walking trip from Ellijay, Ga., to Asheville, N. C., in the course of which he made friends with the rough mountaineers of the Appalachian highlands and wrote much in their inimitable dialect.

He had one unusual gift, that of memorizing his verse before ever setting pen to paper. "I myself am totally incapable of any such tour de force of memory," wrote Oliver Wendell Holmes to him. "And wonder at the power of reproducing so much of the past in memory. It is a wonderful gift, indeed, and a rare one I should think. Certainly an enviable one."

Last fall Lucius Perry Hills made a decision. "I've been a little rusty lately," he told his friends. "I've written hardly anything, and I think it's time I was getting back into harness. But I can't write unless I have something to write about. And I don't see any better way of getting a subject than by walking down to Florida, and maybe across the isthmus."

And so at seventy, the age when most men prefer nothing better than a pipe and a seat in the chimney corner, this Georgia poet began his long walk for inspiration.

That he believed it might be his last one, is evidenced by the fact that before leaving Atlanta he arranged all his affairs, instructions for his funeral, including a direction that his poem, "A Creed of Preference," be read at the services.

Went to Panama.

"I expect this walk to Florida to be one of my happiest holidays" he said at departure. "I expect to get pleasure and new verses from every mile of it. What if I am seventy? A man is only as old as he feels and I feel young. I will have no set course. It will just be a ramble. I may go down into Panama or the West Indies before I get home again."

And he did. About a month ago he returned. And he told friends how he had drifted far down the neck of Florida, walking a little ways some days and more the next or not at all perhaps, how he had sailed across to Cuba and there met a fellow Georgian.

The man was from Rome, Ga., and wanted to go home to attend to business. So he persuaded Lucius Perry Hills to take his place and go with his family to Panama and South America. Mr. Hills agreed and they visited Trinidad, Martinique, Panama, parts of South America.

They came home by boat to New York. A few days out from land, Mr. Hills contracted a slight cold. It became worse and for a time he was confined in a hospital in Hoboken, N. J.

He told Atlanta friends that he felt much better when he arrived in this city early in July. "I have had a wonderful time," he said "I have seen much and I have a great store of verses that I must set down."

But Lucius Perry Hills never lived to write the verses he had traveled a thousand miles to gather. On July 26 he fell seriously ill, went to a private sanitarium and last Sunday passed away.

And so Atlanta lost her poet, born of the north, but adopted of the country where he lived so long and achieved his best work. You can find his poems at the library, a little blue-bound book called "Echoes." And should you read them, you will feel much of the love of out-of-doors and the tender regard for people and simple things that animated their creator.

This was his motto, inscribed in the front of the little volume:

"Thoughts are but echoes of the heart's emotion,
Whose varying tides forever ebb and flow;
While calms and storms upon life's troubled ocean
Bring to each soul its happiness and woe."

Poet of Sentiment.

This was his sentiment, for he was poet of sentiment, as well as poet of Georgia mountaineers and little children. It is the first verse of "Maid of My Dreams;"

"O maid of my dreams! With your beauty so rare,
Your laughing brown eyes, and your soft flowing hair;
For me, I well know you have never a care,
Yet my soul goes seeking thee everywhere."

And this is his "Wish for You," his wish for all humanity:

"Sweet as the songs which the robins sing,
Pure as the flow of a chrystal spring,
Deep as the depths of a mother's love,
True as your faith in the God above;
With a harvest of smiles and famine of tears,
Through all the course of the coming years;
So sweet, so pure, so deep, so true,
Be the Joy Fate holds in store for you."

His Humor.

Some called him a humorist, and of humor he did have a kindly store. This is one of his poems in which his whimsical side was uppermost:

ONLY.

Only a Georgia mule,
Relieved of his wearisome load,
With never a thought of harm,
Feeding beside the road.

Only a little boy,
Playing a frolicsome trick,
Carefully coming behind,
Tickles the mule with a stick.

Only a shapeless mass,
Flying aloft through the air,
Where is the little boy?
Echo respondeth, "Where?"

Only a little grave,
With mourners weeping around;
Only a funeral show,
For the body was never found.
This, an extract from "The Mountaineer to the Stranger," will give you a good idea of his dialect poems:

"Hello, stranger! Who be you?
Officer of the revenue?
Reckon not, but if you be,
Here's a hint I'll give you free—
Turn about your hosses' tail,
Take the back track down the trail,
Pike for home a-fore your wife
Gits the insurance on your life."

His poems of childhood remind you of Eugene Field. Here is the first verse of "When I Dit Drowed." It should be read in full to be appredicted:

"I'm only des' a little boy,
Not more'n 'bout free years old;
An' sometimes when I'm naughty, zen
My mamma she 'll told:
But I dess I'll do ze bestest sings
Anybody ever knowed,
For I'm doin' to be ze doo-test man,
When I dit drowed."

The Poem Read at His Funeral

I DESIRE that the following verses from my creed of preference be read at my funeral by some member of the G. A. R." wrote Lucius Perry Hills last December, just before he began the 1,000-mile walking trip from which he came home to die:

A CREED OF PREFERENCE.

I'd rather meet with base deceit from every trusted friend,
Yet keep my childhood's faith in human nature to the end;
Than be a doubting pessimist, believing only this—
That every touch of Love's warm lips is but a Judas kiss.

I'd rather be a common thief, tried and condemned to dwell
Within the dreary confines of a lonely prison cell;
An outcast from the world's regret, from home and friends exiled,
Than rob youth of its Joy or steal the childhood from a child.

I'd rather tell a thousand lies to shield a heart from pain,
Or help some struggling soul its lofty purpose to attain;
Than, boasting of uncompromising honesty, forsooth,
Stab Hope with candid speech, or break a heart with brutal truth.

I'd rather deem the vilest bawd as pure as driven snow,
Or stain my soul with perjury by swearing it was so;
Than breathe unjust suspicion that would tinge a cheek with shame,
Or spread false scandal that might blight an honest woman's name.

"I'd rather know one honest friend would come and drop a tear
Of heart-felt sorrow and regret upon my humble bier;
Than have a sculptured monument rise towering to the skies
Carved with a glowing epitaph of laudatory lies.

'Id rather that my name should sink int ooblivion's pool,
Or be remembered but as that of a dull, scribbling fool!
Than climb Parnassus' dizzy height, to Fame's Immortal goal,
And leave one line that might debauch a human soul.

I'd rather reach the judgment seat, and face my Maker there,
As one who never sang His praise or came to Him in prayer;
Than as a canting hypocrite, with sanctimonious face,
Who never did one deed because he loved the human race.

I'd rather my unransomed soul forevermore should dwell
Tormented in the fiercest fires of an eternal hell;
Than hold a seat in Paradise with all my sins forgiven,
And know that any act of mine had barred one soul from Heaven.

Son of Georgia Supreme Court Justice Would Be Cartoonist

Possessed of a talent which will not let him rest, Marcus W. Beck, Jr., fifteen years old, son of Justice Marcus W. Beck, of the supreme court, works from four to six hours every day drawing cartoons.

The artistic impulse in young Beck is so strong and absorbs him so completely that his father will not permit him to take lessons in art yet, desiring that his son shall first finish his general education. Yet young Beck drew the cartoons shown above, said by Atlanta newspaper cartoonists to possess exceptional merit, and, in addition, is turning out other cartoons at the rate of four or five a day.

Beck is an engaging young man, tall for his age, slender, with brown eyes that light up with enthusiasm when he speaks of his work and his ambitions.

He wants to be a cartoonist. Nothing else will satisfy him.

"I like school," he said, "because it gives me lots of time to draw."

He then confessed he drew cartoons when lessons were easy enough to give him extra time in class room.

He never drew a stroke until in the sixth grade of the grammar school, four years ago. He saw a classmate drawing pictures. They were good drawings, in Beck's opinion, and he thought he would experiment a bit himself in putting on paper likenesses of things that he saw around him.

The thing he saw most was his teacher. That his early efforts were not crowned with the success of his later ones is shown by his statement that "the women teachers always got mad when they saw my pictures of them; the men teachers didn't mind, though."

Now Beck is in the second grade of the Boys' High school, and men teachers are all he comes in contact with. In addition to that he can now draw a pretty woman so very effectively that the most particular feminine instructor could not fail to be flattered at his efforts.

Practice, much of it, four to six hours a day, combined with boundless enthusiasm, is what has made a cartoonist out of this untaught young man. He is always aiming at improvement, and delights to take a hard subject and work over it until it is mastered by his pencil.

Provided Beck applies himself to his studies, his father plans to have him instructed by the best teacaers in this country.

"First of all, though," said Judge Beck, "I want him to acquire a large fund of classical knowledge and history, both of which are necessary to a really successful cartoonist. An apt quotation, illustrated in a cartoon so as to apply to a living issue, or a historical reference, applied to the present by the cartoonist's art, add vastly to the effectiveness and quality of the work."

CONCERNING HEALTH and BEAUTY

By MRS. HENRY SYMES

FROM OBESITY to SLENDERNESS

Assuring Pretty Arms

ONE authority says that a woman's weight should average one and eight-tenths to two and two-thirds pounds to each inch in height. If you wish to see how near you are to the ideal proportions, you have but to divide your height into inches and multiply them by the figures one and eight-tenths or two and two-thirds.

Any weight above two and one-half pounds to the inch in stature is, in my opinion, excessive. I say it is excessive, because anything over two and a half pounds to the inch of your height adds naught to your physical or mental health, and is often the beginning of dreaded obesity.

It will be noticed that after a woman is 40 years of are there is a tendency to accumulate fat about the hips and abdomen. The reason for the accumulation of fat at this particular place is that, on account of the corset, the muscles in this part of the body suffer from disuse. By proper exercise and a regulated diet this tendency to obesity can be overcome. The disuse of any of the muscles of the body is nearly always a cause for the accumulation of fat. Another cause is that of drinking beverages containing alcohol. The alcohol reaches the blood in two minutes and paralyzes the white corpuscles to such an extent that they cannot properly carry off the waste matter, and the body consequently becomes loaded with putrid matter, so that it (the body) becomes puffed and bloated. When a man or woman begins to age, abstinence from alcohol and systematic exercise will do much to remedy an increase of flesh due to this cause.

An excellent exercise for reducing the hips is to clasp the hands above the head and in this position swing from side to side from the waist up. The feet should be stationary and placed firmly together on the floor. You will feel a pulling at the hip muscles. Remember that in nearly all exercises the muscles must be tensed. There are some few in which the muscles are relaxed, and one should always make sure whether to relax or tense the muscles before beginning any exercise, if one would avoid injury to delicate feminine bodies. Swing the body back and forth in this hip-reducing position from five to ten times. One must never overdo any exercise, and if the times prescribed are too many, the exercise must be modified and reduced to suit the individual.

To reduce the hips and abdomen, what is known in the gymnasium as a "mat" exercise is sometimes used. Place an old quilt or some sort of a pad upon the floor, and then lie with body outstretched, head and feet touching the floor and feet close together. The hands are to be flat against the sides. After taking position as above, tense the muscles and raise both feet (holding them one against the other) over the head, without bending the knees. This exercise, too, is to be done from five to ten times, according to the strength of the individual.

Some women are afflicted with rolls of fat upon the shoulders and back. To eliminate this, try the exercise of clasping the hands behind the back, arms being tensed and straight, and swaying the arms and hands, thus positioned, from side to side, slowly and in rhythm. The body should be firmly balanced during this exercise, and for this purpose steady the body by planting the right foot slightly in advance of the left. Repeat the movement from five to ten times.

Even stout arms can be made slender by exercise if one will take the little bit of trouble required. This exercise must be done in a very loose-sleeved blouse or in a gym suit or a sleeveless garment. Take position (which means placing the feet together and standing erect), both arms at the side. Tense them and raise them slowly until they are bent at the elbow, much in the same position which a prize-fighter assumes when he asks you to feel his muscle. This exercise is also repeated from five to ten times, depending upon the physique of the person exercising.

For a thick waist (and some of us have overthick waists, although the fashion of slender waists is no longer in) there is the well-known bending exercise. Take position, raise Arms above head, then bring them down, bending over at the waist and hips, and finally touch your toes or the floor with the fingers. During this exercise the knees must remain unbent. This exercise is also to be repeated from five to ten times. Besides bending forward, place the hands on the hips and bend the body over sideways from the waist up. This exercise, including the two movements, reduces the waist and hips and is excellent as a relief for constipation.

While endeavoring to reduce one should drink much water, for the water will carry off the waste material composed of the broken-down tissues caused by the exercises. But the water should not be drunk while eating. It is well, too, to desist from eating potatoes in any form and white bread. There is a gluten bread, which can be had at the grocer's, which will take the place of white bread, if you feel that you must have a substitute. Avoid vegetables thickened with flour and viands of any kind that contain it. Sweets and alcoholic drinks must not be taken. Slenderness is possible for every woman, if she but has the perseverance and patience and is not too lazy to hustle and deny herself a little for the attainment of her desire.

Deep breathing, too, is essential, for it is thus that we draw oxygen into our bodies and burn away the fatty tissue, the fatty tissue being, you see, only carbon, and carbon cannot withstand oxygen. All of the exercises given must be done when you are unrested. Upon first rising or just after the bath is a good time.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Mrs. Chester Adams most cordially invites her friends to bring to her their Social Problems and Perplexities by letter at any time.

[If a personal reply is desired, a self-addressed stamped envelope should be inclosed.]

IN A HOTEL DINING ROOM

AT A LARGE hotel the dining room or restaurant is the most public place in which you will appear regularly, and I would like to speak to you about the correct conduct while there. So many of my friends write to me asking about the accepted forms while in a restaurant that I feel that I shall be doing an important thing today in telling about it.

In a restaurant or main dining room a woman keeps her hat on, even though she intends to return to her room after the meal. I refer to the hotel in a city. The summer hotel at seashore or mountain resort is slightly different. A guest may enter a dining room without her hat, although in large hotels you will see women appearing hatted for breakfast, luncheon and dinner. These are correct, and may be less comfortable, but I would not advise you to lift your eyebrows or smile at this. In so far as the hotel is a public place, a woman has a right to appear as if she has just stopped in for a meal; in so far as it is a temporary home, a woman has a right to be comfortable and act as if she were dining in her home. Either way is correct. The general practice of the guests will help you to decide.

The head waiter will meet you at the entrance and lead you to your table. This will be your regular table for your stay, but the waiter will see that you are escorted each time. If he be busy, it is well to wait at the entrance until he is able to meet you or until another assistant takes you in charge. Do not be embarrassed, though, and if there seems to be no one to lead you to the place, walk there in a dignified manner. Remember that you are a paying guest, and that no head waiter or table waiter has any right to make you feel uncomfortable. The well-bred woman is never embarrassed or disconcerted by those who are paid to render her service. Your manner will command respect, and a great deal depends on your attitude toward yourself. If you expect high-class treatment you will get it.

If you are with your husband or a gentleman friend, it is his duty to order the meal. If there be any indecision about what you wish, a first order can be given to the waiter, including the first part of a meal, namely the oysters, soup and fish. While he is absent filling your order, you can decide on the rest of the meal. The main dish, a meat, fowl or game, with two vegetables, should be chosen from the card, and a salad added to your order. The dessert and coffee are the last. These can be given when the meal is in progress.

It is a mark of either a very hungry guest or one who has been used to little at home to order all on the bill of fare. Eat as you would at your own home. Your digestion will be the better for it. If you are taking just one meal at a hotel, you can pay the waiter, after calling for the bill, or pay at the desk. The waiter should be tipped. It is customary in this country to give one-tenth of a moderate bill. That is a rate entirely too high when traveling abroad. In America it has become the custom and all are following it in first-class hotels. There may be a happy day when this will be changed.

The end of the meal should be followed by your exit from the dining room. The waiter has other duties, and a hotel table is not exactly like your home dining room. The lady precedes the gentleman on leaving the restaurant. At the door the gentleman will receive his hat, which has been taken from him on entering. Here, again, there is a call for a tip of 10 cents if it be a restaurant of a large hotel and if the stay be just for one meal. There is a protest in order about this and the concerted action of men is doing much toward minimizing this "hold-up." We shall see if the men have sufficient backbone to conquer the wardrobe trust.

Above all, there should be no conspicuous conduct in a dining room of a hotel. Do not talk or laugh in a loud tone; do not fight with the waiter; do not look around at other guests in an impertinent manner. Eat slowly, act with refinement, and remember that you are in a public place. The restaurant is indeed a great test of the true lady and gentleman.

Solutions to Social Problems

Artichokes and Asparagus

Dear Mrs. Adams:

Will you kindly tell me if it is proper to eat artichokes and asparagus with the fingers? ALICE.

The former are supposed to be eaten with the fingers, but the latter should be eaten with a fork.

The Bridegroom's Expenses

Dear Mrs. Adams:

Will you kindly tell me in a brief way what are the expenses of the groom? WILL.

The groom pays the fees for the marriage license, the clergyman and the sexton for opening the church. The groom provides the marriage ring, the bride's bouquet and the bouquets of the bridesmaids, and, if he desires, neckties and gloves for the best man and the ushers. It is also essential that he give these men souvenirs of the occasion. These are usually in the form of sleeve links, scarf pins or studs. The groom sends carriages to convey the ushers to and from the church, and he provides not only the conveyance in which he and his best man go to church, but also the one in which he and his bride drive away after the ceremony. The groom should pay the part of host to a best man who has come from a distant place in order to serve, and if both groom and best man come from a distance for the ceremony and travel together, the groom's privilege to pay the best man's traveling expenses and the expenses incurred at the hotel.

A Toast

Dear Mrs. Adams:

1. When a toast is given to a bride, does she rise and drink with the others?

2. Do the guests who attend the wedding receive announcement cards? GRACE.

1. No. After the toast is given she smilingly thanks the friends.

2. No.

The Bride's Gloves

Dear Mrs. Adams:

When a bride is married in a coat suit should she wear white gloves or gloves to match the color of her suit?

2. Is it permissible for her to wear a face veil when traveling? GRETCHEN.

1. White kid gloves should be worn.

2. Yes.

A Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Adams:

I received a wedding announcement, and in the lower left-hand corner is written "At home after August 1." Please advise me what I must do. Should I respond in any way? I do not care to call on the bride. May one call on the couple? AN IGNORAMUS.

It is not necessary to acknowledge announcement cards, but a great many persons leave cards or call on the bride's parents within two weeks after receiving the formal notice of the marriage. You should call on the bride upon or after the date of her "At Home." If you are employed during the day and have only the evenings to make calls, you will most likely encounter the bride and groom when you go to call on the former.

Card of Introduction

Dear Mrs. Adams:

Please tell me what to do when giving a person my name card to introduce her to some one else. IGNORANT.

Across the top of your card write, "Introducing Miss Helen R. Smith." Put your card into a small envelope, which is left unsealed, and addressed to the person to whom the introduction is to be made. It is advisable to write in the lower left-hand corner of the envelope, "Introducing Miss Helen R. Smith."

When Passing Frequently

Dear Mrs. Adams:

We live in a very small town and pass friends so often during the day and evening. Is it necessary to say "How do you do" every time? DOROTHY.

It is not necessary to exchange greetings every time. It is sufficient to smile or give a glance of recognition.

After an Introduction

Dear Mrs. Adams:

I have just started to mingle with men and women socially and I want to know what is a polite thing to say when women are introduced to me. EDWARD.

You may say, "How do you do, Miss Brown," or "I am very happy to meet you, Miss Brown."

A Chaperon's Dinner

Dear Mrs. Adams:

I am a bachelor and live in an apartment. I have been entertained quite frequently and now I wish to give an informal dinner to my friends. I have quite a number of unmarried women among my friends. Is it necessary to have a chaperon? J. J.

You should invite a married woman to act as chaperon. It is necessary that you invite her husband also. Do not send a written invitation to the woman whom you ask to act as chaperon, but call upon her in person and ask of her the favor. You should escort her to the table unless you have a woman present in whose special honor it is given. In this event, the guest of honor would enter the dining room with you and sit at your right, while the chaperon would sit at your left.

Forgets Names

Dear Mrs. Adams.

When one meets a person in the car and fails to remember her name what should one say? This experience has come to me several times and the persons always remember my name and are most cordial even though we meet seldom. T. L. P.

The proper thing to say would be, "Pardon me, but at this instant your name escapes me. Or, "Forgive me, but I cannot recall your name at this moment."

The Bride and Bridegroom, Etc.

Dear Mrs. Adams.

When the bride and groom and the rest of the bridal party leave the church, should the men take hold of the women's arms? ULYSSES.

No. Each man offers his arm to the woman with whom he is to walk from the church.

Announcement Cards

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Kindly give me some idea how cards announcing a marriage are worded. INQUISITIVE.

Following is the form that is frequently used:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Jones have the honor of announcing the marriage of their daughter
Florence
to
Mr. Henry L. Frank
on Thursday, July the twenty-third nineteen hundred and fourteen, at St. Agnes' Chapel

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in the regular order, but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

To Make the Bust Firm

Dear Mrs. Symes:

My bust is plenty large enough, but it is not firm. Will you please tell me what to do to make it so? HILDA.

I think the massage cream is just what you need, and am, therefore, having the recipe for same published:

Massage Cream for the Bust

Lanolin	5 ounces
Spermaceti	½ ounce
Mutton tallow (freshly tried)	4 ounces
Coconut oil	4 ounces
Oil of sweet almonds	4 ounces
Tincture of benzoin	1 dram
Oil of neroli	30 drops

Mix as you would any cream of the sort. Rub on gently at night.

Cream for Freckles

Dear Mrs. Symes:

I have a great many freckles on my face, but as my skin is inclined to be dry, I should like to use a cream to fade them rather than use a lotion. RUTH.

A cream would be more desirable in your case. Here is the recipe for one:

Freckle Cream

Petrolatum	1 ounce av.
Lanolin (anhydrous)	1 ounce av.
Hydrogen peroxide	1 fluid ounce
Acetic acid	1 fluid dram

The Kind of Ammonia

Dear Mrs. Symes:

1. What kind of ammonia does one use in connection with peroxide to remove the growth of superfluous hair? Will the application or the two remove the growth within a year's time? If not, how long will it take?

2. What exercise will harden the muscles and reduce the flesh from the hips and abdomen? HELEN E.

1. Toilet ammonia is used in connection with the peroxide. It is not possible to say how much time it will take to bring about results, but the more regular the application the quicker will be the effect.

2. To reduce the hips and abdomen and to harden the muscles practice the exercises for which the directions are here given.

To Reduce the Hips

1. Bring the knee up to the chest, remaining perfectly erect. Practice in alternate movements.

2. Place hands on hips, shoulders well back. Raise the leg, with knee flexed, and give a high, quick side kick, bringing the foot back again to the floor. Repeat ten times, first with the right foot, then with the left.

3. Take standing position, hands on hips, and rotate the hips, bending the knees and keeping the chest and shoulders immovable. Contract all the muscles used in this exercise and repeat.

Bending exercises also are good.

To Reduce the Abdomen

In standing position, clasp the hands over the abdomen. Contract the muscles of the abdomen and bend at the hips six times, keeping the muscles well contracted throughout the bending. Rest by taking three deep breaths between each exercise.

The Walnut Stain

Dear Mrs. Symes:

Will you please let me have the recipe for your walnut stain? GRACE.

This is the recipe you desire:

Walnut Stain for Hair

Four ounces of walnut skins, beaten to a pulp, to which is added pure alcohol, 16 ounces.

Let stand eight days and strain. Then apply to the hair with a small brush.

Enlarged Pores

Dear Mrs. Symes:

The pores about my nose seem to be very large. Will you tell me what to do about this? READER.

Use a lotion made of:

Boric acid	½ dram
Distilled witch hazel	4 ounces

Apply with a piece of old linen or a bit of absorbent cotton.

To Improve the Complexion

Dear Mrs. Symes:

Will you please tell me what I can do to improve my complexion? It is very dirty looking. ANNIE K.

To gain a clear complexion follow these rules: Take a daily bath; exercise for an hour in the open air every day; drink at least three pints of water daily; secure sufficient sleep; eat a great deal of green vegetables and fresh fruits and rub the face over, just before washing it, with two tablespoonfuls of flowers of sulphur mixed in half a pint of new milk. This mixture should stand a little while before it is used on the face.

To Develop the Bust, Shoulders and Neck

Dear Mrs. Symes:

I often perform at evening concerts, and as a consequence wear low gowns. I am very anxious that my neck, shoulders and bust shall be well developed. Tell me how to accomplish this end without using internal medicine. PIANIST.

Massage these parts once a day with cocoa butter, using a very gentle motion while rubbing. Deep breathing will do much to bring about the results you desire.

Dandruff

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please advise me what to do to remove dandruff? I have a great deal of it and believe it causes my hair to be unattractive. MARTHA.

Vaseline or castor oil rubbed into the scalp every other night will remove dandruff. If you object to using either of these, you can try the sulphur treatment.

To an ounce of sulphur add a quart of soft water, and during intervals of several days agitate the mixture repeatedly. After the sulphur has settled to the bottom of the receptacle use the clear liquid. Saturate the head with it every morning and in a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will have disappeared. The scalp will become soft and glossy, and there will be no return of the old trouble.

This remedy, however, will darken light hair.

To Keep the Hair Light

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Do you know of anything I can put into the water when washing my head to keep the hair light? PIANETTE.

Add strained lemon juice to the last water in which you rinse your hair. This will keep it light.

Pimples

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have pimples on my face. They are not always present, but appear now and then. CATHERINE.

Bathe the pimples with very warm water, and, after drying the skin, use the cream for which the recipe is here given.

Fosatti Cream for Pimples

Extract of witch hazel	2 ounces
Sweet almond oil	¼ dram
Sulphur precipitate	½ grains
Lanolin	½ grains
Oxide of zinc	2 grains

Brittle Nails

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have very brittle nails and should like to know what to do for them. I cannot wear my nails very long, but I do not care to wear them so short that they look stubby.

What is good to use to shine the nails? HELEN.

To make the nails less brittle soak them in warm olive oil for five or ten minutes every day. At night apply the cream to them and wear loose gloves to bed so that the cream will not grease the bedclothes.

A very satisfactory powder for polishing is made of:

Talcum powder	½ ounce
Pumice stone, pulverized	½ ounce

Mix thoroughly; add 15 grains of carmine and a few drops or oil of rose. If a perfume is desirable, sift through silk bolting cloth.

Sage Tea

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have heard that sage tea will darken the hair. Will you kindly tell me how to make it? I will use the dry sage. GRANDMA.

Sage tea may be used to darken the hair. Make a strong brew of dried leaves, strain the liquid carefully through muslin, and to each pint add two teaspoonfuls of alcohol. This should be rubbed on the hair every night before retiring.

To Darken a Switch

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What can I do to darken a brown switch? A READER.

Apply to your switch the brown hair stain for which I am giving the recipe:

Brown Hair Stain

Green walnut shells	2 ounces
Alum	½ ounce
Pure oil	4 ounces

Heat together in a water bath until the water has been completely evaporated. Then express, filter and perfume.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

PICKLING AND PRESERVING.

"SLEIGH riding would be the most delightful diversion in the world if we could only have it in June," remarked an old lady to me once. I often have been tempted to plagiarize her and declare that pickling and preserving would be especially pleasing occupations if they could only be accomplished in cold weather.

Since, however, circumstances oblige us to undertake this kind of work when the mercury is trying to reach the top of the tube, it behooves us to endeavor to do all we can to lessen the discomforts of the operation. The wise Marcus Aurelius asserts we can make everything we have to bear endurable by thinking that it is either our interest or our duty to do it, and the statement applies with peculiar force to putting up our winter supply of preserves and pickles.

More than one cause contributes to convert such work into a valuable economy. Granted without argument that you can procure from a woman's exchange or from a first class grocery as good products as you can prepare at home. I have no desire to contradict this. But how about the price of such delicacies? I say nothing of the charge of $1.50 for a jar of brandied peaches—they are a rare treat on many tables—but how about paying 50 cents for a jar of conserve such as you can make in your own kitchen for a money outlay of 10 to 11 cents? How do you feel when you give 50 cents for a pint of pickle which would not cost a third of that sum to make? You cannot get a good fruit jelly for less than 25 cents for a half pint glass. Have you ever reckoned how much, or how little, the price would be of that you put up at home?

In such computations I am taking it for granted that you have to buy your fruit and vegetables for preserving—or jamming or jellying—and pickling. Even so, you save money, but this is nothing compared to the economy you practice when you use the surplus products of your own garden and orchard for your winter supply of conserved dainties. The fruit and vegetables are there, to be had for the picking, and the work you devote to putting them up is well worth your while from the standpoint of wholesomeness as well as of money saving.

For there is no doubt that many of the store bought conserves are either adulterated or made from stale fruit which is on the verge of decay—or over it! I am not advancing this criticism against those articles put up by certain well known makers whose names are a guarantee of excellence, or sold at exchanges which vouch for the purity of their products. As I have said, the cost of these is greater than many of us can afford, and the cheap substitutes are likely to be composed of inferior materials or to contain chemical preservatives which are injurious to the health of the consumers.

I need not argue further to prove the goodness or cheapness of the home made conserves. Instead, let me give a few words of counsel as to the choice of time, methods, and materials for pickling and preserving.

First, as to the time. Try to select cool weather for it. While pickles will not harden as well in damp weather as in dry, and so must sometimes be made when the temperature is too high for comfort, they can be prepared when it is cool, and most pickles and preserves can be put up as well if it is wet and stormy as if fair and hot. Take advantage of a chilly spell, such as comes to us often during the summer, and do as much of your hot work then as you can.

Next, plan so that you will not be at the most torrid part of the task in the heat of the day. I have known more than one notable housekeeper who waited until the evening to do the stewing of her preserves that she might not have to grill over the fire until the sun had gone down. When you can manage it, cook your jams and pickles and the like in the freeest cooker. Then you can let this go on during the night and arise early to put the finishing touches before the day has lost its first freshness. Make your preparations, such as pealing, etc., in the coolest corner you can find on the veranda or under the trees, instead of attending to it in the hot kitchen.

Third, as to materials. Be sure that you have everything you will need at hand before you begin, both utensils and ingredients. Don't wait until the last moment to ascertain if the jars have fresh rubbers and that each has the top that belongs to it, or to see that all the sugar and spices and vinegar which will be needed are in the pantry. Get all the requisites together before you start, the jars on a tray or in a dishpan, the scales and measuring cups and spoons as well as the colanders or skimmers or jelly bags, or anything else that will be demanded. There are few things more worrying than to have to stop at a critical point to hunt up something you cannot proceed without. Guard against this in your cookery.

General directions apply to some of the processes of putting up, and these I will give, trusting to the judgment of the housekeeper to adapt them to circumstances and materials. For example, one recipe for jelly will serve for that made from most fruits; practically all jams are put up by the same method; preserves are nearly all made by one rule. Variations may be required in the way of additional sugar or spices, but these details are readily grasped. With pickles the case is slightly different, although even with the majority of these certain general principles are to be followed.

Fruit Jelly.

Put the fruit for this into a preserving kettle. One of iron, porcelain lined, is the best and an inverted plate should be laid in the bottom to prevent the fruit from sticking. Currants and other berries may be used unhulled; apples, crabapples, or quinces must be cored—not peeled—and cut into pieces. Quince jelly is usually made from the cores and peelings of quinces, using the choicer portions of the fruit for preserves.

The fruit must heat slowly. If it is very dry, as is sometimes the case with apples and crabapples, a very little water may be put with it to keep the fruit from scorching before the juice begins to flow. When it is cooked until broken, so that the juice flows freely, it may be taken from the fire. If a fireless cooker is used the fruit is allowed to cook for half an hour after it reaches the boil, then transferred to the cooker. As soon as it arrives at the extremely juicy stage, by either process of cookery, and is taken from the fire, it may be put into a jelly bag, a little at a time, and allowed to drip. If the fruit is still hard after cooking it is well to put it through a vegetable or fruit press and then let it drip afterwards in the jelly bag. It must not be squeezed or the jelly will be cloudy. When all the juice is strained it is measured, a pound of sugar allowed to each pint of it, the juice returned to the fire in a clean preserving kettle, brought quickly to the boil and kept at this for twenty minutes, then skimmed, the sugar turned into the juice, the boil once more accomplished, and after one minute's boiling the jelly is taken from the fire, put into glasses that have been rolled in boiling water and set aside to cool. It is wise to stand a spoon in each glass before pouring in the hot jelly. This saves breakage. When the jelly is cool the top may be masked with paraffin, the tops fitted on, and the glasses set away in a cool place.

Fruit Jams.

For jam made of strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, gooseberries, plums, or peaches three-quarters of a pound of sugar is allowed to each pound of fruit. The latter is crushed with a spoon, put over the fire in a preserving kettle, brought to a boil and cooked for half an hour, stirring often. The sugar is then added, the cooking continued twenty minutes more, and the jam turned boiling hot into jars. The superfluous juice should be dipped out and made into jelly or used as a foundation for fruit sirups, shrubs, or vinegars.

Preserved Fruits.

For preserving, peel and stone firm white peaches; peel without stemming or coring small, firm pears; prick plums without peeling them; peel, core, and quarter quinces. Whatever the fruit, weigh it after it is prepared and allow to each pound of it a pound of white sugar. Put a layer of sugar in the bottom of a preserving kettle, arrange a layer of fruit on this, and proceed with the sugar and fruit in alternate layers until all are used. Set the kettle at the side of the stove, heat slowly, and stew all gently until the peaches or other fruits are tender and clear. Half an hour's cooking after the boil is reached is usually enough and care should be taken not to cook too long, so that the fruit loses its shape or breaks. Take out the fruit with a skimmer and arrange on flat dishes so that the pieces do not crowd one another; boil the sirup hard for fifteen minutes, skimming often. When it is clear and thick put the fruit into wide mouthed jars, filling closely, pour in the boiling sirup and seal.

Cherkin Pickles.

Choose small vegetables, of uniform length. Lay them in a large earthenware crock with alternate layers of salt, making the top layer salt, pour in cold water to cover them, and place a weighted plate on top. Leave them in the brine for ten days, stirring up from the bottom every other day. At the end of the time, turn off the brine, pick off the gherkins, throwing out those which have become soft, and soak the others for two days in fresh water; changing this once. Steam or stew the pickles slowly for six hours, then throw into cold water. Boil together for five minutes four quarts of vinegar, one cupful of sugar, three dozen each of whole black peppers and cloves, eighteen allspice, and a dozen blades of mace. Drain the gherkins from the water, put them into jars, pour the scalding vinegar over them, and cover the jars. In two or three months they should be ready for use. String beans, etc., may be pickled in the same way.

French Pickles.

Peel and chop fine one peck of large cucumbers and eight onions, pour a cupful of salt on them and let stand overnight. Add two quarts of vinegar, boil twenty minutes, and drain through a colander. Heat together three pints of vinegar, one pint of water, two pounds of sugar, a quarter of a pound of white mustard seed, two tablespoonfuls each of celery seed and ground cinnamon, one tablespoonful of ground cloves, put in the pickle, boil all together, and put into jars.

Pickled Peaches.

Peel white cling peaches, but do not stone, weigh them, allow half a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit, put fruit and sugar in alternate layers in a preserving kettle, and bring to a boil slowly. Measure vinegar in the proportion of a pint of this to six pounds of the fruit. Mix a tablespoonful each of ground cloves, cinnamon, and mace, tied into three pretty pieces, tie up each in a bit of cheese cloth, and drop these into the vinegar. Pour this upon the boiling peaches, boil five minutes longer, take out the fruit and lay it on flat dishes. Boil the sirup until thick, place the peaches in wide mouthed glass jars, pour the boiling sirup in upon them, and seal the jars.

Pickled pears and plums may be put up by the same recipe. Prick the plums instead of peeling them.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"I HAVE been receiving a great deal of help from reading our Corner—from the "tried and true" recipes, also from the calls for help which make me doubly thankful for my happy home. I have accumulated some reading matter, two or three years of a woman's journal and other magazines which might be of help to D. L., who lives in a desolate place, also to Mrs. T. L., who is in the almshouse. If you still have their addresses on file I shall be very glad to be put in touch with them.

"Mrs. L. M. E."

Both the correspondents to whom Mrs. L. M. E. kindly offers reading matter have been so generously supplied through other Cornerites that I print her offer here for the benefit of those who long for such literature as she has. There are, no doubt, readers of this department who would be delighted to avail themselves of her consideration. I will be happy to give her address to any who wish it. She has sent a further communication, on the dishwashing question, which will find place elsewhere.

Omits Initials.

Two letters have come to me which I put together here for obvious reasons.

"Recently I noticed a request for the poem 'Zingerella.' I have the poem and will gladly send the same if you will oblige me with the address.

"Mrs. J. F. H."

Seeing a grateful offer in your Corner from one with a flower garden, I write to you about it. No one would appreciate more than I the gift of flowers, but I fear her generous offer will find her overburdened with requests. I do not wish to work a hardship on her should she be located beyond a reasonable distance.

"M. A. B."

The writer of neither of these letters gives the signature of the letter written by the correspondent with whom she wishes to be put in touch. I am happy to say that the Cornerite who sought a copy of "Zingerella" already has been supplied; if she had not been, this offer would have done her no good, since no clew was furnished by which to tell who wrote asking for the poem, and the friend who desires flowers from the one who offered them does not inform us what name she signed to her note. All I can do is to place the signature and address of M. A. B. on file in the hope that some other kind friend may supply her with the flowers or plants or seeds that she craves.

Wants Government Land.

"I write in the hope that I may get some help through your column. Thirteen years ago I was left a widow. I have worked very hard and my youngest child, a son, is now 14 years of age and is finishing in the grammar school. What I wish is to get out on some government land where I shall have a home in my old age. I will be 50 my next birthday. My son and I could work the land, I am sure. I have not the means to pay even the dollar an acre location fees, but I have thought that perhaps some of our friends know when there is some land to be taken up. My husband was a successful business man and at his death there was a little left for us. We got on well at first, but since then it has been a hard struggle. I would indeed be happy if I could get some land. We are not afraid of the work.

"A letter of this type appeals to me very strongly. There is no note of complaint in it, only an earnest desire to get the opportunity to do hard work in the hope of securing a home for advanced years. The courage of a woman of 50 who is willing to undertake the labor of farming a piece of government land with only the help she can receive from a boy of 14 certainly deserves to be rewarded. I know nothing personally of how she should set about getting possession of such a tract of land as she desires, but I am positive that there are those among our Cornerites who can give her the information she needs and perhaps advise her what steps to take to settle herself on a farm where she can work with her son. I shall put her name on file and hope very earnestly to receive prompt and practical replies to her inquiries.

Would Donate Music.

"I have lots of sheet music which I would like to bestow upon any one who would care to have it. Mrs. M. K."

This is a kindly offer which is sure to meet with quick response. I am grateful for the friendly thought which prompts the gift and I anticipate many applications for the address of Mrs. M. K.

Seeks Lost Brother.

"You have been so good helping others to find people that I am wondering if you can aid us in finding my brother. We lost track of him about six years ago and have been very anxious to find him. We have tried every way we knew, but all in vain. He is about 21 years old, with light hair and blue eyes, and when I last heard about him was working for the Delaware and Hudson railroad in Cohoes, N. Y. His initials are J. C. Mrs. M. S."

I do not know that we can be of any service to you, since we do not feel at liberty to give more than your brother's initials on this page. Still even that may help discover him, and your address has been put on file in order that you may be notified promptly if any word comes to the Corner.

An Old Song.

"As I read in the Corner of a woman who wants a hand sewing machine, I thought that perhaps I could help her. I haven't a machine to give, but if you will send her address I will try to go to see her and will offer to take home some of the stockings she wishes mended. She could send one of the children to me with the sewing, as I can't leave the house much. I have an invalid mother, two children, one 3 years old and the other 6 months; a father, and a husband to work for, but I have a little time in which I could run up a lot of stockings, and would count it a privilege to do it in His name. I wonder if some of the members would like patterns that are printed in the Sunday papers. I have been saving them for years, and, if I could, I would not be able to use them all. I have over a hundred, I am sure. Perhaps some of those who earn their living by embroidering would care for the patterns, and they can have them if they will send for them; or I would send them if they would tell me which they would like. I wouldn't care to send them all to one person, as there is quite a large bundle of them. I have also written descriptions of some crochet and other patterns I would be glad to give. Now, may I venture to ask if there is some one who has the words of a song I wish? It would have to be one of the older members, for the song was sung forty or forty-five years ago. It contains this line:

"'The cold, chilly winds of December
Stole the flowers, my companions, from me.'

"My father used to sing the song. I don't know if the lines I give are part of a verse or the chorus; and, as I don't know the name of the composer, I could not possibly find the song at a music store. My father has expressed a wish that I should find it and sing it, so I thought that perhaps through the Corner I might get hold of a copy. I would gladly copy it and return the original to the owner.

Mrs. J. G. M."

I am happy to say that the correspondent who wished the hand sewing machine has been supplied with one, but I appreciate none the less the generous, Christian spirit which leads a busy wife and mother to offer to lift the burden of another tired woman. The offer of the patterns is sure to be enthusiastically welcomed, and I hope most earnestly that among our Cornerites there may be found some one familiar with the words of the song Mrs. J. G. M. wishes to get for the sake of giving pleasure to her old father. I hold her address on file, and shall be happy to send it to any one who desires the patterns she has to give or to send the words of the song, which is all she asks for herself.

Helps the Needy.

"I am anxious to get several addresses of correspondents whom I wish to help over a few hard places, and I wish to tell you that I have found some very dear friends through the Corner.

"Mrs. H. L. H."

The addresses you ask have been sent by post, and I am happy to learn of the friendships formed by our Helping Hand.

The Vegetable Pear.

"Among the many excellent things given in this department, there has been, in my opinion, nothing of such great value as the chayote, or vegetable pear. The careful description of the vine and fruit, as well as the concise directions for preparing the food, should make it a household blessing, not only where careful economy must be practiced but also where healthful changes of food must be considered and financial matters are easier. By the wearied and worried housewife who must arrange three meals a day for a family everything useful should be noted and kept in some form easy of access; scrap books answer the purpose. I inclose some recipes well tested by experienced housekeepers.

"STEAMED BROWN BREAD—Two cups graham flour, two cups Indian meal, one cup sweet milk, two cups sour milk, one cup molasses or brown sugar, one teaspoonful soda, salt to suit taste. Steam two hours, then dry a few minutes in a hot oven. If directions are followed, this cannot be excelled.

"GERMAN GINGERBREAD [copied from an Ohio recipe book 140 years old]—To half a gallon of molasses add three-fourths of a pound of butter, two ounces of soda, two ounces ginger, half a pint of buttermilk. Dissolve the soda in the milk, rub the butter in the flour, then add the molasses and other ingredients and flour enough to roll easily. Use best of New Orleans molasses.

"AN EXCELLENT LEMON PIE—Two eggs, eight heaping tablespoons sugar, one small cup of milk, one teaspoonful corn starch. Mix the corn starch with milk. Heat remaining milk to boiling point, and when that boiling stir in corn starch, already prepared, and let boil one minute. Let this cool and add yolks of two eggs, well beaten; four heaping tablespoonfuls of sugar, and the grated rind and juice of a lemon, all well beaten together. Line a pie plate with paste, fill, and bake slowly one half hour. Beat the whites of eggs to a stiff froth and gradually beat in the remainder of the sugar, and with this cover the pie and brown slowly.

Thank you very much for the recipes, as well as for the words of commendation on the letter of Mrs. P. C. T. I wish that all our Cornerites would follow your counsel and preserve such valuable recipes and suggestions which might be of service to them in their housekeeping. Many of the recipes sent to the Corner by members of our constituency deserve to learn of the valuable, and should be treasured in a permanent form which is easily consulted.

Asks for Old School Books.

"I am still watching and waiting for a reply to my application for old school books. I wish to know if any one can supply me with copies of such old books. These, to a shut-in, would bring many pleasant memories of long ago. P. C."

Your request appeared some time ago, but as no response has come to it I reprint it in the hope this time there may be more favorable results. I am sure any one possessing copies of old school books would be happy to send them to the shut-in who wishes them.

SERIES OF FAMOUS SHORT STORIES

Sweet Alyssum

By Charles Major

SPEAKING of sweet alyssum, did you ever hear the story of Sweet Alyssum, the Oil Queen of Roger Township? No? Well, it has all sorts of human nature in it, so I'll tell you about her.

I suppose there never was on earth, nor any place else, anything or any person as beautiful as Sweet Alyssum Brooks. Her name was Elizabeth, but her father, out of a heart full of love, coined the diminutive "Lissem," and later another man, also out of a heart full of love, I believe, changed it to Sweet Alyssum' in compliment to the fragrant little flower of that name. And so it has remained, officially, to this day.

And aside from being beautiful, Lissem was also a mascot.

Three or four years after the war, Roanoke Brooks, a splendid type of primitive manhood came up from Kentucky and rented a small farm in Roger township, an "outlying" district some ten or twelve miles north of here. Roanoke, himself, is authority for the statement that he was born unlucky, and that his ill fortune had continued to grow in virulence until Sweet Alyssum was born. At any rate after he had settled in Roger township, everything went against him. He and his wife were sick most of the time and his crops were poor all of the time.

Usually when Roanoke visited my office it was with a sad face, but one day he came in radiant.

"My bad luck's all gone, jedge," said he. "We've got a mascot at ouh house. Come last night. The cutest, sweetest little ge'l baby yo' ever see. Huh real name is Elizabeth, but I'm goin' to call huh Lissem. No mo' fights, no mo' fines fo' me. She brought us good luck, she's yo' bo'n."

And so she did bring good luck, not only to Roanoke, but to the entire "outlying" township.

I first saw Lissem—and fell in love with her—when she was two years old, and I've been falling in love with her ever since. From mammyhood to womanhood she hardly changed, save in stature, and that her hair took a glossier black and the glow of her great brown eyes became gentler and softer, if that were possible, while the part of Himself which God had given her—the life of her, so to speak—grew in radiance until, as womanhood approached, she fairly shone with a vital luster.

During Lissems unlucky thirteenth year her mother died, leaving her the sole possessor of her father's love, and him the object of her motherly solicitude and care. Near the end of the same unlucky thirteenth year, a handsome stranger of perhaps thirty-odd, to the town of Blue River. No one knew anything about him, but the fact that he was cultured, educated, and city bred was evident even to our rustics. He had little to say to any one save the county school superintendent, to whom he gave his name as Wyatt—though it was not. At the end of a week he left town and was forgotten.

A woman's history is usually made by a man. Probably Lissem would have had no history had not the fates and the county superintendent directed Wyatt's steps to her door. He "took" the school she attended and in due course of time—very short course, probably—fell in love with her, as any man who was not a mummy was bound to do whether he would or no.

One Saturday morning in November, after taking formal possession of the schoolhouse in which his work was to begin the following Monday, Wyatt set out to find a boarding place. He went to a house near by, which, as a part of Lissem's fate, happened to be her home. Roanoke, to whom the law of hospitality was an eleventh commandment, welcomed the handsome new teacher and "toted" his luggage to the spare room.

At the time of Wyatt's arrival, Lissem was away from home and did not return till after supper, when she found her father and the stranger sitting before the fire. As she entered the room she glanced inquisitively toward Wyatt, but as her father did not introduce her, she took her accustomed rocking chair at the corner of the fireplace where she sat, hidden by the shadow, or illumined by the glow, as the fire shifted its flame.

The hide-and-seek game she played in the lights and shadows was so tantalizing to Wyatt that he caught himself watching her too intently when the light was on. He tried to check this tendency, knowing that it was bad form to stare at a young girl, even in a log house, but he was unable entirely to resist the call of her beauty, and in truth was almost unconscious of his transgression.

Roanoke was as jealous of men, where Lissem was concerned, as any lover could have been. So, when he noticed the stranger's glances, jealousy rose up to do battle with Kentucky hospitality, and he resolved, first, that the new teacher should not remain a permanent guest in his house, and, second, that Lissem's education was complete.

After the battle in Roanoke's heart had waged for half an hour, he said, in a low voice:

"Lessem, I reckon yo' bettah go to bed. It's late fo' child'en to be up."

"All right, daddy," answered the girl, wholly unconscious of the attention and jealousy she had aroused, and with a "good night" which was intended to include the stranger, she went upstairs.

As Lissem was leaving the room, Wyatt rose, by force of habit in such cases, and by force of an irresistible attraction, involuntarily watched her till the door was closed. Roanoke in turn watched Wyatt.

"Thought yo' was goin' to follo' huh."

"A gentleman usually rises when a lady leaves the room," answered Wyatt, instantly recognizing his host's jealousy.

"Lissem ain't no lady. She's a child," answered Roanoke in low tones. "Yo' must 'a' thought huh pow'ful pretty, yo' watched huh so clos'."

"I did not know I was watching her," answered Wyatt, partly in truth. "And if I do so, offensively I beg your pardon."

"That's all right," mumbled Roanoke sullenly. But after a little respite, hospitality, though still somewhat groggy, got on its feet again and made its devotee ashamed of himself.

Roanoke had chosen Roger township as his home because it contained a small settlement and a smaller church edifice devoted to the doctrines of the Southern Methodist Episcopal church.

Earlier in the day Wyatt had noticed on the mantel shelf a book of discipline of the Southern Methodist Episcopal church, and he knew at once that he had discovered the straight path to Roanoke's confidence and affection.

The next morning, after breakfast, Roanoke said to Wyatt:

"We-all go to ch'ch nigh all day on the Sabbath. Reckon yo'-all won't get too lonesome loafin' 'round heah by yo'se'f?"

"May I not go with you?" asked Wyatt.

"Yes," answered Roanoke hesitatingly, though pleased. "But I reckon yo' won't ca'e much fo' ouh ch'ch. Fine folks seldom does. What mought yo' ch'ch be, now?"

"I was brought up a Southern Methodist, but I'll like your church, whichever it is," answered Wyatt gulefully, though with the single, kindly hearted purpose of pleasing.

"A Southe'n—" began Roanoke, greatly moved. "Gawd fo'give me and bles you! We-all are Southe'n Methodits, and I thought of cou'se you was an outlander."

Wyatt almost repented his gile.

"Yo' was askin' yeste'day about boa'd and lodgin'. Yo' have it right heah, my deah suh, in my po' house, if yo'll fo'get ouh homely ways fo' the sake of ouh good will."

As already stated, Wyatt fell in love with Lissem, though for a long time he kept an honest grip on himself, knowing that her youth and lowly station, as well as certain matters in his own life, precluded courtship and brought all amorous overtures on his part well within the category of things almost, if not quite, criminal.

Lissem, being a child in heart, at first viewed Wyatt as she viewed all other men, though she found him exceedingly attractive, and gradually discovered that his attractions grew apace with time.

Lissem was an apt pupil and the good effect of Wyatt's teaching was quickly manifest, especially in her English, though under certain conditions she was still inclined to show traces of her father's idiom in her speech.

Well, two years after Wyatt's advent, Lissem took up the study of Latin, and, being the only pupil in that branch, often remained "after school" to recite. One day, while she and Wyatt were going over the lesson —they had but one book and sat together during the recital—Wyatt, quite by accident and wholly without purpose, allowed his arm to fall about her waist. Instantly Lissem grew pale and began to tremble. His touch had awakened her womanhood and had opened her eyes in one luminous instant to the true meaning of his ever-increasing attractiveness.

"What is the trouble, my child?" asked Wyatt, observing her pallor. "Are you sick?"

"Yes," answered Lissem. "I want to go home."

After a week of neglected Latin, Lissem intimated somewhat shyly that she was ready to take up her recitations again. When the other pupils had gone, Wyatt took his place on the bench and Lissem sat down beside him, though at a little distance. Her breathing was noticeably difficult; her nostrils dilated exquisitely with every respiration; her eyes shone with a glow that was almost red on their background of soft and melting brown; her clear, dark cheeks seemed to be on fire and her lips appeared ready to burst with their blood. Wyatt had hardly time to notice all this glorious coloring till it changed to a pallor that frightened him.

"Lissem, are you ill again, my child?" he asked in deep concern.

"I'm not sick," she answered, recovering some of her color, "and I want to tell you something. One thing I want to tell you is that I'm not your child. I'm not a child at all. I'm a woman, instead—but—what shall I name and a rare smile—"especially inside."

She looked into his face for a moment, but flinched before his inquiring gaze, and the long black lashes made two long black crescents on her cheeks. She was about to continue and took a breath for the words, but halted before them.

"The mystery deepens, said Wyatt, gently. "Tell me all about it, Lissem."

"I'm not sure that I should tell you," she answered, smiling and hanging her head. "Do—do you suppose I should?" Then laughing softly: "I think I'll tell you what it is, and then if you say I must not tell you, why—I won't."

"I don't know, Lissem," answered Wyatt, catching an alarming hint of what she wanted to say. "You may trust me, I—I believe. But,"—here he paused and took her hand as he had done hundreds of times before—"it all depends. There might be some things you should not tell me."

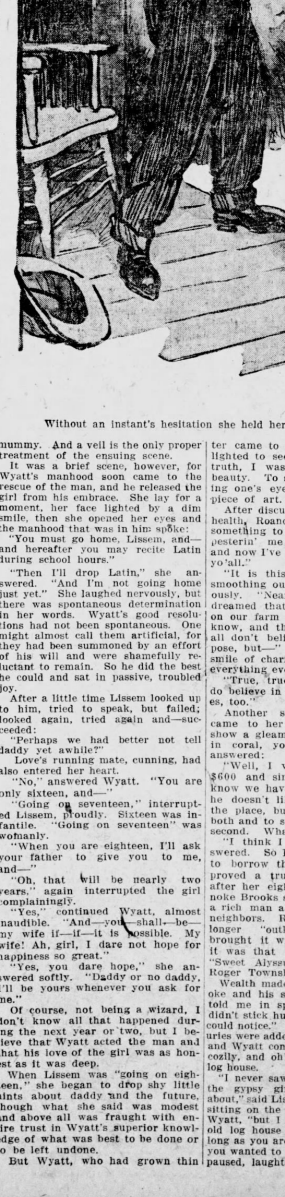
She gripped his fingers tightly, drew a deep breath and answered him in a little cry—the cry of the primitive, the voice of compelling nature.

"Ah, that's it! That's it!" Her bosom rose and sunk piteously, her breath came warm up to his face, and the escaping, fluffy shreds of her hair brushed his cheek with an electric tingle.

"What, Lissem? Ah, my poor, sweet child, what is it?" he asked, irresistibly driven by his love. Although frightened at what he saw the girl was going to say and do, he could not muster the strength to check her.

Suddenly she came close to him and with a quick movement brought his arm about her waist. "There! There! Ah, now it's there, Mr. Wyatt, while I tell you—while I tell you all about it. What has come over me? I am all dazed and things seem unreal. A week ago I loved daddy better than any one else. Now it's changed and there is but one man in all the world. I'm sure I've turned out bad, Mr. Wyatt, and I'm afraid you'll hate me when I tell you that I just know I should not grieve enough if daddy were to die so long as—if I could have you—you—always. Now, now, you know."

Wyatt was helpless. Her love seemed to pervade the entire span of his life and to condense all the years into one little moment of ecstasy. Wyatt, as I have said, was not a mummy. And a veil is the only proper treatment of the ensuing scene.



Without an instant's hesitation she held her baby before the muzzle of the father's rifle.

It was a brief scene, however, for Wyatt's manhood soon came to the rescue of the man, and he released the girl from his embrace. She lay for a moment, her face lighted by a dim smile, then she opened her eyes and he mastered that was in him spoke:

"You must go home, Lissem, and—and hereafter you may recite Latin during school hours."

"Then I'll drop Latin," she answered. "And I'm not going home just yet." She laughed nervously, but there was spontaneous determination in her words. Wyatt's good resolutions had not been spontaneous. One might almost call them artificial, for they had been summoned by an effort of his will and were shamefully reluctant to remain. So he did the best he could and sat in passive, troubled joy.

After a little time Lissem looked up to him, tried to speak, but failed; looked again, tried again and—succeeded:

"Perhaps we had better not tell daddy yet awhile?"

Love's running mate, cunning, had also entered her heart.

"No," answered Wyatt. "You are only sixteen, and—"

"Going on seventeen," interrupted Lissem, proudly. Sixteen was infantile. "Going on seventeen" was womanly.

"When you are eighteen, I'll ask your father to give you to me, and—"

"Oh, that will be nearly two years," again interrupted the girl complainingly.

"Yes," continued Wyatt, almost inaudible. "And—you—shall—be—my wife if—if—it is possible. My wife! Ah, girl, I dare not hope for happiness so great."

"Yes, you dare hope," she answered softly. "Daddy or no daddy, I'll be yours whenever you ask for me."

Of course, not being a wizard, I don't know all that happened during the next year or two, but I believe that Wyatt acted the man and that his love of the girl was as honest as it was deep.

When Lissem was "going on eighteen," she began to drop shy little hints about daddy and the future, though what she said was modest and above all was fraught with entire trust in Wyatt's superior knowledge of what was best to be done or to be left undone.

But Wyatt, who had grown thin and seemed to be in ill health, due to malaria, he said, told Lissem with truth that was all too true, that it was better to defer speaking to "daddy" for another year, and Lissem, with a smile and a sigh, was sure that he was right.

It was early in the second year of Lissem's waiting that the oil excitement of the middle west sprang up. Stories of poor farmers who had become rich, all in a night as it were, floated about the country, and at last reached Lissem in her "outlying" township. Hearing so much about oil it was natural for her to dream about it and Lissem, you know, believed firmly in the prophetic quality of dreams.

One day Roanoke and his daughter came to my office. I was delighted to see them, for to tell the truth, I was mad about the girl's beauty. To see her was like feasting one's eyes on a great masterpiece of art.

After discussing crops and family health, Roanoke said: "Lissem has something to say to yo'. She's b'en pesterin' me fo' mo'n six months and now I've brought her into pester yo'-all."

"It is this way," she began, smoothing out her skirts a bit nervously. "Nearly six months ago I dreamed that we sunk a deep well on our farm over by the creek, you know, and that we struck oil. You all don't believe in dreams, I suppose, but—" here there was a little smile of charity—"a man dont know everything even if he is a lawyer."

"True, true," I answered, "but I do believe in dreams—and in witches, too."

Another surprised little smile came to her face—just enough to show a gleam of exquisite pearls set in coral, you understand—as she answered:

"Well, I want daddy to borrow $600 and sink a deep well. You know we have a mortgage now and he doesn't like to put another on the place, but I say we'll lift them both and to spare if he ventures the second. What do you think?"

"I think I should try it," I answered. So I put them in the way to borrow the money and Lissem proved a true prophet, for shortly after her eighteenth birthday Roanoke Brooks struck oil and soon was a rich man along with many of his neighbors. Roger Township was no longer "outlying;" Lissem had brought it within the pale. Then it was that Wyatt crowned her "Sweet Alyssum, the Oil Queen of Roger Township."

Wealth made little change in Roanoke and his surroundings and as he told me in speaking of Lissem, "it didn't stick huh up a bit that any one could notice." A few comforts and luxuries were added, but Roanoke, Lissem, and Wyatt continued to live modestly, cozily, and oh! so happily in the big log house.

"I never saw a marble hall such as the gypsy girl dreamed and sung about," said Lissem one evening, while sitting on the edge of the porch with Wyatt, "but I wouldn't exchange this old log house for a jasper palace so long as you are content to remain. If you wanted to live in a balloon—" she paused, laughted softly and took his hand—"why a balloon would be my choice." Then the long lashes fell and the dark cheeks took a rosier hue as she continued almost inaudibly: "I'm past eighteen now—going on nineteen and that's pretty old."

After a moment's internal struggle, Wyatt gently withdrew his hand from her clasp, rose, stooped over her and imprinted a kiss on her forehead. Then without a word he left her sitting in the dark and fairly ran to his room.

The next evening after dark, much to Lissem's joy and surprise, Wyatt asked her to walk down the road a short way with him, and when they returned they went straight to daddy.

"My Gawd!" exclaimed Roanoke, and lapsed into silence.

It looked ominous, but Lissem knelt beside her father's chair and said pleadingly, though not with exact truth: "Daddy, I'll not marry Mr. Wyatt if you object, for we can go on living happily just as we are, but I know God has sent him to me and I'm afraid I should die if I were to lose him. I'm getting pretty old, you know, daddy—almost ninteen."

Tears came to the old man's eyes as he answered: "I knew it would come to this. I find no fault with Mr. Wyatt. He's all I could ask a man to be—honest, upright, and a Southe'n Methodist, but he'll take yo' away from me, and then I'll die." Here he broke down and coyered his face with his hands.

"No, he won't, daddy," pleaded Lissem. "Will you, Mr. Wyatt?"

"Never, never," answered Wyatt, placing his hand on the old man's shoulder.

After a long minute of burrowing pain, Roanoke took Wyatt's hand, paused to gain strength for the final effort, slowly brought Lissem's hand from around his neck and joined the two in holy clasp over his aching heart. And, as it was in the beginning and ever shall be, Age gave its all to Youth and groaned and gloried in its own sorrow.

One day while driving past Roanoke's house I stopped and experienced a distinct shock of jealousy when I told me that Lissem had left him a fortnight before to be married and was expected that evening with her husband.

I stayed for supper and while driving home that night I could not help saying to myself: 'Poor Lissem! Poor Lissem!' though I could have given no reason for my forebodings, as Wyatt had made a good impression.

Nearly two years after Lissem's marriage I again saw Wyatt. He came to my office in the custody of the sheriff and asked for a private interview. I took him to my back room and offered him a chair. Poor, devil! I pitied him, but my heart was sorest for Sweet Alyssum.

"What can I do for you?" I asked.

"I have been arrested," he answered, leaning his elbows on his knees and burying his face in his hands.

"On what charge?" I inquired.

"Bigamy," he replied, hoarsely.

He waited fully three minutes and continued: "My name is not Wyatt. It is Garlan. I was cashier of a New York bank. A hundred thousand dollars was lost through no criminal fault of mine, for I lost my entire fortune in the same investment. I was sentenced to Sing Sing. I escaped and in an unlucky hour came here. While in the Tombs in New York I was served with notice of divorce proceedings instituted by my wife. When I married Lissem I thought—I thought I was divorced. I was wrong."

"Ah, that changes the case!" I responded joyfully. "If you had good reason to believe that your wife had procured a divorce, it is at least a palliating circumstance."

After a long silence, he continued: "I lied when I said that I believed my wife had obtained a divorce. A few days after my escape I saw in a New York paper that the case was about to be dismissed. I was madly in love with Lissem. I fought desperately for two years. I tried to run away, but she clung to me so piteously, and then the time came when I could not leave her. I thought I could remain hidden by her side all the rest of my days. You know Lissem and can judge of my temptation."

"You are honestly married to Lissem?" I asked.

"Yes, it was all regular. I am not bad enough to have had it otherwise. Lissem has the certificate in all her burred by her kisses," he answered, turning his face from me for a moment.

"You are not so much to blame as one might suppose," I answered. "I'll procure bail for you and then we'll prepare for the defense."

"If we defeat this charge, there is the old sentence in New York!" he said gloomily.

"They can't extradite you so long as this charge is pending," I suggested.

"We'll take one at a time."

Early that afternoon Wyatt was at liberty on bail, and it was arranged that I should go at once and undertake the awful task of telling Lissem and Roanoke.

When I reached the big log house I found Roanoke on the porch in a rustic armchair, and Lissem sitting on the lowest of the three front steps holding a sweet little copy of herself, perhaps a year old. The baby was cooing in the sunlight, but the mother was weeping gently in the deep shadows of her parasol. Roanoke, too, though usually immovable, was greatly moved.

When Lissem saw me she came running down the path, having almost tossed the baby to the sod, where it lay smiling and cooing in sweet forgiveness of its excited mother. Lissem, though outwardly calm, was almost wild with grief and even the child was forgotten in her anxiety for its father.

"What is the matter?" she cried. "Why did the sheriff take him?"

A bad story is better told quickly, so I said: "Mr. Wyatt has been arrested on a charge of bigamy—another wife in New York. He's out on bail and will be here soon."

Lissem turned and resumed her seat on the step, lifting her baby from the ground as she did so. Roanoke rose, looked at me for a moment, went into the house and presently returned with his old long-barreled rifle, which he leaned against the porch post.

"Now, I'm ready to hyeh it all," said he, calmly resuming his chair.

"I have told you all," I answered. "He has another wife in New York and will probably go to prison for having married Lissem."

Lissem looked up quickly at me, then back to the baby.

"He'll nevah go to prison," remarked Roanoke, glancing toward the rifle.

A long silence ensued, Lissem watching her baby, and kissing it softly now and then as it cooed and smiled up into her face, all unconscious of the awful part it was soon to play.

Presently Lissem asked in her soft tones: "Will they send him to prison because he married me?"

"Yes," I answered. "There would be no crime if he had not married you."

"Oh," murmured the girl, deep in thought. There were no tears now, no evidence of grief. She was thinking and automatically kissing her baby every few seconds.

Suddenly I noticed her looking toward the gate. I turned and saw Boles, the state's attorney, coming up the path. I introduced him and explained that he was the man who would prosecute Wyatt. Roanoke invited him to the porch and gave him a chair. Lissem did not look at Boles, but remained seated on the steps, kissing her baby and thinking, thinking, thinking.

After a few words about the weather, Boles drew a notebook from his pocket and addressed Lissem:

"Mrs. Wyatt, you probably know why Mr. Wyatt has been arrested?"

"Yes," she murmured, without looking up.

"Well, I'd like to ask you a few questions preparatory to prosecution. Tell me, please, when and where you were married to Mr. Wyatt."

A long pause. Lissem's eyes were cast down, intently watching the baby.

"I never was married to him at all," she answered, lifting her eyes and looking Boles straight, in the face, without a quiver or hesitancy.

At her reply Roanoke sprang from his chair and his eyes fairly burned as he gazed at his daughter. After a distinct shock of jealousy I noticed him look toward the road, straighten up and reach for the rifle. I turned and saw Wyatt hitching his horse.

"Yes, daddy," whispered Lissem, glancing up to me, whispered Lissem, glancing up to me.

I hurried down the path and met Wyatt at the gate.

"Don't tell," I whispered. "Roanoke will shoot you."

"I don't care," he returned, evidently meaning just what he said. "How does Lissem take it? Does she hate me?"

"No, she could not hate you if she were to try, and she doesn't want to try. She seems to be amusing herself and has shown no emotion of any sort except a cry or two when I first came. She just now told the prosecutor that she was never married to you."

"She did it to save me," he replied, half choked by emotion. "We were married truly enough. She has the certificate. I'll soon put her right with the world on that score."

"If you want to consider her happiness and your own welfare, take my advice and allow her statement to stand, at least for a time," I suggested.

He did not reply, but passed me and started toward the house. Roanoke stood on the porch with his gun half lifted. Lissem remained seated on the lowest step, holding the baby and watching Wyatt. Roanoke, being above and behind her, she did not see him. When Wyatt passed me I was sure he would never reach the house alive, so I ran ahead of him hoping to pacify Roanoke. When I was within ten feet of the porch I heard Wyatt, who was perhaps twenty feet behind me, cry out:

"Fire, Father Brooks! Don't hesitate!"

Lissem turned quickly and saw that her father had his gun to his shoulder. She tried to place herself between the gun and Wyatt, but her father being above her, she was not tall enough.

When Lissem saw that she could not interpose her own body and receive the bullet intended for Wyatt, without an instant's hesitation she held her baby above her head and thrust the little body before the muzzle of her father's rifle. A look of terror, such as I had never seen on the human countenance, came to Roanoke's face. His great love for Lissem had been intensified to worship of the baby. I closed my eyes and heard the sharp crack of the rifle.

Lissem, whose head was bent down between her arms so that she could not see, stood for perhaps five seconds holding up the baby; then, without looking at it, she quickly placed it on the sod, turned to Wyatt, who, by that time, was behind her, and with a cry that I shall never forget, threw her arms about his neck, drew his face down to hers and kissed his lips in an ecstasy of love, such as I, in my poor ignorance of womankind, had never before dreamed was possible.

The rifle fell from Roanoke's hand to the ground. He stood for a moment dazed, then started down the steps toward Lissem and Wyatt. I thought he was going to attack him, so I interposed, saying:

"No, you don't, Brooks! You'll whip me first!"

"Gawd! I don't want to whip nobody," he answered faintly, tears falling unheeded over his cheeks. "I jes' want my li'l ge'l."

I saw that his anger had vanished, so I allowed him to proceed. He put his hand gently on Lissem's shoulder and spoke her name in tones of love and fear and tenderness that brought tears to my eyes. I noticed that Boles, too, had his handkerchief out.

With her arms still about Wyatt's neck, Lissem turned her face to her father.

"Don't touch me," he said quietly, "or you will make me want to kill you."

Roanoke turned and sat down on the steps, covering his face with his hands.

"Go to your father and ask him to forgive you," said Wyatt, gently, but with a note of command.

"He would have killed you. He did kill my baby," she wailed.

"No, he did not," said Wyatt, "I saw him lift his gun."

And just then a plaintive little cry, half coo, half scolding, came from the baby on the grass.

Instantly Lissem sprang from Wyatt's arms, knelt beside the baby snatched it from the ground, and in less time than you could count three, tore off its clothing and examined the little body from head to heels. When she found that it was unhurt she pressed it to her breast and began to kiss it, gently, softly, as a bird feeds its young.

After a minute or two Roanoke went to Lissem, still kneeling on the ground, and spoke to her pleadingly:

"My Gawd, child! Do yo' love the man like that? Mo' than the baby?"

"A thousand times," she answered, without lifting her head.

"Come into the house, Mr. Wyatt," said Roanoke, "and stand by yo' right or wrong. When a woman loves a man that-a-way she sanctifies him."

"Ah, daddy, forgive me," cried Lissem, holding the baby up to Boles, who upon he fell to his knees beside her and folded mother and baby in his mighty love.

Roanoke who had been standing on the porch, took me to one side. There were tears in his eyes as he spoke. "Look here, Howard!" he said, "I'm not going to have Lissem's kids cussed. I'm not over the truth, the charge of bigamy was made only for the purpose of holding Wyatt until extradition papers could be procured to take him back to New York where he was convicted several years ago for looting a bank. Representatives of the New York bank are in Blue River now. It seems that they had reason to believe that Wyatt did not know his wife had obtained a divorce and it is my opinion that if the money, which was only a few thousand dollars or such matter, were paid back, the whole thing would be dropped. I believe it is all a scheme to collect the money from Brooks, and I'm going to pay it. Wyatt's New York wife obtained a divorce shortly after his conviction, so there would have been no bigamy even if he married the girl."

Then I went crazy and began to shout. I was so excited that I couldn't tell Lissem, Brooks, and Wyatt, so Boles told them.

"Pay it? Gawd! Of cou'se he'll pay it, if it takes ouh last cent, won't we, Lissem?" said Roanoke.

"Yes, daddy," answered Lissem, rising and going to the top step of the porch, where she sat down, still hugging the naked baby to her breast.

"Yo' tell the Kew Yo'k folks I'll be in town tonight and pay them every dollah," said Roanoke.

"Tomorrow will be soon enough," answered Boles.

After talking a moment longer, we said "good day" and started down the path. When half way to the gate we turned to wave a farewell and saw Lissem sitting on the top step of the porch, the whole scene bathed in the radiance of her joy.

"Wait a moment, I have something to say to them," said Boles, turning to me.

We went back to the porch and Boles spoke to Wyatt: "The only condition I make in promising not to prosecute you is that you shall marry this girl at once."

We all looked toward Lissem. She smiled up to Boles, as if pitying me so gullible, and spoke for Wyatt:

"Law! Don' you-all worry you'se'f about that, Mr. Boles. We-all were married true enough in Cincinnati."

"Well—I'll—be—busted!" said Boles.

The European Fighting Man

Russian Cossack

How He Is Equipped, How He Is Uniformed, What He Is Called, What He Is Likely to do in the War of the Seven Nations---Told From the View-point of the American Reader of the News.

By Thos. J. Bryson

WHEN you read that the Seventieth Uhlans, the Fourth Jagers, the Thirty-ninth Hussars and the Twelfth Cuirassiers were attacked by the Fifty-first Fusiliers and Tenth Dragoon Guards assisted by the Twenty-first Cossacks and the Eleventh Chasseurs what do you understand?

Don't all answer at once or this is likely to become as confusing as a description of a skirmish between the armies of Europe is going to be as soon as the war correspondents get into first-class fighting trim and begin to write things as they really are.

So far it hasn't been so very bad for the press dispatches have mentioned only a handful of German Uhlans a few Cuirassiers and some scattering patrols of Cossacks. However things are due to grow worse rapidly from now on and unless all the signs are mixed, readers of the war news are soon going to find themselves wondering just how many dozen different kinds of soldiers they really have in Europe.

Already one is being asked what is an Uhlan, and who is a Cossack, but when the dispatches begin to be liberally sprinkled with Dragoons, Cuirassiers, Chasseurs, Lancers, Grenadiers, Foot Guards, Jagers, Highlanders, and scores of others, the average reader will probably be found making a dive for his dictionary, which, after all, will afford him but little relief.

On Monday the Belgian war department issued circulars to all Belgian troops describing in detail the uniforms worn by the various branches of the English and French armies.

That this precaution was necessary proves that it is not the American alone who is finding it difficult to distinguish between a German Cuirassier or an Austrian Hussar and a French Chasseur (pronounced "shosser") and an English Dragoon or a Russian Uhlan.

Nor is that "Russian Uhlan" a typographical error, in spite of the fact that all the Uhlans mentioned in the dispatches so far have been German troops. There are Uhlans in the German, Austrian and Russian cavalry, just as there are Cuirassiers in the Russian, French, German and English armies. Dragoons are even more common still, being found in the English, French, German, Austrian and Russian armies.

Names Are Confusing.

In the United States army a soldier who walks is simply an infantryman, while one who rides is a plain cavalryman, and nothing more. And this makes it even more difficult for the average man here to carry in his head the distinctions which exist in these branches of the service abroad, where a cavalryman may be a Grenadier, a Fusilier, a Foot Guard, a Jager (pronounced "yagger"), a Highlander, a Grenadier Guard, or one of almost a score of other things.

If, however, it will be borne in mind that all of the first named are cavalry, with only differences in equipment to justify their different names, while all of the latter are infantry, whose only differences are in the uniforms they wear, press dispatches will become much more intelligible when these designations are used.

The names of the various infantry and cavalry organizations are not calculated, however, to cause any more confusion in this country than will the conglomeration of so many varicolored uniforms in one army in the big battles pending in Belgium, France or Germany. That this is true is proven by the fact that it has been considered necessary to describe English and French uniforms to Belgian soldiers, so that they may avoid the mistake of shooting up the wrong party.

Uniforms of Every Shade.

In the German army blue coats or blouses, with Confederate gray trousers, predominate in uniforms, although the Seventh Cuirassiers wear an all-white uniform, gold trimmed; the Third Hussars a red coat with white trimmings and gray trousers; the Saxon Jagers a bright green coat, gray trousers, red trimmings, and the Uhlans blue coats, with a red "plastron," or front, which buttons on to the double-breasted blouse.

In France again the predominating color of the coats is blue, but the trousers of practically all regiments are a madder red. The coats are trimmed in red. The French Cuirassier wears his cuirass, or steel breastplate, into the field, as well as his metal helmet, which is the same for service as for dress uniforms except that in service the red horse hair plume is discarded.

The English Tommy Atkins wears a red coat, just as he did during the Revolutionary war, with the exception of the Hussars and Lancers. The former wear solid blue uniforms trimmed in gold, while the latter wear a red "plastron" similar to the German Uhlans.

The Austrians, in all branches of the service, wear both coats and trousers of a peculiar purple tint. Their uniforms are less conspicuous on the whole than those of any other nation engaged in the war, with the possible exception of Russia.

The Russian uniform is the simplest and is cut more with a view to comfort than any of the others. Both blouses and breeches are dark green, except in a few regiments where dark gray trousers are worn. The trimmings are white, gold and red, and on the whole, are considerably less ornate than those of other European uniforms. The distinctive feature of the Cossack uniform is the long, loose caftan or coat, which is either dark blue or green.

Differ Widely From U. S. Army.

As marked as is the contrast between these uniforms and the dull, olive, drab, dirt-colored uniforms worn by United States soldiers of every branch, the difference is no more noticeable than others which occur in the equipment of European armies.

Possibly the most striking difference lies in the fact that no European cavalry is armed with the revolver, which is considered a most important part of the trooper's equipment in this country. Just what is the difference of opinion responsible for this lack on the part of European powers to give cavalrymen the revolver, is not known. It remains a fact, however, that the revolver, which is considered all-important here, is not found there, and the saber, considered of comparatively little value and so proven in this country, is given preference over there.

Cavalrymen With Spears.

A most novel feature of European armies is the lances or spears carried by some regiments of cavalry in every army. In this country, people think of spears as something belonging to ancient warfare, but not so in Europe. Every German cavalryman carries his lance, no matter what form of cavalry he belongs to, while in all the other armies there are either lancers, Uhlans, Cossacks or dragoons that are armed with the lance, in addition to which they carry the saber and carbine.

The lance consists of a hollow steel tube with a four-edged point of forged steel and a shaft of cast steel. It is ten and a half feet long and weighs approximately five pounds.

Another difference that will be more apparent to one who has soldiered than to the civilian is the lack of shelter tents in the majority of the European armies. No provision is made in these regiments for covering the soldiers in case they are forced to camp out. This is due to the practice of stationing the soldiers in public or private buildings wherever they camp. Often, though, this is impossible, and the men are forced to sleep in the open.

The soft felt campaign hat, found in this country to be so necessary to a soldier's comfort when campaigning, is entirely unknown in Europe where soldiers, for the most part, take the field wearing the caps or helmets used in garrison and on dress parade. These are not only uncomfortable, but afford very little protection from the sun, and are considered far inferior to the United States campaign hat.

The general equipment of the European soldier, outside his arms, differs little from that of the United States regular or national guardsman and there is considerable uniformity to be observed in the manner in which they are carried by the infantry, although in the cavalry, a wide difference is to be noted.

The Kaiser's Fighting Man.

In the German army, which is conceded by military experts to be the most perfectly drilled in the world today, the infantry, while distinguished in many instances by distinctive names such as Prussian Grenadier Guards, Jagers and the like, is all alike except for the uniforms, which vary considerably.

The cavalry also shows comparatively little difference in its equipment, although it retains the distinctive titles of cuirassiers, uhlans, dragoons and hussars. The difference between a uhlan and a hussar for instance, lies mainly in the fact that the uhlan is a heavier man, rides a larger horse and carries slightly heavier equipment. Cuirassiers and uhlans in Germany ride horses of about 1,100 pounds and weigh almost 190 pounds on the average, while dragoons and hussars average only 143 pounds and use horses weighing only a little more than 850 pounds.

In the German cavalry, the lance, which is unknown in the cavalry in this country, finds highest favor, since it is carried by members of every regiment. In the other European armies only a portion of the cavalry is so armed. In addition to the lance, a carbine and saber, but no revolver is carried.

World's Finest Cavalry.

Austrian cavalry enjoy the reputation of being the finest everything considered, in the world today. It is divided into dragoons hussars and lancers, with very little difference except in the uniforms. The lancers are armed with the lance in addition to the sabre and carbine, while the dragoons and hussars are not. There is no distinction made between heavy and light cavalry as in the German army. Most of both men and horses are comparatively light. The Austrian cavalry saddle is considered by military experts to be the best in the world today. It is made in five different sizes to fit various sized horses, and in addition fifty adjustable saddles are issued to every regiment. This painstaking care of their horses has done much to gain for the Austrian cavalrymen their most enviable reputation.

The Austrian infantry is all armed and equipped alike with a modern magazine rifle very similar to those used now by all first-class military powers. And, while there is a wide difference in the uniforms worn by the different infantry regiments, they are not known by distinctive names as in England and Germany, but are simply numbered as in the United States army, as the Eighteenth or the Fifty-first infantry.

French Superior Artillery.

While the French cavalry and infantry are considered on a par with that of almost any other nation in the world, the artillery that French generals will be able to muster against Germany and Austria is the best equipped, the best drilled and the most powerful numerically, in proportion to the infantry and cavalry branches of the service, in the world. The guns are of the very latest pattern, the men superbly drilled and equipped personally, and are accounted second to none in the world in marksmanship. As the Austrians have taken most pride in their cavalry, and the Germans in their infantry, so have the French in their artillery, and experts look for the gunners under the tri-color to show to superb advantage in the coming conflict.

Like the Austrians, the French infantry regiment is designated simply by numbers instead of distinctive titles, but the cavalry is divided into the cuirassiers, dragoons and light cavalry. The cuirassiers are the heavy cavalry, while the dragoons are armed with the lance in addition to the sabre and carbine. The chasseur is a mounted sapper, or trooper, equipped with tools for entrenching and bridge building.

Where Tommy Atkins Shines.

Few are the English regiments of infantry or cavalry that cannot boast some distinctive name, although this is often connected with a number to help designate it, as many regiments have the same general name. Fusiliers, Grenadier Guards, Highlanders, etc., are among the regimental designations but there is no difference between a Grenadier Guard and a Highlander except in his uniform. Both are armed with the same kind of rifle and both carry the same amount and kind of equipment.

Almost the same is true in the British cavalry, where one meets with Dragoons, Dragoon Guards, Hussars and Lancers. As the name implies, the lancers carry the lance in addition to the regulation sabre and carbine; but, as is the case with all other European cavalry, only officers and certain non-commissioned officers carry the revolver. The British cavalry more nearly resembles that of the United States army than that of any other European nation. This is due to the fact that the cavalry has seen considerable service in South Africa very similar to that known on the western plains by United States troopers. This similar service has taught them lessons very similar to those learned by soldiers of our own army.

The Cossack Horde.

There is wider difference in the equipment of the Russian infantry than that of any other European army, which is accounted for by the fact that the czar presides over so many men that he finds it next to impossible to keep them all fully equipped with the most modern of accoutrements. Taken as a whole, however, the infantry of the Russian standing army compares favorably with that of other European armies, while the cavalry, especially certain branches of it, has always given good account of itself.

The Cossacks, or irregular cavalry, is possibly the best known in the world today, not because of its superiority over any other, but because of its spectacular horsemanship. These troops bear the unique distinction of being the only cavalrymen in the world who go into battle carrying a whip instead of a spur.

The regular cavalry is divided into cuirassiers, uhlans, hussars and dragoons, with the last named predominating to a marked degree. Russian cavalry generally has the distinction of being the only mounted troop in the world who carry rifles with bayonets. In addition, they carry the sabre, but not the revolver. The Cossacks carry the lance habitually, and for this reason are not armed with the sabre.

Little Advantage Anywhere.

Taken all in all, military experts have agreed that there is comparatively little to choose between the armies of Europe, taking them regiment for regiment in like numbers. Without exception, they are superbly equipped, well drilled, faultlessly disciplined, well officered in the extreme. For this reason military men in the United States, regardless of sympathies or nationalities, are inclined to believe that the troops whose officers show the most proficiency will undoubtedly make the best showing in what promises to be the most gigantic struggle this world has ever seen.

A SQUADRON OF THE DASHING CAVALRYMEN OF FRANCE.

$5,000,000 A YEAR SPENT FOR SODA WATER IN ATLANTA

To hold all the soft drinks consumed in Atlanta annually, it would take a glass in which you could set the Empire Life building and still have room

YES, it's true.

You've often wondered if Atlanta doesn't drink more "soda-water" than any other place on the top side of this earth, and now the figures compiled for the sole purpose of deciding this point prove that you were correct. For Atlantians have the rest of the world faded to the proverbial "fare-ye-well" when it comes to the consumption of soft drinks.

Do you spend $20 a year to help the city uphold this record? If not, you're not a real Atlantian, for the figures show that if the drinks sold annually in the city were equally divided there would be some $27 worth for every man, woman and child between Buckhead and College Park, and between Battle Hill and Decatur.

From January 1 to December 31, Atlanta consumed approximately 1,000,000 glasses of soft drinks, for which she paid the rather neat total of $5,000,000, a sum calculated to cut quite a hole in even John D.'s bloated holdings in these turbulent times.

Maybe though, a thousand times 100,000 glasses doesn't strike you as being so very many after all. If this be the case, listen to this other array of figures.

In a year Atlanta consumes almost 2,000 carloads of soda water. This is more than 85,000 barrels or 5,450,000 gallons. To haul this amount at one time would require a freight train some 66,448 feet or slightly over thirteen miles long.

If the barrels that it would take to hold all this soda fount product were laid end to end, the row of them would reach all the way from Macon to Atlanta and a good long way back to the return trip. Piled one on top of the other they would reach to an altitude more than fifteen times as high as the highest mountain in the world.

In these days of multi-millionaires, numbers into seven figures fail to dazzle—not because they are not stupendous, but because people are in the habit of meeting with them so frequently.

In spite of this, however, $1,000,000 is quite a considerable pile of money and few people have any real conception of just how large the sum that Atlanta annually spends for her "dopes," "lemon, lime and lithias," "malted milks," ginger ales, grape juice, and the like really is.

If 5,000,000 silver dollars were laid side by side, the row of them would be slightly over ninety miles long. In other words, the silver dollars that Atlanta spends in a year for soft drinks are enough to put a row down in the middle of more than two-thirds of all the street car tracks in both the city and the suburbs. Taken the other way, if these dollars were piled one on top of the other, the stack would reach more than ten miles high.

If, again, all of these dollars were changed into 5-cent pieces, there would be nickels enough to cover slightly more than 800 miles in a straight line, if they were laid side by side. In other words, they could be laid in a row, six wide, down the middle of every car track in the city and vicinity and when the last foot had been covered, there would still be a considerable pile left over.

If piled one on top of the other they would make a stack more than 100 miles high, or if stood on edge and laid as closely together as possible, they would reach from Atlanta more than half way to Augusta.

100,000,000 Men.

Naturally, the 100,000,000 soft drinks sold here annually do not go to a like number of persons since there are less than 200,000 people to buy them. This means that every man, woman and child in the city of Atlanta and its suburbs spends more than $25 each for soft drinks during the course of a year, or would if the per capita consumption was equally divided. That it but goes without saying. There are scores of people who consume practically none of the enormous total. On the other hand, this means that there must be a corresponding number who buy more than their $25 allotment.

Supposing, though, for the sake of illustrations, that each drink were sold to a separate individual it would take approximately every man, woman and child in the United States from Canada to Mexico, from Maine to California to consume what Atlanta alone uses in a single twelvemonth.

Here again the enormity of the figures are not apparent at the first glance.

If 100,000,000 men were stood in line, shoulder to shoulder, as soldiers are ranged, they would stretch almost two and one-half times around the earth.

It would take a soda fount stretching twice from New York to San Francisco a whole week to serve them, working day and night. To be served at a single soda fount would require more than 378 years.

In other words, if a soda fount had been erected in Jamestown when that city was founded and had been in constant operation 12 hours every day since, it would still lack quite a few of having dispensed as many drinks as are passed over the counters in Atlanta between January 1 and December 31 following.

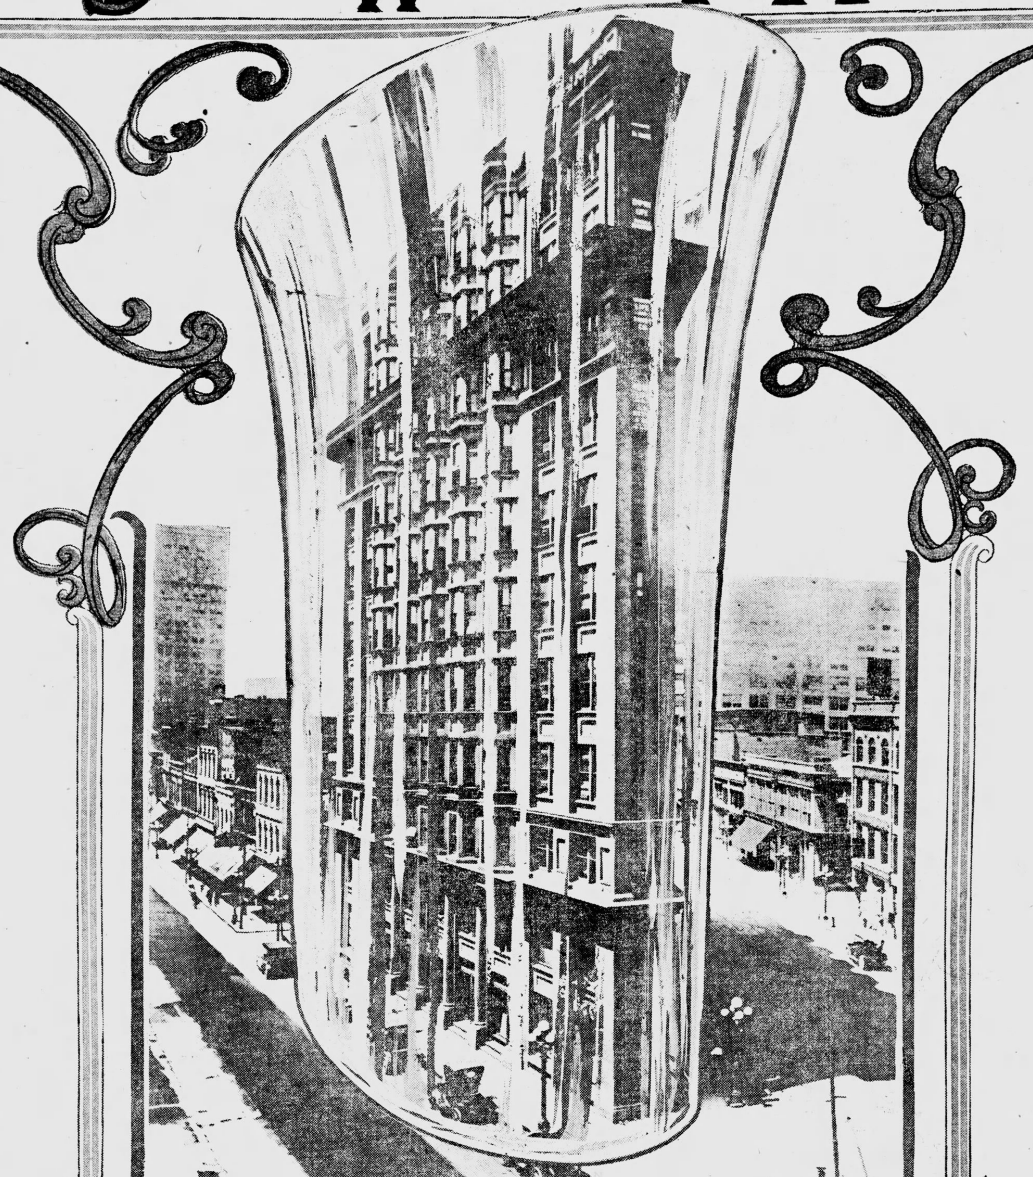
Atlanta's soft drinks are dispensed from 340 soda founts, representing an investment of something over $1,000,000 as estimated by several experts of the city. This means that there is in the city approximately one soda fount to every 500 people, which is a far higher percentage it is said than any other city in the world can show.

If all the soda founts in the city did an equal amount of business it would mean that each sold approximately 300,000 drinks each annually. Naturally, however, a majority of them do not reach this figure while a great many others sell far more than this number which aggregates only a little more than 900 drinks per day.

Since the war has been going on in Europe people have been marveling at the immense number of men Russia, Germany, France, Austria, England and the others are putting into the field. And yet, as large as these armies are were Atlantians willing to forego their soft drinks for a whole year she could supply every man lunging a gun in Europe today with a soft drink at least twice a day for a week and not call on any other city to assist her in the "great."

A certain town in Wisconsin is alleged to have become famous for her beer. France has a sizable city on the river Seine where absinthe is said to be consumed in considerable quantities; while London easily leads the world in putting ale where it will do the most damage. But when it comes to drinking—the kind of drinking that cheers without intoxicating—the remainder of the universe has to kick under to little old Atlanta.

If the per capita consumption was equally divided, every man, woman and child in Atlanta and its suburbs would pay $25.00 apiece for soft drinks



The Only Path to Peace

By Bishop W. A. Candler

MEN love peace more than they love the purity and righteousness upon which only any enduring peace can rest.

Jesus forewarned us that in the last days many would be crying "Peace! Peace!" when there would be no peace. His words have had striking fulfillment in the last few years.

The nations have been making "treaties of peace." A peace palace has been erected at The Hague. An international court of arbitration has been established. All these things appeared to be the harbingers of universal peace. Men were ready to believe that wars had ceased forever. But in the midst of all these things an era of war began such as the world has not seen since the days of the first Napoleon.

There has been civil war in China. Revolutions and counter revolutions have broken out in Mexico, and the end of perturbed days in that disquieted land is not yet. Italy made war on Turkey, and then followed the war of the Balkan States with Turkey. Now all Europe has fallen to fighting. So the era of peace, which men proclaimed so loudly and predicted so confidently, has turned out to be a period of bloody conflicts.

How shall the case be explained?

The answer is easy. The nations desired peace more than they cared for righteousness. It is a notable fact that the crown heads of the nations of Europe in all their declarations of war charged wrong doing upon the part of the opposing powers. The German Emperor, the Russian Czar, the French president and the British premier all declared that unrighteous acts of other nations had forced their countries into armed conflicts which they had desired and striven to avoid.

Well there may be wrong upon the part of all of them. Certainly there is grievous wrong somewhere. It has been said that "war is the sum of all villanies," and without undertaking to determine who is the villain responsible for the conflict in Europe, it is a most villainous war.

Millions of men have been withdrawn from productive industry to engage in destructive combats in which vast treasure is wasted and thousands of precious lives are sacrificed. Poverty, orphanage, widowhood, and bitter grief must flow inevitably from such a conflict.

But let men everywhere get at least one good out of it all. Let them learn once for all that wars will continue as long as wrong continues to be done by nations, and that peace can never go in advance of principle. Men will fight just as long as unrighteousness prevails on earth. It must be so.

Let us suppose that two or more nations agreed that under no circumstances would they ever go to war; that they would adopt the policy of "peace at any cost." Is it not evident that other nations would be encouraged to inflict with impunity injuries on these peace-pledged powers? Is it not clear that the virtuous and peace-loving nations must suffer injustice at the hands of the vicious aggressive powers, if a policy of non-resistance is proclaimed?

Righteousness must rely upon force to restrain unrighteousness, if wrong is not to be allowed to run rampant in the earth. This means that peace cannot prevail as long as righteousness is not universally respected by the nations. All the world must be ready to do right at any cost before mankind can adopt the policy of "peace at all cost."

St. James says that "the wisdom which is from above is first pure and then peaceable". (James iii:17). This principle applies to nations as well as to individuals. Peace can not go in advance of purity.

The men who have been trying to execute a programme of universal peace without first bringing the nations to such moral purity as is required to assure peace, have begun at the wrong end of the problem which they seek to solve. It is not strange that their efforts have been in vain. Seeking to climb into a heaven of peace by a man-made tower is to repeat the blunder of the builders of Babel and to fall into a confusion of plans as well as a confusion of tongues. When the nations come into an era of universal peace they will enter that blessed period by following the Prince of Peace. In no other way can they reach it.

The prophet-priest, Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, when moved by the Holy Spirit, said of Christ, "He shall guide our feet into the way of peace". (Luke i: 79). If the nations will not accept his guidance they will never find the way of peace.

Considerations of commerce can never constrain the nations to peace. Greed of gain will always make wars. There is much greed for territorial expansion and commercial advantage back of the war in Europe. Selfishness can not serve the ends of peace.

Mere intellectual enlightenment can not bring peace. The European war has involved the most highly educated nations on the planet. Thoughtful men have been shocked to see the most highly civilized peoples behaving like barbarians. But we should not be surprised to see the spirit of the savage manifesting itself in men who lack the highest moral character, although they possess the richest mental culture. Only the recognition of the primacy of moral law by all men can secure real and permanent peace.

The obvious primacy of moral things bears a direct relation to the work of education. It is not enough for our colleges and universities to develop men mentally; they must lift up men morally.

Our institutions of higher learning, in which the leaders of the future are to be educated, must be thoroughly moral in tone and emphatically religious in spirit. Mere intellectualism will not and can not safe-guard civilization. Secularism in education can not by any possibility produce men who sufficiently fear God and regard men as to make them wise and faithful guardians of the peace of the world.

If a nation is ever to enjoy the blessings of universal peace, all men and all nations must be brought under the moral restraint of "the truce of God."

It is time for education to move on higher lines than the low processes which cram the brain with knowledge and kindle the mass of information thus deposited in the mind with unholy ambitions. The world can not get on much longer without the holy culture which fires the mind with love while it fills the intellect with light.

The world can not have peace until it has righteousness, and mere intellectualism is absolutely impotent to assure righteousness. Mankind is rapidly approaching the time when it must choose between righteousness and ruin; and this issue will be settled in our institutions of learning to a very great extent.
